Iowa In Grip Of Big Blizzard And Sub-Zero Weather

NEW YEARS BROUGHT IOWA'S FIRST BLIZZARD

Roads Blocked With Deep Drifts That Tied Up All Traffic

North Iowa, and in fact all of Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois, experienced the first real blizzard of the season with the ushering in of New Year's Day.

Snow, accompanied by a light wind on New Year's eve whipped into a storm of vast proportions as the New Year dawned.

During the day the fall of snow increased as winds increased to a forty-mile an hour gale that piled snow high in drifts all over the state and brought traffic to a stand still. Bus schedules were called off and trains were behind schedule. Highway traffic was impossible and radio stations broadcast all throughout New Year's day to stay off the highways.

An estimated eighteen to twenty inches of snow fell here, on top of nine inches previous. The air port at Des Moines reported 22 inches.

By Friday afternoon most of the main highways in North Iowa again were open to traffic, as the storm abated and skys cleared in the early night.

In Klemme the town's new snow plow was given a good try-out in clearing the streets of snow.

In the business blocks snow was hauled away in trucks.

SUB-ZERO TEMPERATURES RECORDED IN NORTH IOWA

Still Far Below Zero

The thermometer in Klemmd this Wednesday morning again hit 24 degrees below zero. The warmest reading Tuesday was 4 degrees above for a short time.

Weather forecasters still say no relief in sight.

METHODIST BROTHERHHOD ORGANIZED HERE

A Brotherhood of the Liberty and Klemme Methodist Churches was organized here Tuesday evening at a banquet held at the Klemme Methodist Church.

Despite the sub-zero weather a large crowd of men were present. Ira Overholt was elected president of the organization and P. M. Wilson vice president. Bernard Pringnitz was named secretary-treasurer.

Father And Son Banquet

The new organization will sponsor a Father and Son banquet to be held on Monday evening, February 23rd.

Farmers Should Not Wait To Purchase Soybean Seed

MAKE ARRANGEMENTS FOR SOYBEAN SEED NOW SAYS COUNTY AGENT

Hancock County farmers would do well to make arrangements for their next year's soybean seed now says County Agent Burlin Hamer.

Iowa farmers have indicated that they will plant 49 per cent more soybeans in 1942 than they did last year It has been estimated that approximately 2 million acres of beans will be grown next year, of which 1,409,000 acres will be used for grain.

That will require a lot of seed, since the rate of seeding is about 1 to 1½ bushels per acre Hancock county will increase its soybean acreage 66 percent, according to intention sheets signed by farmers through the county AAA committee.

Already some dealers have been getting high prices for some varieties of seed which is hardly justified. If farmers take steps to obtain their seed now, these higher prices can be largely avoided

Richland beans, an Indiana variety, have been recommended rather strongly for the better soils in northern Iowa since they have been outyielding Mukden a little, have a satisfactory oil content and are lodging resistent Adequate supplies of this seed are available in Iowa and nearby states.

4-H TRAINING SCHOOL TO BE HELD JAN. 13 IN BRITT

Clothing will be the subject of the second 4-H training school for Hancock County when Miss Gladys Adams, 4-H clothing specialist of Iowa State College comes to present the lesson on Tuesday, January 13 in the I. O. O. F. Hall, Britt. The time is as usual, 10:00 A. M. to 4:00 P. M.

As the first training school was on nutrition for furthering defense, the second training school is the first lesson in clothing this year. The girls had first year clothing last year, and this lesson will include a brief review of the work plus a study of buymanship and care of clothing. Each person is asked to bring scraps of silk or rayons and labels from garments or yardage for study. Leaders are also to bring manuals, notebooks, and pencils. A planned meal will be served at noon.

Those attending the training school will be the county club committee members, leaders, the assistant leaders and one older girl from each club.

Iowa, alone, has more hogs on farms than the combined numbers in 30 of the lower hog producing states in the U. S.

LIFE OF TIRES CAN BE INCREASED WITH PROPER ATTENTION

Speed Of Driving, Stopping And Starting Factors Affecting Wear Of Tires

Since it now appears that new tires for automobiles and a number of trucks are going to be practically impossible to obtain due to the need of rubber for war equipment, it behooves automobile owners to take the best of care of the tires they now have.

Life of automobile tires can be prolonged materially by a little more attention to the care of tires and to the operation of the car.

Test Pressure Weekly

1. Keep correct air pressure. Test tires once a week. Be particularly careful when temperatures vary through a wide range Underinflated tires break the sidewall's and increases gasoline consumption. Over-inflated tires cause excessive wear at the center of the tread.

2. Balance wheels on your car Wheels out of balance cause uneven and rapid wear of tire.

3. Align wheels Front wheels out of alignment cause a scrubbing action between tire and road The front wheels should toe-in a very slight amount.

4. Drive at moderate speeds. Excessive speeds cause rapid wear of tires.

Take Curves Slowly

5 Avoid sudden stops and also starts Start or stop the motion of the car gradually to avoid slippage of tires.

6. Slow down for curves Taking curves at too high a speed puts a tremendous sidewise pressure on tires which tends to cause slipping or skidding, resulting in uneven wear and strain.

7. Be on the look-out for nails screws, bolts, boards with nails in sharp stones, pieces of glass and other items in the driveway and farmyard Every nail you pick up as you walk across the street or road means lessening the possibility of a puncture.

8. Do not overload your car This is a frequent cause of excessive wear on tires, particularly on farm automobiles.

9 Have cuts on tires repaired at once.

9. Change tires from one wheel to the other every 4,000 miles, using your spare as a "starter". In this way your car runs 20 000 miles but each tire actually travels 16,000.

Tires can be successfully retreaded. Tires worn smooth but otherwise sound, can be retreaded and will wear 80 per cent as long as new tires. Consult your tire dealer.

'Front' in Africa Would Bring War Close to America

(While America eyes events in the Pacific, somewhat forgotten is the Berlin-Rome end of the Axis. But, as the special release below points out, it is only 1,870 miles from Africa's western tip to Natal, Brazil. Perhaps here then is a "front" that requires study. Copyrighted by the National Geographic society, this article explains some of the less known features of this reason that may play an important role in world affairs should either the Axis or the Allies try to occupy or develop it in a military way for strategic reasons.)

Nearer to the New world than any part of Europe is the bulging shoulder of northwest Africa, a thinly settled region ranging from desert to tropical jungle From Dakar, French colonial port on Africa's western tip, it is only 1,870 miles across the Atlantic ocean to Natal, Brazil.

Busy sea lanes have paralleled this part of the African coast ever since the early Portuguese explorers rounded the Cape of Good Hope to trade with India, China and the East Indies Ships to and from South Africa, South America, and Australia often stop to refuel at the scattered northwest African ports or at near-by islands.

Only in comparatively recent years, however, has the region been developing from an agricultural and economic standpoint. With the exception of the Republic of Liberia, the territory is divided into British, French, Spanish, and Portuguese colonies Those nations have been doing much to increase the productiveness of the land.

There are several geographic reasons for the delay in exploring and developing not only this section but the whole continent. Topography, climate, and the primitive character of the Negro savages must be taken into account.

Sahara Is Unexplored.

In the north, the vast, desolate sand and rock expanse of the Sahara covers an area the size of the United States Much of the desert never has been explored, its oases are few and far between The dry heat of the Sahara is in contrast to the hot humidity of the jungles and forests farther south, but neither climate is very suitable for white men.

Hindering exploration and transportation, too, have been the falls and rapids of the African rivers. These unfortunately are found near the mouths of the streams, at points where the continent's vast plateau dips toward the coastal lowlands. Furthermore, the coastline is so regular that there are few good harbors

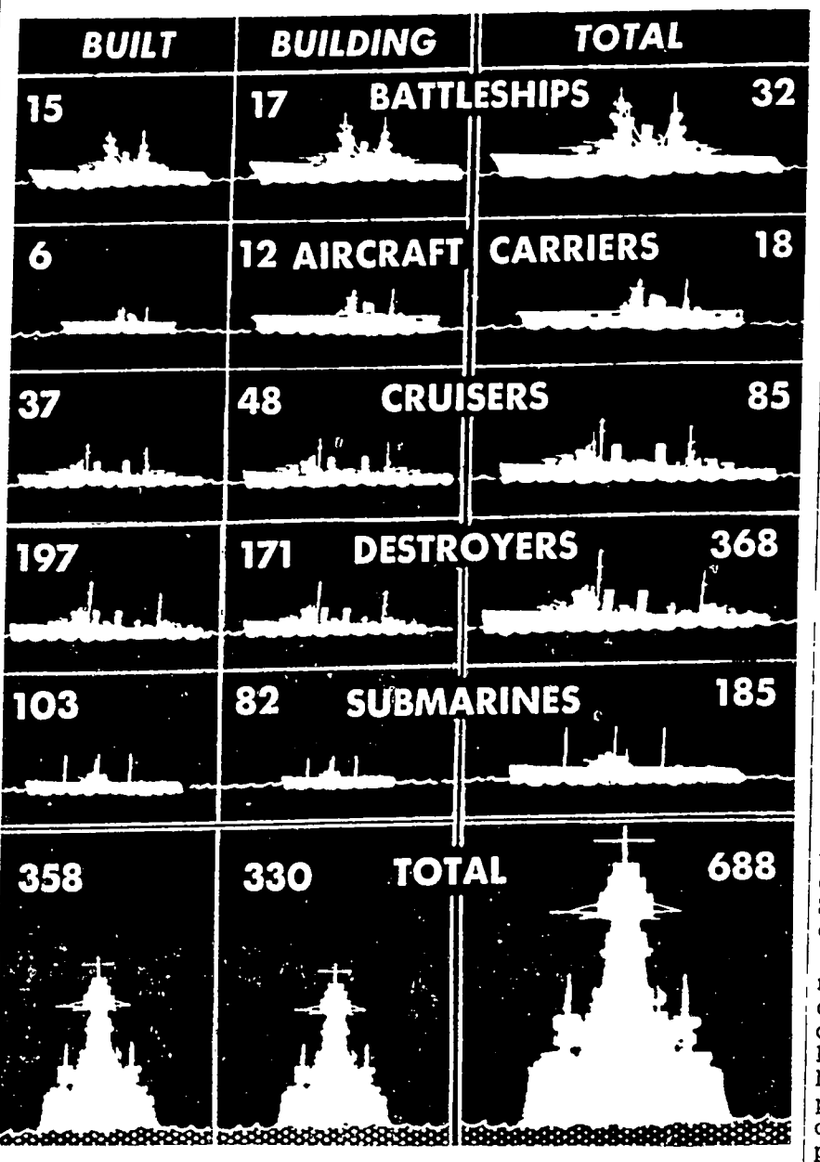
Despite these natural disadvantages, some parts of northwest Africa are becoming highly productive. In the north, the fertile lowlands of the Atlas mountains in Morocco and Algeria yield not only the olives, grapes, and citrus fruits of the Mediterranean basin but wheat and other grains.

Farther south, French West Africa is an important source of peanuts and palm oil. Peanuts, called "ground nuts" by the natives and Europeans, supply a valuable vegetable oil. They do not require irrigation.

In the grasslands of French West Africa, many experts believe there can be developed one of the most important farming areas of the future In portions where there is sufficient rainfall, experiments have indicated that cotton can be grown. In the drier areas, sheep and cattle already are being raised in quantities. If insects and livestock diseases can be brought under control, the herds may show marked improvement.

The grasslands merge into heavy tropical forests along the southern portion of the northwest African hump. There, as in French West Africa, the natives are proving adaptable to farm work In Liberia, Americans are supervising the development of rubber plantations. In British colonies, production of cocoa has become a leading business. The cacao trees, from which cocoa is obtained, grow well in the hot, damp regions, where there is no wind to blow down their heavy pods.

How U. S. Is Building a 'Super' Navy



The above chart shows graphically plans for increasing the U. S. fleet under present schedules. Because the naval front seems the most important current phase of the war already demands are being made in congress and among military leaders to speed up these schedules and make even more additions to the fleet. Protection of the sea lanes, to keep critical materials flowing to America from the Far East and to protect American shipping across the Atlantic to our Allies makes a strong navy a most vital factor in the war. Figures in "Built" column show vessels in use after the Jap blow at Pearl Harbor.

'All-Out' Industrial Effort Bolsters America's Front Lines

By WILLARD HOLMES

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week. That's the job for American industry to play its part winning the war against the Axis powers.

"Speed now is of the essence just as much in turning out things in plants as it is among the fighting forces," said President Roosevelt to the recent War Labor conference, where representatives of both labor and capital had gathered to work ways of speeding production.

Considered by many to be the most momentous meeting between these two groups in recent history, the conference was headed by William H. Davis, chairman of the National Defense Mediation board as moderator. Representing labor were both William Green, A. F. of L. president, and Philip Murray, head of C.I.O. Leading industrialists represented the interests of capital.

These leaders heard the President issue a "must" assignment. For truly this is a war of production. The assembly line then becomes an important line of the fight.

While these battle lines are strengthening how does America stack up on the front lines? What did we have when the war started and how fast are we getting what we need?

How Well Prepared?

Because war came to us so violently just as we were hitting our stride in defense materials production and because the future schedules look so much higher than what we actually have produced, the impression was felt in many quarters that we are not at all prepared.

While there are some gaps in many things between what we have and what we would like, the country is far from defenseless. The Knox report on the disaster at Pearl Harbor was bad, but it wasn't as bad as most people expected. We lost six warships and a large number of planes.

As far as the planes are concerned, the aviation industry is so geared that much of this loss has already been replaced by new production. With respect to the warships, the fact is that in every category except cruisers on hand the navy shows a superiority over Japan. Being the industrial nation that we are, this margin can be expected to increase over the period of a long war. For we have the materials and means for production.

Stepped-Up Production.

While the ratio of expansion in American sea and air power is a military secret we can safely assume that it is much larger than anticipated over a year or even six months ago. Coupled with the drastic controls that come with war and with war's resultant national unity this expansion should really boom.

While it is too easy to forget that we are at war also with Germany and Italy in addition to Japan, sea power at present does seem to be the most important phase of the fighting.

Before the Pearl Harbor attack the United States had 17 battleships with 17 building and due for launching in the next three years. Twelve air-craft carriers were being built and six were in use. Thirty-seven cruisers were in service and 48 were on the way. In lighter vessels the line-up was this: 171 destroyers being used, 197 being built; submarines, 103 in fighting trim and 82 under construction. Subtract from this the battleship Arizona, the target ship Utah, three destroyers and a mine layer, lost at Pearl Harbor and you have the front line of defense.

This force was buttressed by about 5,000 navy planes, with about 10,000 more on the way. Though the army air corps has not released figures on the number of planes it has in use, the numbers are being increased each week—especially in heavy bombers, medium bombers and dive bombers—possibly the deciding factors in this war.

Army's Strength.

What of the army in addition to its flying force? As 1942 dawns there is a personnel of about 1,600,000 officers and men. Roughly half of these are selectees, 400,000 are National Guardsmen and the rest regulars. But this is just the beginning. Already selective service has a pool of about 1,000,000 Class A men available for immediate call. Enlistments boomed at a terrific pace following the declarations of war.

With the extension of the age limits for draftees another three or four million men will be immediately available without lowering physical or dependency standards. Plans for tapping this huge supply of manpower are already worked out.

Just as important as a good reserve of manpower in modern warfare is the organization of strong striking units. The army is known to have five divisions comprising its armored force. This unit is composed of tanks and men who know how to handle them. Fifty battalions of tank destroyers, parachute troops and other specialized units to meet Panzer and blitzkrieg tactics have been and are being trained in great numbers. Even this will be speeded up under the impetus of war. Doubling and even tripling of schedule is anticipated

Electricity Now Lights One of Three U. S. Farms

Nearly 1,400,000 of the nation's farms have substituted electric lights for the traditional oil lamp in the past 6½ years, according to a report by the department of agriculture. This brings the total to more than 2,000,000 electrified farms out of a total of over 6,000,000 farms in the nation.

This report, prepared by the Rural Electrification administration, is compiled from various sources, including the REA estimate of unelectrified farms required to be made each year under the terms of the R. E. act of 1936.

The actual number of farms receiving central station electric service, from private power companies, REA systems and all other sources is 2,126,150, according to the REA estimate, as against 743,954 on January 1, 1935, the year in which REA was established. Today, 34.9 per cent of the nation's farms are electrified. In 1935, only 10.9 per cent had such service.

MONEY CONTROL

Money — capital — is headed for early, far-reaching controls by the U. S. government. Those controls will be much different from those employed in World War I.

So far, practically every other phase of U. S. economy has been marshalled to the defense of the nation. But because there has been no immediate shortage of money as such, capital has been left alone. This will be changed in the near future.

A significant hint of what is in the offing was contained in a recent little-noticed speech in Detroit by Ganson Purcell, crack young member of the Securities and Exchange commission. This is the outline of the control program under consideration in inner defense circles:

There will be no private capital issues committees in various cities as in the last war. Instead, there will be a single inter-departmental committee composed of treasury, SEC, RFC, Federal Reserve and other U. S. financial officials.

Object of this committee will be not to prevent the investment of capital in stocks and bonds of non-defense projects (because priorities lists make such investments useless), but to "patrol" the financial practices of corporations so as to direct as much of their earnings as possible into the defense program.

For example: A ceiling may be put on corporation salaries in order to compel firms to build up reserves and prevent officers from offsetting personal income taxes by boosting their pay checks.

Ceilings also may be put on dividends so that defense profits above a "reasonable" limit would be available for additional defense plant expansion or the purchase of government bonds to finance the war. Also, such reserves may be needed after the war to enable corporations to readjust their affairs to peace-time production.

Problems of capital control are great and complex, but defense authorities consider them vitally essential. Prior to the sudden outbreak of the Japanese conflict, the subject had been under quiet consideration for some time and tentative plans had been mapped out. With the nation engaged in war and confronted with the necessity of at least tripling previous defense appropriations, the regulation of capital becomes an urgently immediate requirement.

Every business man, banker and broker may expect early government action.

'POLITICAL TRUCE'??

Democratic chiefs may be reading a lot more into the wartime "political truce" with the GOP than actually is warranted.

If the Democrats figure that the exchange of cordial telegrams between Democratic National Chairman Ed Flynn and Republican National Chairman Joe Martin mean the G.O.P. will abandon plans for a vigorous 1942 campaign, they've got another think coming.

Martin has no thought of laying off campaign activity. He considers that his reply to Flynn means only cessation of partisanship in congressional consideration of administration measures to wage the war. That is the sole extent of the "political truce."

In fact, behind the scenes, Martin already is busy putting both the national committee and the Republican congressional campaign committee in shape for a knock-down fight against the Democrats next year.

Martin's objective is to capture the house and strengthen the G.O.P. in the senate as the foundation stone for a Republican presidential victory in 1944.

Until recently, Martin's ambitious plans were sorely handicapped by lack of funds. But this problem has been solved by two angels who have come to his financial rescue—Pennsylvania oil millionaire Joseph Pew and Pennsylvania steel millionaire Ernest T. Weir. They have agreed to fork over personally, and also to obtain other contributions.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

¶ Insiders are crediting Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt with an important victory in the appointment of Watson B. THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma—

Well I have done a lot of kidding and squawking in my letters but I gess that is all over now. After what them double crossing Japs did there is no longer no funny side to this training and all I want to do is get a crack at them. All the boys feel the same way. Up to the time they heard about them Japs stabbing Uncle Sam in the back under a flag of truce I gess they all felt the same as me that the war was too far away to bother much and that this army training was a pain in the neck. But it woke us all up like no bugle ever did.

I kind of felt that nobody wood ever tackle this country on account of we got two big oceans to depend on and all that and I gess I never sweated in a manoover without saying to myself this is the bunk as Hitler wood be crazy to get more trouble on his hands. I never thought that Japan would be even crazier. I hated the hikes, I hated the drills and inspeckshuns and I could not bathe a new crop of corns without burning up inside. But all of a sudden I feel different. Even my bunions seem patriotic now.

It's the same way all through my outfit. Jeeps who have been squawking eight hours a day look like they become fighting men over night. They know it is not all a lot of foolishness no more and any boy in camp will attack a tank single handed now if you just tell him there is a Japanese doll inside.

As for me personally ma I got a clear picture of what the country is up against for the first time and I wonder now that I did not get the right slant long before this. I gess it was just because I got snatched so sudden from all the comforts of civilun life that I didn't see straight. I was soar over giving up a box spring mattress, a personal alarm clock and the right to do what I pleased. But Emperor Hotsy-Togo or whatever you call him woke me up like nobody's business. I am so soar now that I am sorry I ever applauded Japanese tightrope walkers.

This war has all of a sudden become a great exciting show, ma. It don't seem just like a optical allusion no more. All the tanks don't seem like they was just a few things being demonstrated by a auto salesman. My rifle witch has just seemed something I wood like to have carried for me by a caddy has all of a sudden become my BUDDY! It's real and human. And my uniform even when it is wet and wrinkled now looks like the grandest uniform anybody could ever climb into. What has come over me I don't know for sure but I credit the Mikadoo with an assist.

I gess you will have to forget about me being home for Christmas. But I know what kind of a mother you are and I gess you feel just like I do about what has happened. I have done a lot of wise cracking about being leased or lent but I don't care where they use me now, so long as it is where I can take a sock at the world's worst enemies of today, the double-talk nations witch jab a knife in your kidney while asking what you want for Christmas.

Well, I must close now. Do not worry. Everything will come out all right with the old Stars and Stripes on top.

Your loving son,

Oscar.

P. S.—I serpose pop is trying to get into the army again now. Tell him to forget it and stay home and look out for you as I will do enough fighting for all three of us.

THOUGHT ON FOOD

It is the sad, unlucky fate
Of some to have a diet;
Each time they hear a friend's lost weight
They ask him how, and try it.

And yet, however fond and fair
Their hopes at the beginning,
They almost always find that they're

History in the News

That 'Brave Engineer'

FOUR o'clock of a November morning in the year 1941. North of the little town of Vaughan, Miss., the Panama Limited, crack train of the Illinois Central, slows down, then comes to a stop at a switch. Down from the observation platform on the rear car steps a little group of men. They are members of the American Railway Magazine Editors' association, en route to New Orleans, for their annual meeting.

A moment later they are joined by a few passengers rubbing the sleep from their eyes. They group themselves across the roadbed, around the V-shaped switch. Then

Come, all you Rounders, I want you to hear
The story of a brave engineer;
Casey Jones was the Rounder's name.
On a high right-wheeler, he rode to fame.

Caller called Casey about half past four;
He kissed his wife at the station door,
Climbed into the cab with orders in his hand,
Saying, "This is my trip to the Holy Land."

Through South Memphis yards on the fly,
He heard the fireman say, "You got a white eye."
All the switchmen knew by the engine's moans,
That the man at the throttle was Casey Jones.

It had been raining some five or six weeks;
The railroad track was like the bed of a creek;
They slowed him down to a thirty-mile gait—
Threw the southbound mail about eight hours late.

Fireman says, "Casey, you're runnin' too fast
You over-ran that signal the last station we passed."
Casey says, "Yes, I believe we'll make it though,
For she steams a lot better than ever I know."

Casey says, "Fireman, don't you fret,
Keep knockin' at that fire-door, don't give up yet.
I'm going to run her till she leaves the rail.
Or make it on time with the southbound mail"

Around the curve and a-down the dump,
Two locomotives were bound to bump.
Fireman hollered, "Casey, it's just ahead!
We might jump and make it, but we'll all be dead!"

Around the curve he spied a passenger train.
Rousing his engine, he caused the bell to ring.
He's a good engineer—but he's dead and gone.

For he stuck to his duty both day and night.
They loved to hear the whistle of ole Number Three
As he rolled into Memphis on the ole I. C.

Headaches and heartaches and all kinds of pain—
They ain't apart from a railroad train.
Stories of brave men—noble and gran'—
Belong to the life of a railroad man.

Their song ended, they climb back on the "Panama," which is soon hurtling through the misty dawn toward New Orleans.

And thus it was that, 40 years later and on the scene of his death, tribute was paid to that "brave engineer," Casey Jones, who died in a wreck on the morning of April 30, 1900. An engineer in the passenger service of the Illinois Central between Jackson, Tenn., and Canton, Miss., he went out on another man's run and made up an hour and a half's lost time on a three-hour dash of 174 miles. His engine crashed into the caboose of a freight train that had just failed to clear the main line at the "north switch" near Vaughan and "Casey" Jones became a folksong hero.

Born in Hickman, Ky., on March 14, 1864, John L. Jones gained his famous nickname from the fact that at one time in his youth he had lived in the town of Cayce, Ky. (pronounced "Kay-see"). When he applied for his first railroad job he gave Cayce as his home town and during his six years in train and engine service on the Mobile and Ohio, it was natural that his fellow-workers should call him "Casey" Jones. He entered the service of the Illinois Central as a fireman in March, 1888, and was promoted to engineer in February, 1890.

SPEED REPAIRS OF MACHINERY

Quick Action Will Protect Farmer Against Shortages.

By C. B. RICHEY
(Agricultural Engineer, Ohio State University.)

Farmers who immediately take measures to protect themselves against any possible shortages in machinery or repair parts will save themselves and their neighbors money and trouble.

The first step in this preparedness campaign is the inspection of all machinery and equipment to find broken or worn parts that are likely to fail the next time the machine is used. Some farm machinery will have to be partially dismantled before the amount of wear and tear on parts can be determined.

If repair parts are needed, labor can be saved by leaving the machine torn down until the parts are obtained. However, bolts, washers, keys, and other small parts of the machine should be placed in a container so they can not be lost during the period of waiting.

The second step in getting the machines ready for 1942 is to order needed parts immediately. This should be done whether or not the dealer says they are available. Back logs of orders for parts in the manufacturers' files are powerful arguments in getting supplies of materials for filling the orders.

While the machines are being inspected, all loose nuts and other minor lacks of adjustment should be corrected. Excessive vibration of machinery in operation decreases its efficiency and increases chances of breakage. Lock washers help keep nuts from working loose.

Good Farm Pasture Will Aid Uncle Sam

Good farm pastures will become as vital as munitions factories in Uncle Sam's war program as the demand for more meat and dairy products increases in months to come.

"The farmer's surest recipe for meeting this demand for food for our armed forces and our allies, lies in undertaking an intelligent program of pasture improvement that will insure him a good stand of legumes and grasses," says a statement of the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. "To accomplish this it is important, first of all, that the soil's productivity be built up by the use of fertilizer containing phosphorus and potash.

"Whether the crop is good or poor will be determined by the presence or absence of plant food. Thus it is important to have the soil tested to determine whether it is adequately supplied with the necessary elements.

"Agronomists at state colleges or county agents are prepared to cooperate in making these tests and likewise in providing recommendations covering the use of fertilizers on pasture crops in a rotation."

Soil Erosion Called A 'Fifth Columnist'

No "fifth columnist" ever worked more quietly than does soil erosion on a farm, but one difference is that evidences of soil erosion are easily seen. Every muddy stream that comes down the hill after a rain is a warning that somewhere on higher ground the soil has been loosened and is being carried away.

So says Prof. Paul Hoff of the department of agricultural engineering at Cornell university. As to the objection of some farm operators who know they have an erosion problem but can't find time or labor to correct it, he says:

"Soil erosion cannot be solved overnight; nor does it require a lot of work during the busy cropping season. A soil conservation program on any farm usually covers several years.

"On most central New York farms, for example, such a program consists of rearranging the fields into long narrow strips that are level from end to end. Sometimes one or more diversion terraces are needed to protect the strip-cropped slopes from unusually heavy rains or rapid spring thaws. The level rows of cultivated crops and strips of sod help to hold the soil and water."

During the past few years, about 2,000 farmers in New York state have installed strip-cropping systems on their farms.

Guarding Machinery

Because of the national war emergency program is expected to make it increasingly difficult to obtain new machinery and repair parts, it is suggested that farmers keep their implements in good shape.

Farmers can prolong the life of their machinery by observing the following rules: 1—Store implements in a dry place, 2—Overhaul machinery periodically, 3—Keep equipment in good adjustment, 4—Protect wood surfaces with paint.

Learn to Sew if Your Budget Is Limited—It's Fun, Too!

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS year the fashion picture is literally packed with drama. What with a whirl of midwinter festivities and gala occasions in full swing one is almost sure to yearn for more than the usual amount of clothes glamour. The good news is that, by making sewing your hobby, you can easily manage to have an enchanting array without suffering a single budget twinge.

Simply pick the pattern that measures up to your idea of a dream dress, get your material in hand and then dash off to your nearest local sewing center where expert help is cheerfully given in sewing short cuts and fashion tricks, at little or no expense.

Fabric counters are literally bubbling over with an endless display of smart, inexpensive rayon jerseys, tweedy weaves that tailor beautifully, gorgeous taffetas and moires that look twice as expensive as they really are; velveteens in alluring pastel and brilliant jewel-toned colors; handsome laces of every type from sheer to the new linen effects, which, for the most part, can be had for under a dollar a yard. This year a merry war is going on between traditional black-and-white and lush, ravishing colors like fuchsia, turquoise, black plum, alarm red, topaz, gold and beige, Kelly green and seafoam tones and tints.

For the twilight hour and its flattering candlelight, there's romantic elegance needed, and you will be equal to the occasion if you make a dinner dress which combines a long-sleeved, front-buttoned, long-torso basque top of black cotton lace with a shirred wide-spreading rayon moire skirt which repeats the black lace in a hip border inset after the manner of the gown which the figure seated in the foreground is wearing.

And again your evening splendor will be definitely established in a mist-blue jersey dress that molds and tapers to your form in draped and flowing lines like those of the gown shown to the right in the trio of evening modes pictured above. Drapery treatments are very important and are outstanding this season. They are ever so easy to manipulate, even for the inexperienced, with the aid of a new molded-to-you thermo-plastic dress form. With an exact reproduction of your figure before you, it requires no special gift to drape the folds of a material in a way that will most effectively dramatize your silhouette.

Gay and inexpensive materials make the luxurious looking dinner dress centered in the group above. There is style distinction reflected in the chrome yellow velveteen jacket that hangs with easy grace from broad-looking shoulders encrusted with importantly new embroidered motifs that are repeated on the pockets. This jacket would be lovely with a candle-slim forest green crepe floor-length skirt. Believe it or not, the embroidered motifs that so definitely enhance this jacket were stitched up in practically no time on a modern sewing machine, and the finished job looks for all the world like fine handwork.

The fashion suggestions above are destined to turn your "date" into a successful drama, and they will inspire repeat performances in the future.

White Fur

In keeping with the vogue for "winter white," this season, comes the prediction from furriers that snow white lamb will prove one of the most popular furs of the season. The young set is "rushing" the idea. It's a treat to the eye to see young girls wearing coats like the one pictured. These coats are strikingly new, and they top the now-so-modish white jersey "date" dresses to perfection.

Rain Now Calls for Gay Fashion Parade

Away with somber attire on a rainy day! No longer are leaden-cast skies, downpours of rain and muddy streets a sign that one must match the somberness of the scene with clothes equally depressing. According to the new theory, a rainy day is just the time to come out in bright array. In fact, rainy days are turning into cheerful events.

There are gay new capes, fitted coats and trench model coats, some in white, some in blue and, most exciting of all, those in bright red rainproof transparencies or processed cloth, if you prefer. You can get red or white boots to match.

There's style and charm, too, in the new processed black satin raincoats that are fashioned with smart details and given a glamour touch in that the newest out are fashioned with jeweled buttons.

Magazine Tells What the College Girl Is Wearing

According to a new women's magazine:

College co-eds are braiding their hair in "country cousin" style.

Earrings are being worn with the braids.

Sixty inch pearls worn on "Sloppy Joe" cardigans are "tops" everywhere.

Cowboy boots, plaid sweaters, lime yellow shirts, corduroy jackets, the "V" neck sweater and knee length argyle plaid socks also storm the American campus scene.

For the Young

Take yards and yards of bright red net. Fashion this into a full skirt. Top this with a snug-fitting bodice made of jersey in matching red. Outline the decolletage, sleeve edges and finish off the waistline with a single-row beading of sparkling red sequins.

Reindeer Farming In Alaska

Nearly all Americans are still close enough to pioneer conditions—if not in actuality, at least in spirit and heritage—to be interested in the development of the reindeer industry in Alaska.

The reindeer were imported into Alaska from Russia during the decade between 1891 and 1902. They were established on the Seward peninsula—about 1,300 of them—and from that beginning have been developed the present immense herds, numbering now approximately one million. The herds are distributed from Point Barrow in the north to Kodiak island on the south, and from the Bering sea inland to Ophir, with the heaviest population still on Seward peninsula.

The original purpose of the importation was to supply food for the Eskimos but the herds have been so successful that it is now possible to export reindeer products, the most important of which are meat and hides. Reindeer hides are delicate and pliable, and are much used for the manufacture of kid gloves and leather jackets. Of course they are also used where they are produced, for a variety of purposes such as the manufacture of boots, leggings, parkas, sleeping bags, mittens, socks and trousers.

FUTURE OF INDUSTRY

Various conditions tend toward stability of the reindeer industry in Alaska. For one thing, there are in that territory at least 200,000 square miles of grazing land which is particularly suited to raising reindeer. Further, when reindeer are slaughtered for market, there is practically no waste in the carcasses. Not only is the flesh, including heart, liver and tongue, good for human consumption, and the hide suited to the manufacture of many necessary articles of apparel, but even the antlers, bones, viscera and blood are used in the preparation of food for the dogs which are indispensable in that region and for the foxes raised on various fur farms.

Moreover, reindeer are of gentle disposition and easily handled. Except in the mating season, when the bucks become dangerous, it is possible to go freely among a reindeer herd, just as one would among beef or dairy cattle. It has been said, by those familiar with them that "they flock together like sheep, graze more like cattle, and in intelligence and activity more nearly approach the horse." They become attached to any accustomed range and if moved away, will return to it. They are good swimmers; they graze on the wettest ground and, like the moose, will frequently wade out into a pond or lake to feed on aquatic plants.

REINDEER RANCHING

Many features common to the reindeer country remind the observer of the Old West. The reindeer are herded in much the same manner as were the cattle on the old western ranges, and are rounded up at intervals for marking or branding, for sorting, and for marketing.

APPEARANCE OF REINDEER

The reindeer pictured with Saint Nick have been considerably idealized, running mostly to slim legs and branching antlers. Actually, the reindeer, which is a domesticated caribou, although symmetrically built gives an impression of stockiness. In color reindeer are brown and gray, with head and legs dark and with a white mane. Individual animals vary somewhat from this pattern and may even be all white or spotted. The average full-grown reindeer stands from 42 to 44 inches high. The average dressed weight is about 150 pounds, infrequently increasing to 200. Both the males and the females bear antlers which are grown and shed each year.

CALL OF THE WILD

For young men and women with the blood of pioneers in their veins, with good health, and with a willingness to endure the cold of the Arctic and sub-Arctic regions, reindeer ranching in Alaska has great attraction and promises reasonable returns. At the present time, the reindeer rancher does not have to depend entirely upon experience to learn how to manage his herd. A Reindeer Experiment Station was established at College, Alaska, in 1928 and substations are maintained at Nome on Nunivak island in the Bering sea.

THE FEATHERED FRIENDS AND HUMAN HELP

With the heavy snows of Christmas night and New Year's Day covering the ground, the birds are finding it difficult to search out weed seeds and other food so necessary to sustain life in their tiny bodies.

Bird lovers are now feeding by clearing away a patch of snow on the lawn and by hanging suet and fat on tree branches, by placing crumbs and seeds in feeding platforms near a convenient kitchen window.

The birds soon discover their source of food supply and every day an increased number of birds will be attracted to the feeding for them.

A handful of gravel placed near the food will also be appreciated by the birds. They need gravel to digest their food.

It has also been suggested that Christmas trees can continue to serve after being discarded from the home. Put your tree in some sheltered nook in your yard and put a bit of suet on the branches. It makes an appreciated shelter for the birds.

KLEMME LADY FEEDS BIRDS AND SQUIRRELS

Miss Anna Gibbs is a nature lover and the back yard of her home is a wild life refuge.

Not only does Miss Gibbs maintain feeding places for the birds, but she also provides nuts for the squirrels in her neighborhood. To date Miss Gibbs has fed the squirrels over a bushel of walnuts! Even though it is somewhat expensive, Miss Gibbs says she will continue to feed the squirrels all the nuts they want.

Miss Gibbs is kind to the wild life around her yard, but she also plays jokes. She discovered that Bluejays like peanuts. That gave her an idea. She nailed some peanuts to a board and then watched to see the fun. The Bluejays put up an awful "ruckus" and scolded about the dirty deal!

Anyway, Bluejays and Starlings are undesirable birds.

PRESSURE OF WAR WILL SOON BE FELT

Many folks in Iowa and the other central west states do not yet seem to take the war seriously.

They feel rather secure out here and haven't got very excited about attacks on shipping along the Pacific coast. It just can't happen out here they seem to think. The blackouts in California seem like fairy tales.

But we should be thankful that we do live out where where an attack from the enemy is not very likely to happen.

And that is the more reason why we should buy Defense Stamps and Bonds. It means further protection for all of us. We should give of our time and money to the Red Cross, give until it hurts if necessary.

Within the past few days we are really beginning to feel the pressure of war. Today we cannot buy automobile tires as Uncle Sam needs every pound of available rubber for the fighting forces. Japan has shut off our supply from the Far East.

New automobiles will be a thing of the past as the automotive industry will turn out war materials. Privately owned cars may be confiscated if they are needed by the army.

We Americans are going to get along without some of the luxuries we have been accustomed to, but we can take it if it will help our boys win the war.

WE CAN USE SOME OLD TIME WEATHER FORECASTERS

What has become of the old-time weather forecaster?

We can no longer twist the dial on our radio set to learn what the weather will be tomorrow or the next day. We could use some of those old pioneers who predicted the weather according to certain signs of nature and by knowing all about the moon. Old fashioned weather predicting is a thing of the past, but it would come in useful now.

SAFETY JINGLE TO START OFF THE NEW YEAR

An interesting little jingle is going the rounds of papers which are continually preaching the gospel of safety on the highways. It can be included in your New Year list of better driving hints. Here it is:

Ten Little Motorists, driving in line, one tried to pass the rest, then there were nine.

Nine Little Motorists, sadly I relate, one jumped a traffic light, then there were eight.

Eight Little Motorist, young and not so deft, one tried to show his skill, and seven were left.

Seven Little Motorists, touring in the sticks, one failed to dim his lights, and then there were six.

Six Little Motorists, very much alive, one did not see a train, then there were five.

Five Little Motorists, speeding to the shore, one skidded in the rain, then there were four.

Four Little Motorists, coming from a tea, one faced about to chat, then there were three.

Three Little Motorists, this is sad but true, one slumbered from fatigue, then there were two.

Two Little Motorists, racing just for fun, one passed upon a crest, then there was but one.

One Little Motorist, though it's seldom done, lit a match to gauge his tank, now there are none!

TRIPLE WEDDING

Thirty-two years ago, the Rev. William H Spence, of "One Foot In Heaven" fame, performed a triple wedding in Clarion. The three couples, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Mill, Mr and Mrs. Albert Thompson and Mr and Mrs. G. E. Lindsay, all living around Clarion, expect to celebrate their 32nd anniversary together this year.

CAUGHT

Frank Mettille of Waukon was injured when a car that had been blocked up toppled over and pinned him between it and the one on which he was working. Mettille received several broken ribs, a broken collar bone and bruises.

AT WORK

Decorah residents wonder where the beavers came from that are at work in that neighborhood. It is very uncommon for beavers to make their homes in that vicinity. They have felled several trees and dragged them down to the bank of the Upper Iowa river and floated them to the spot where they wish them deposited for their winter home.

PATRIOTISM

Mary K. Rhinehart, 14 year old girl of Des Moines, is putting her money to good use now by buying defense bonds. Part of the money she has earned by tap-dancing and some by saving nickels. The nickels have been saved from lunch money over a period of 3 years.

Fifty hunters were the cause of the death of 90 jackrabbits near Hawarden one day recently. The rabbits were sold with the proceeds going to the Boy Scout organization.

It is estimated that approximately 40,000 turkeys have been raised within a five mile radius of Redding during the past season. One of the men, W. E. Hiatt, raised 7,000 birds.

SMOKE BUT NO FIRE

Police Chief Glen Bell of Grinnell found what he thought was a box containing some merchandise dropped from a truck. As he approached it, smoke began pouring from it, whereupon he rushed forward to save the "contents." Then he heard a violent coughing and a small boy's voice. Turning the box over, Bell discovered two small boys and one big black cigar. The two boys, somewhat sick and pale about the eyes, left for home after a lecture from the police chief.

NEW HOME

Two months ago a pigeon stopped at the Will Stutt home near Monticello. This in itself was not extraordinary, but when the Stutts found that the bird was not associating with other pigeons, they then caught it. They have notified the authorities of the discovery of a "lost" carrier pigeon, designating the number on the banded leg of the bird.

SPECIAL REQUEST

J. B. Dunn of near Grundy Center has requested for his auto license number, 1860. This is the year of his birth and he claims he has no trouble in remembering this date but has some difficulty remembering other numbers. He is 82 years old.

There are few better methods to save money on farm machinery than to give each piece of equipment a complete overhauling and repairing during the "slack" winter months. This practice may also avert a bottleneck in the rushed summer months when needed repairs may not be available.

ORCHIDS TO YOU

Wright's Greenhouse in Waverly has in its possession more than 5,000 orchid plants. They claim that it is the largest in the middle-west because "it's the only one." An orchid undergoes a number of transplantings before it is ready for sale at a retail price of $3.50 to $5.00.

EYE HURT

While watching another pupil work at a lathe, a piece of wood flew up striking Don Wilson, of Grinnell above one eye. He will soon undergo an operation on the injured eye.

COINCIDENCE

O. D. Ellsworth of Adel received in the same mail two Christmas greeting cards. The cards were of the same type, with the same greeting, in the same kind of envelope and were postmarked on the same day. The original postmark, however, was different, one was from Columbus, Mississippi, and the other from Columbus, Wisconsin.

Steam Whistles

Mrs. Ralph Morse of Manly was burned by escaping steam when a spout flew off a whistling tea kettle.

Service As Usual

A large audience heard the Rev. H. W. Faris of Belmond deliver his Christmas message. Rev. Faris had been ill for several days and was unable to present his sermon in person. A loud speaking system enabled him to speak to his congregation though he was confined to his bed.

Keeping Up With The News

ANOTHER "THANK YOU" LETTER

The Editor is in receipt of a nice letter this morning from Pvt. Graydon Back who is attached to the Army Air Corps and is taking special mechanical training at Kansas City.

Graydon was "swamped" with mail at Christmas and says it is impossible to answer all who sent him cards, letters and packages, so takes this means of saying to all "Thank You."

KLEMME AND GARNER FARMERS WIN YIELD CONTEST

Harry Meyer of Garner is the winner of the Hancock County 10-acre yield contest having produced in his 12 acre field an average of 109.79 bushels per acre.

This yield contest varies from an acre contest due to the fact that it is necessary that at least 10 different checks must be made, in average acres of the field.

This contest was sponsored by North Corn Belt Seed Growers who will present Mr and Mrs. Meyers with a 12 service chest of silverware. The Meyers farm is in Ell township.

The yield was produced with a mixture of Pfister varieties of 366 and 260, the corn planted 3' 4" x 3' 4"

The second place winner of this contest was won by C. A. Larsen of Klemme, whose farm is in Liberty township. Mr. and Mrs Larsen will be presented with an 8 service chest of silverware

Nutrition in Foodstuffs Is Subject of Research

With the second unit of the new federal nutritions laboratory at Cornell university in Ithaca, N. Y., now under construction, one of the most comprehensive research projects destined to step up the nutritional values of foodstuffs and improve human well-being will be started this year.

An appropriation has been made available for three laboratories and greenhouses on the campus. In these experimental buildings the department of agriculture will center investigations extending throughout the nation.

Prof. L. A. Maynard, head of the department of animal nutrition at Cornell and long recognized as one of the outstanding authorities in the research fields, has been appointed director of the laboratory. He will work in conjunction with Dr. E. C. Auchter, chief of the federal bureau of plant industry.

The research program will attempt to inject a new note into the production of foodstuffs for animals and man. One of the early steps will be a survey of mineral resources in the soils of the United States—not the minerals that are used as precious metals of industrial materials—but the vital elements that human beings must get from foods, which in turn obtain them from the soil.

One of the objectives of the program is to determine the exact amount of the mineral necessary for the improvement of the plant life, and consequently the animal.

Ancient Indian Mummies Found in Arizona Cave

Three perfectly preserved mummies, complete with the feathered robes and trappings in which they were interred during the Thirteenth century, have been discovered in northern Arizona by University of Arizona scientists.

Headed by Dr. Emil Haury, of the university staff, a party made the discovery in virtually unexplored regions in the northeastern section of the state while searching for evidence and remnants of the great Pueblo culture of 700 years ago.

The mummies were found in a holy shrine called the Painted Cave, apparently a place of worship for the Pueblo tribesmen.

The bodies—one of a woman and two of children—were wrapped in robes of turkey feathers and ornately colored blankets.

Despite the fact that the mummies were almost seven centuries old, Dr. Haury said that some of the feathered robes "were almost perfectly preserved." One, he said, still was soft and silky to touch.

The walls of the cave were covered with designs and drawings representing Indian conceptions of their gods and real-life scenes. Dr. Haury said the Pueblos painted the pictures with their fingers, using a paint made of desert plants and roots.

The mummies were surrounded by bowls of corn, other food and jars which apparently once contained water, interred to help them on their long journey to the "happy hunting ground."

Livingstone Memorial

A marble slab on the tomb of David Livingstone, the explorer, bears the following inscription:

"Brought by faithful hands over land and sea, here rests David Livingstone, Missionary, Traveler, Philanthropist. Born March 19, at Blantyre, Lanarkshire. Died May 4, 1873, at Chitambo's Village, Ilala. For thirty years his life was spent in an unwearied effort to evangelize the native races, to explore the undiscovered secrets and abolish the desolating slave trade of central Africa, where with his last words he wrote: 'All I can say in my solitude is, May Heaven's rich blessing come down on every one—American, English or Turk—who will help to heal this open sore of the world.'"

History of Wrought Iron

Wrought-iron hardware continues to find a place in the modern home. First used in the East in Colonial homes, the earlier designs were wrought by English craftsmen. As a result, hinges, door handles, and other metal which went into the home reflected the English tradition. In Florida and the Southwest the Spanish influence was noticeable, and wrought-iron designs had different characteristics. Either of these Colonial designs may be used in modern homes where they harmonize with English or Spanish precedent. The two types should not be confused by the home owner. When properly related, wrought-iron hardware adds interesting detail to the home.

College Clothes Auction

If a Radcliffe college of Cambridge, Mass., student has to watch her pennies, she can outfit herself at a cost of 63 cents. Miss Rose Yarmudian, director of the school's lost and found department, reports that at a recent auction students bought a hat for 10 cents, a dress for a quarter, a pair of stockings for eight cents, shoes for 15 cents and gloves for five cents. For another dollar the lost and found department supplied them with an evening wrap and bag, a regular pocketbook, a sports outfit, a raincoat and overshoes. Three times a year an auction is held of all things lost on the campus and not claimed.

Paul Bunyan Enthusiast Tells of 'Double Winter'

A severe cold wave, driving down from the Arctic, had dropped the temperature to 30 degrees below zero.

"Bathin' weather," the old-timer sneered.

He cocked his feet on the stove rail and inquired:

"Ever hear about Paul Bunyan and the Year-of-the-Two-Winters?"

And then, over the crackle of the fire, he told of a winter so cold that the snow turned blue.

The tale is only one of many that compose the legend of the mythical Paul Bunyan.

According to old timers:

Bunyan built Lake Huron as a corral for milk whales when he learned whales were mammals.

He started the Mississippi river by emptying a pan of dishwater.

He built a fire under a lake in which he had dumped a carload of peas and a herd of oxen, and made pea soup for his logging crew (He brought a paddle-wheel steamer from New Orleans to cruise around the lake and stir the soup)

He brought the Swedes to Minnesota after selling the state to the king of Sweden

And went through the longest, coldest winter ever heard of.

It was so cold the snow turned blue, and it grew progressively colder until next fall, when winter set in again.

Loggers in Paul Bunyan's day grew beards to protect their faces, and the beards grew to tremendous lengths.

"Some of the boys had the ends of 'em knitted into socks," the old-timer said.

A low-lying cloud bank was swiftly converted into a mountain of solid ice. That was the first of the glaciers.

The mercury in Bunyan's thermometer dropped so low it was three years climbing back to zero. Snow fell so heavily that Paul had to dig down to find the forests, and loggers were lowered on ropes to fell the trees.

"It was so cold," the old-timer said, "the wind froze up in sheets."

Bunyan then had it sawed and stored in chunks for summer.

U. S. Has 'Brain Jitters,' Says Mental Specialist

One out of every ten persons in the United States either has been, is or will be at least slightly unbalanced mentally, in the opinion of Dr. F. H. Zimmerman, veteran superintendent of the Colorado State Hospital for Insane.

The fast pace of modern life and mental strain during a decade of economic depression has given the nation "brain jitters," Dr. Zimmerman declared.

Dr. Zimmerman blamed "the efficiency of modern medicine" for part of the upswing in insanity.

"Life expectancy has been increased in this country from 40 years to a new world high of 60 years," he said. "Insanity is more frequent as humanity grows older."

Latest national statistics, Dr. Zimmerman said, show that the pace of life in the nation's capital apparently is hardest on the mind. The national average of persons confined in state mental hospitals, he said, is 288 for 100,000. Washington, D. C., tops the nation with 849 for 100,000 and West Virginia, near-by, is lowest with 168.

Intelligence or Looks?

Being intelligent is fine for the co-ed who wants to get good grades, but it won't help her get her man, according to tests in popularity conducted by psychology students at Arizona State college. Instead, the tests revealed, she should develop herself in the art of entertainment if she expects to gain a man's affections. The tests, conducted in a class of more than 50 students, showed that ability to entertain was the most sought-for trait not only in women but in men as well. Dr. John J. Harton, head of the psychology department, said the most amazing part of the survey was not that ability in entertainment was found to be the most desirable quality but that intelligence was ranked as the least important trait in the list of eight. As far as men were concerned, a woman's physical appearance was an all-important factor.

Another Arizona 'Ghost' City

Clemenceau, Arizona's last hope for rebirth as an important center of the nation's copper industry recently vanished and the community appears destined to join the ranks of Arizona's "ghost" cities. The decision that seemingly spelled ultimate abandonment of this mining community was told in a few brief words—that the $5,000,000 copper smelter would be dismantled. Clemenceau sprang into existence when the price of copper shot upward in 1917. Around the smelter chimney, a moderately thriving community grew up.

When times were good, the population included more than 1,000 workers.

Two years ago the plant was ordered shut down and since that time, many of the workers have refused to leave, existing the best they could and awaiting the signal that would start the furnaces again.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Asta, famous canine of "The Thin Man" series, has a plaque all his own, to hang in his dog house. It was awarded by the McKinley Kennel club of Canton, Ohio, for "outstanding service to canine friends and the work he has done to gain appreciation for all dogdom." The perfect retort from all the rest of dogdom is, of course, that few dogs belong to people like Myrna Loy.

Nelson Eddy has co-starred with Jeanette MacDonald in eight films, but only recently found out what she really looked like. During the filming of their recent picture, "I Married an Angel," he asked if he might model a head of her. "You never know what a person looks like till you paint or model that person," said he. Seems that her jaw line wasn't as he'd remembered it, and her eyes were set differently. Said she, "He knows what I look like now! He peered at me so much and so long that I was embarrassed."

Charles Laughton sort of startles the onlookers nowadays when he shows up for that radio program he's doing with Milton Berle. He looks like a Forty-niner, with an inch-long beard and a month's growth of hair—both required for his role in RKO's "Tuttles of Tahiti." Incidentally, if Laughton goes on making pictures he'll be an expert dancer; he learned the conga for "It Started With Eve," and the hula for this new picture; he did the hula recently at a broadcast rehearsal, with Shirley Ross playing "Aloha Oe" on the piano.

Invite the Club—Serve Apple-Banana Rings
(See Recipes Below)

Dessert Parties

"Come over for dessert" has become one of the most popular ways of entertaining at luncheon or afternoon meetings of bridge or sewing clubs. Your guests will take a light snack at home and come over to your home for dessert only. Easy? Yes, and a very successful way of starting out your afternoon. So, take out your best recipes for dessert and let's go:

Whatever you have must be attractive, so bring out your nicest dessert plates and doilies. First idea on our list today are these broiled Banana-Apple Rings which will polka-dot your table in dessert perfection:

Broiled Banana-Apple Rings.
(Serves 6)

1 cup sugar
½ cup water
2 apples, unpeeled
3 firm bananas
Melted butter
Salt
Cinnamon

Bring sugar and water to a boil and cook until sugar is dissolved. Core apples and cut crosswise into three thick slices. Add to syrup and cook until tender, but firm. Remove from syrup and place on a broiler rack or pan. Cover apple slices with overlapping slices of bananas which have been peeled and sliced thin. Brush with butter and sprinkle with salt and cinnamon. Broil about 10 minutes or until bananas are brown and tender, easily pierced with a fork. Serve hot with sweetened, whipped cream.

To make your dessert party a double success, serve:

Banana Oatmeal Cookies.
(Makes 3½ dozen)

1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
¾ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup mashed bananas (2 or 3 bananas)
1¾ cup rolled oats
½ cup chopped nutmeats

Sift together flour, soda, salt and spices. Add sugar gradually to shortening and cream well. Add egg and beat well. Add bananas, rolled oats and nutmeats and mix thoroughly. Add flour mixture and blend. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto an ungreased cookie sheet about 1½ inches apart. Bake in a moderately hot oven about 15 minutes. Remove from pans at once.

Simply elegant will be your guests' or family's verdict when you serve an ambrosial concoction so easy to make, it's no trick at all. Here's a dessert that proves you don't have to spend hours of cooking and baking to get a first-rate dessert:

Krispie Cream Roll.
(Serves 10)

1½ cups whipping cream
8 marshmallows
¼ cup honey
½ cup chopped dates
¼ cup chopped nutmeats
3½ cups oven-popped rice cereal

Whip cream until stiff, reserving ¾ cup. Cut marshmallows into small pieces, adding them to cream. Add honey, dates and nutmeats. Roll rice cereal into fine crumbs and add 1 cup of crumbs to cream mixture. Blend well. Spread remaining crumbs evenly on a piece of waxed paper and place cream mixture on top. Mold into a roll and chill for several hours. Slice and serve garnished with remaining whipped cream, chopped nutmeats or fruit slices or berries.

No list of dessert tempters for parties is complete without super-smooth, delectable ice-box cake. Made with orange flavoring the ice-box cake can be truly provocative in both flavor and appearance and still be easy on the waistlines of your diet-conscious friends:

Orange Ice-Box Cake.
(Serves 8.)

1 tablespoon gelatine
3 tablespoons cold water
2 cups milk or 1 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1 cup water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
¼ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
2 dozen lady fingers

Soak gelatine in cold water. Scald the milk in a double boiler, mix cornstarch and sugar, and add to hot milk. Add the eggs slightly beaten, combined with cold milk. Cook several minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from fire and add gelatine. Add orange rind and juice. Line a mold with lady fingers, then fill with alternate layers of the cooked mixture and lady fingers. Have a layer of lady fingers on top. Chill in refrigerator overnight. Serve with whipped cream, garnished with orange sections.

Piquant peppermint adds a never-to-be-forgotten flavor to chocolate, and served in quaint tarts, here's a dessert that will mark you as a leader in your crowd:

Chocolate Mint Tarts.
(Serves 6)

2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1 cup water
¾ cup sugar
5 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts
6 baked tart shells
Sweetened whipped cream
½ cup crushed peppermint candy

Add chocolate to diluted milk in double boiler and heat until chocolate melts. Beat with rotary beater until chocolate is blended with milk. Combine sugar, flour and salt and add gradually to chocolate mixture. Cook until thick and smooth, about 15 minutes. Beat yolks and add to cooked mixture gradually. Cook two minutes longer. Remove from fire, add butter, vanilla and nuts. When cool, pour into tart shells. Top with whipped cream, mixed lightly with the crushed candy.

LYNN SAYS:

When planning your luncheon dessert parties, be sure to use this season's rich color schemes on your tables and favors and placecards. White with silver, gold, blue, red are tops right now.

If you like three color combinations, there's green, white and gold, blue, white and gold, or white, red and green.

For an elaborate color scheme use the rich tones of violet, emerald, gold, blue and red. This is especially good in a centerpiece.

Bridge placecards may be made out of paper chrysanthemums in your favorite color with the card tilting out of the flower. The white cards may also be decorated with painted flowers, or candy-shaped flowers pasted in the corner. Evergreen, holly, mistletoe, bright berries, pine cones, used alone or with a silver ornament such as a bell on the place card are sure to bring delighted murmurs from your bridge guests.

THE INFANCY AND BOYHOOD OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:25-35, 39, 40.
GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.—Luke 2 52.

"Nobody knows what a boy is worth,
And the world must wait to see;
For every man in an honored place
Is a boy that used to be."

Jesus was "only a boy" as He grew through infancy and childhood, but in that baby and that boy rested all the hopes of mankind. While He was not just like any other boy, yet His growth and development were normal, and we may learn much that will enable us to help the boy in our home, in our block, or in our church.

The mother of Jesus, in fulfillment of the law of her people, on the eighth day identified Him with the nation (Luke 2.21), and then at the end of 40 days brought Him, with her humble sacrifice, to present Him to the Lord. There a beautiful and prophetic scene took place as the Holy Spirit revealed to godly old Simeon His

I. Complete Salvation—in a Baby (vv. 25-35).

The Holy Spirit (not yet come as the indwelling presence in believers' hearts) had come upon Simeon, a man right with God and with a deep longing in his heart for the coming of the Messiah—"the consolation of Israel." He was assured of living until that day, and now as he waited in the temple the babe who fulfilled that promise was laid in his arms.

He blessed God as he broke forth in praise and prophetic utterance. Note the full conception of the work of the Redeemer—deliverance from bondage and fear of death, light to the Gentiles and glory to Israel, a stone of stumbling but also of rising again. A revealer of the hearts of men—yes, and One whose sacrificial death would pierce the heart of His mother.

One is glad that Simeon and Anna (v. 36) and "them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem" saw in Mary's infant son the Son of God incarnate, for round about was unbelief (John 1:11), hatred (Matt. 2:16), and indifference (Matt. 2:4, 5).

Is it not so today? Christmas has just been celebrated. How many saw the babe in the manger as Jesus the Saviour?

The scene changes—the little family is back in Nazareth in the humble home—and there we see

II. Perfect Development in a Boy (vv. 39, 40).

The period from infancy to accountability (12 years) is summed up in the full-orbed growth of the boy Jesus described in verse 40. The one business of every child from birth to 12, or somewhere around there, until the period of adolescence, is to grow without any sense of responsibility except obedience to authority; and obedience in the case of a child is always in order to give the child perfect freedom from everything else, without any sense of responsibility. That is the story of Jesus: He grew!" (G. Campbell Morgan).

Growth is, first of all, physical. Jesus stands by the side of every boy and girl as the body grows from babyhood to maturity, for He too knew that experience. We may talk to Him as an understanding friend about the physical needs and problems of our children. Let us remember that here, as elsewhere in Scripture, the physical body is recognized as important.

Mentally, He experienced growth. The strange, apocryphal tales about the child Jesus, representing Him as a man of mature wisdom in a child's body, do not compare even remotely with the beautiful naturalness of a keen-minded boy asking questions, observing, always learning. Boys and girls, you may talk with confidence to Him about your lessons, your growing interest in this exciting world of ours, of your need for guidance in learning. Be sure that He will understand.

The crowning touch upon the growing personality of the child is the spiritual. We read of Jesus that "the grace of God was upon him." "Grace," says Dr. Morgan, "is first, that which delights and charms. Grace, secondly, is desire to impart to others the things that make them happy. Grace, finally, is the activity that does this at all costs." A gracious child is an altogether delightful being; and when that graciousness is the result of the "grace of God" upon him, it is surpassingly lovely, for it makes him Christlike, even in the days of childhood.

Great and grave has been the neglect of the spiritual life of children for whom much has been done physically and mentally. Christian parents must not make that mistake—and they need not, for the Lord Jesus here too stands ready to counsel, guide, encourage, and strengthen them in every good purpose and deed.

PATTERNS
SEWING CIRCLE

YES, a dress to admire for its very fresh approach to the problem of looking slim and stately when your figure is too heavy! Pattern No. 1482-B happily overcomes your figure difficulties with a vestee effect through the top, extending as a slim waist treatment. The softly gathered side pieces permit easy roominess through the bodice, the low pointed neckline is youthful and flattering to the face.

The skirt attached at a low waistline takes pounds away from your hipline because of its adroit piecing — and weight-minimizing smoothness at the sides and in back. The dress may be finished with short sleeves or sleeves of the new "below-the-elbow" drape. The style is suitable for silk, rayon or wool crepes, for satin, faille or romaine.

Welcome at a Housewarming—Honey Twist Rolls
(See Recipes Below)

Housewarming Time

Soft, sweet, crusty rolls, a fruity coffee cake, a plate of cookies, tempting sandwiches in crescent, diamond, circle or heart shapes, coffee, tea or cider from which to choose your drink—these form the basis of the refreshments for a housewarming. The event isn't lavish, it's simple, sincere and warm with friendliness for you've gathered to greet your friends in their new home.

Whether you've planned the housewarming as a surprise to the family in their new home, or whether you're inviting friends to an "at home" in your own home, keep everything as simple as possible. If you have many coming, ask some earlier and others later so the house will never be too crowded. No entertainment need be planned for everyone will want to inspect the house or apartment and have a light snack before leaving perhaps.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

*Assorted Sandwiches
*Sweet Bow Knot Rolls
*Honey Twists
Frosted Cup Cakes
*Fruited Coffee Cake — Cookies
Coffee — Cider — Tea
*Recipe Given

Clever invitations can be sent out by using a miniature plan of the house, a rough drawing or silhouette of the house and writing the invitation inside or out as it best fits.

All refreshments can be placed on a table set simply with a plain cloth and attractive flowers. Teenage girls will enjoy helping at the table pouring coffee or tea and helping fill the trays of rolls and sandwiches as they're used.

Hot rolls with the smell of the oven still on them will spell a grand welcome, especially when your guests come in from frost-nipped outdoors:

Sweet Bow Knot Rolls.
(Makes 2½ dozen)

1 cup milk
¼ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 cakes compressed yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
2 eggs
4½ cups sifted flour (about)

Scald milk and pour over butter, sugar and salt. Crumble yeast into water to soften. Cool milk to lukewarm, add yeast, beaten eggs and 2 cups flour. Beat well. Add enough flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on a floured board and knead until smooth. Form into a ball and place in a greased bowl. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. When light, knead down and shape into long strands, 6 inches long, ½ inch in diameter. Tie these strands into a single looped knot. Place on greased baking sheet and let rise until doubled. Bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven, 15 to 20 minutes. Brush with powdered sugar icing and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

Honey Twists.

Use the same ingredients as in Sweet Bow Knot Rolls. Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk, add butter, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm and add enough flour to make a thick batter. Add yeast and eggs. Beat well and add more flour to make a soft dough. Place in a greased bowl and let rise until doubled. When light punch down and roll into small strands about 6 inches long, ½ inch in diameter. Coil into greased 2-inch muffin pans, beginning at the outer edge and covering the bottom. Brush with Honey Topping. Let rise until double in bulk and bake in a moderate oven 25 to 30 minutes.

Honey Topping.

¼ cup butter
⅔ cup powdered sugar
1 egg white
2 tablespoons honey, warmed

Cream all ingredients together and brush over Twists before baking.

Fruited Coffee Cake.
(Makes 1 large ring)

1 cake yeast
½ cup lukewarm potato water
6 cups flour, sifted
1 cup lukewarm water
1 teaspoon lemon extract
1 cup shortening or butter
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ pound large raisins
¾ cup currants
⅛ pound candied citron
⅛ pound candied lemon peel

Soften yeast in potato water, add 1 cup flour and warm water. Let rise. Cut shortening into remaining flour, add remaining ingredients then combine with first mixture. Let rise until double. Shape into large, buttered ring or loaf and let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 1 hour. Frost with a powdered sugar icing and sprinkle with chopped or shredded nuts.

Here are some cookies that are as delightful as homespun. They're especially nice for housewarming because the recipe makes a large quantity and you won't be able to count consumption on them. The blending of fruits with spices makes this a popular cookie:

Cape Elizabeth Cookies.
(Makes 3½ dozen medium)

½ cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
5 tablespoons milk
1½ cups flour
1 cup rolled oats
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon allspice
½ cup pineapple cut into shreds, drained
½ cup walnuts, chopped
½ cup raisins
3 tablespoons grated orange rind

Combine sugar and butter, add egg and milk, then dry ingredients. Last of all add the fruit and nuts. Drop by spoonfuls on greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven 8 minutes.

Here are some tempting sandwich combinations for the sandwich platter. Made in crescent, star, heart or triangle shapes they'll be one of the most popular numbers at the housewarming:

Assorted Sandwiches.

Flaked tuna or salmon seasoned with mayonnaise, lemon juice, and butter.

Mashed sardines, lemon juice, chili sauce.

Mashed liverwurst with chili sauce.

Peanut butter and chopped, cooked bacon.

Sliced American cheese, thinly sliced fried ham, mustard.

Peanut butter, lemon juice and mashed banana.

LYNN SAYS:

Rolls in a variety of shapes are guaranteed to please the most fastidious family. Here's a list of favorite shapes to try out:

Knots: Twist and tie strip of dough into a knot.

Parker House: Roll dough ½ inch thick, cut into rounds with biscuit cutter, dip in melted butter and fold in half. Place rolls close together in pan.

JOHN THE BAPTIST AND JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 3:1-6, 15-17, 21, 22.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased.—Luke 3:22.

"A reed shaken with the wind?" No. "A man clothed in soft raiment?" No. "A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet. For this is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face. . . . Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist." Such was the testimony of Jesus (Matt. 11:7-11) about the man who in our lesson of today bears his testimony concerning Jesus.

I. John: the Preacher of Repentance (vv. 1-3).

The times in which a man lives will often make or break him. If times are dark and difficult most men submit to the burden of the day without protest or effort. But not so with John. The period in which he lived is graphically brought before us as we consider the names of civil and religious leaders mentioned in verses 1 and 2. Tiberius Caesar, the emperor, was virtual dictator, "talented, ambitious, cruel, licentious, infamous, inhuman" (Van Doren). Pilate was the governor of Judea, who later condemned Jesus to the cross. Herod was a seducer and murderer. Annas and Caiaphas shared the infamy into which the priesthood had fallen.

God needed a man with a flaming message of judgment, and He had him ready out in the wilderness, far from decadent Rome and spiritually dead Jerusalem. Upon this man John came the message, a word from God—"Repent"—which stirred the whole countryside. But he had even a greater mission.

II. John—the Forerunner of Jesus (vv. 4-6).

He humbly identifies himself as the voice in the wilderness prophesied by Isaiah. His was the important duty of preparing the way for the coming of the Lord Jesus.

The picture is that of the preparation for the coming of an oriental monarch. When he "was about to make a journey, a servant was sent before him to prepare the highway. Valleys needed to be filled, hills lowered, crooked places made straight, rough ways made smooth. Thus, before men would be ready to receive Christ, moral obstacles must be removed, men must repent of their sins and turn from them" (Erdman).

Isaiah says that "all flesh shall see the salvation of God," something which God has made possible, but which we have not even yet fully carried out. The gospel is universal in its character—for all mankind. This prophetic word will, of course, have its complete fulfillment when the King comes to reign. Then "they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall all know me, from the least of them to the greatest of them" (Jer. 31:34).

III. John—the Follower of Jesus (vv. 15-17).

The humility of the man, his recognition of true greatness in Christ, his willingness to efface self, is seen in the words of these verses and in such other passages as John 1:29-30, where he directed his disciples to Jesus, whom they followed, and John 3:26-30, where in response to the effort to make him jealous of Jesus because his (John's) disciples followed Him, John replied, "He must increase, but I must decrease." He was glad to be the friend of the Bridegroom who rejoiced when the bridegroom came (John 3:29). He declared himself unworthy to loose the latchet of Christ's shoe (Luke 3:16).

The Christian virtue of humility is evil spoken of by a world of force and hatred, but it is still precious in the sight of God, and the ornament par excellence of Christian character. "Be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble" (I Pet. 5:5).

As he put himself in the background, John put Christ forward as the one whose baptism would not be a material element, water, indicating the inward change of repentance, but would be with Holy Ghost fire, cleansing and transforming life.

However, the Christ who comes as a Saviour to the repentant one, comes also as the flaming fire of judgment upon the impenitent. There is wheat and chaff in the world of men, and the fan of Christ will soon separate the wheat which goes into His eternal garner from the chaff which He will burn with unquenchable fire.

Our God is a God of unfathomable grace, but He is also a God of severest judgment upon those "that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." Read the solemn words of II Thessalonians 1:7-9. It is an awful thing to reject the Saviour, and thus to make Him our Judge.

JUST KIDDING

Easily Identified

It was the day of the school concert, and the audience consisted mainly of mothers, proud or envious, according to the parts that their children were playing.

One small boy mounted the platform. Striking a bold attitude, he began: "Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears!"

Whereupon one of the mothers turned to her companion.

"There, that's the Bjoneses' boy," she said tartly. "He wouldn't be his mother's son if he weren't trying to borrow something."

Not a Leg to Stand On

The impecunious young man, writing to his bank requesting that a new check book be forwarded to him, concluded his letter: "Kindly let me know how my account stands."

He received the following reply: "Sir—In reply to your letter, we beg to state that your account does not stand. You withdrew its last support on the 2nd inst."

"No, he hasn't."

Ink Spots And Spatters

THE LITTLE TOWN

I like to Lve in a little town
Where the trees meet over the street,
You w ve your hand and say "Hello"
To everyone you meet.
I ke to stop for a minute
Outside of a grocery store,
And hear the kindly gossip
Of the folks moving in next door.
F life is interwoven, with friends you learn to know,
And you feel their joys and sorrows
they daily come and go.
So I'm glad to live in a little town
We care no more to roam,
For every house in a little town
More than a house—it's home!

— H K, McDonough Co, Ill

This little poem printed above went to The Times editor by a dear and good friend several years ago We put it aside for future being, but it again popped up the other day while this scribe was searching for an idea for the Ink Spots this week

We read the poem again, and it struck us that the poem was quite typical of Klemme

The first line is a good description of many of our streets in summertime Yes, the trees line the street in a friendly manner

The next line is indeed typical of our town We saunter up the street and it's "Hello, Herman," "How are you there, John," "What's new, Bill" and all the way, its a wave of the hand to a friend we meet or a farmer driving by.

How very typical is the next line and literally fits all of us We "go downtown" and chances are that we stop in two or three stores just to pass along with the boss or to talk with some of the clerks Only some times the gossip is not always "kindness" as the poem puts it That would be small town stuff But it holds good in the poem

And its always interesting when new neighbors move in next door Why they are strangers, they will fit into the life of the community and a fresh baked pie or coffee cake invariably is taken to the "new" neighbor and the ice is broken

And in this little town the poet hits the nail right on the head when he says "And you feel their joys and sorrows as they daily come and go" When a little child is very ill and lies at death's door; when Johnny broke his arm playing at the school grounds, when a good farmer friend has lost a hand in a corn picker; and when a son has gone to help fight the Japs . . we all feel a deep, personal interest When someone suffers in our little town, it hurts all of us.

Certainly we are glad to live in a small town We are proud of it. We like to walk down the street, stop in at the stores, sit in the oil and grease at the filling stations or the garages. We like to do all of these things and to be able to call everybody by their first name.

We are not bumped about in the crowd and do not crawl into a big apartment like a swarm of bees.

Every house in our little town is a home!

We are thankful we CAN live in a small town!

PICK UPS ALONG THE MAIN DRAG

Quite a few of the bridge players in Klemme are helping along the war effort For prizes they are now giving Defense Stamps. And the way they battle around a bridge table for those stamps makes Hitler's blitzkreig look like a Sunday school picnic They really play bridge for blood now.

And while we are on the subject of Defense stamps, one small Klemme boy has invested all his spare money, Christmas money and savings in Defense Stamps. He has his book filled and today is the proud owner of a Defense Bond!

One man along the main drag has cut down on buying cigarettes and the money he saves is used for buying Defense Stamps.

Another couple in Klemme penalize themselves for playing cards. Everytime they go out to play a game of bridge they give their son money to buy a Defense Stamp!

The flames may not leap so high if the community bon-fire and Twelfth Night celebration is observed here this year. Some of the discarded Christmas trees that usualy go up in smoke are being used this year to build feeding shelters for the pheasants.

Our $5.00 Special: Don't forget to buy your "auto stamp" for $2.09 between Jan. 15th and Febr. 1st. It may save you a $25 fine and 30 days in the jug You can get the stamps at the post office beginning Jan 26th

Science Teams With Forest Industry To Provide 'Wood to Burn' for U. S.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

One of the odd results of our defense program is the development of one of America's oldest industries and most abundant natural resources as the newest Ersatz material.

Timber and its expanding new products are being substituted for substitutes and replacing the metal alloys and composition materials which had previously replaced forest products. The reason for all this is simply that timber is plentiful, is a growing crop and presents no bottleneck.

In proof of the fact that there is no cause to worry about being deprived of toothpicks, or having the morning paper cut down to postage stamp size, a recent survey directed by University of Michigan forestry experts, shows our forests to be growing at a rate which will exceed the drain from all causes by 1945

The significance of this and the importance of the forestation work being done by the forest products industry is evident when it is considered that United States uses half the lumber, more than half the paper, and two-fifths of the wood used in all forms in the world

U. S. Paper Use High.

Today the United States uses as much paper as all the rest of the world combined, our consumption this year reaching an all-time peak of approximately 14,000,000 tons Stacked four feet wide by four feet high, the yearly woodpile to make newsprint for our daily and weekly papers alone would reach from coast to coast To give an idea of how much newsprint is used in the United States, "we, the people" read more than 36,000,000 copies of the 1,900 daily newspapers and 15,000,000 copies of the 14,000 weeklies and semi-weeklies Yet, despite this prodigious consumption, there is enough standing timber in the United States of the principal species now commonly used in pulp and paper manufacture to keep the industry going at its present production rate for approximately 200 years, not even considering the steady replenishing annual growth

It takes nearly 2½ million tons of paper to wrap our packages each twelvemonth And think of all the letters that must be written annually to use up approximately 600,000 tons of stationery!

Yet despite the enormous quantities used, there is enough wood of the kind suitable for paper-making standing in our forests today to last for more than 200 years if every tree stopped growing tomorrow! And this huge reserve, which does not even include wood for building and all the other purposes, is being replenished by nature, supported by the forest products industries' modern forestry program, approximately as fast as it is being drawn upon So there's no excuse for putting off writing that letter home!

Wide Variety of Products.

There are in use at the present time more than 15,000 different kinds of paper and paper products They play an indispensable part in everyday routine—from the time the morning paper is delivered, through breakfast on foods which were packed in cartons and bags, at the office where ledgers, letters, files, checks and memos record business transactions, where the telephone directory lists your numbers, where the ticker tape traces market fluctuations, and where other pieces of paper request you to "please remit!"

And there is one bill marked "must remit," and addressed to the lumber, paper and pulp, and plywood industries, which is being paid off in a constructive fashion which will yield future dividends This constructive action, taken by the forest products industries, is the development of continuous forest production which eventually will put the forests of America on a constant, sustained-yield basis. This long-range view, which insists that "timber is a crop," operates in three ways: by selective logging—cutting only mature, commercially desirable trees; by leaving clumps of seed trees to produce a new crop by natural methods; and where neither selective logging or the leaving of seed trees is practicable, by the planting of seedlings and young trees.

And with the development of the modern tree farm, the lumber industry is taking definite steps to provide for further replenishment of our forests at a rate which even the most extensive cutting will not equal.

The most ambitious of these projects is the Clemons tree farm in Grays Harbor county, Wash. This farm, which promises to be a model for the industry, comprises over 200 square miles, or 129,023 acres, in a region famous for forests of Douglas fir, West Coast hemlock, Western red cedar, and Sitka spruce The rugged and rolling terrain is not suited to general agriculture, but is land primarily suited—by reasons of soil and climate—to forest growing. It is estimated that within 50 years timber of commercial size will be available, thus systematically working toward making timber a continuous crop

Reproduction comes mainly from natural restocking—from seed trees which are left—but where fire has killed new growth and seed trees, hand planting is resorted to.

The extent to which the West coast has gone into the business of replenishing our forests can be gauged by the fact that over 62,000,000 seedlings have been planted by hand on the forest lands of Washington and Oregon. While 6,000,000 mature and over-ripe trees will be harvested this year in the Douglas fir region, these trees, which would decay if left standing, will be replaced by between two and three million hand-planted seedlings to supplement the 10 to 12 seedlings which nature plants for every tree cut.

Legislative Aid.

Unique in legislative history—an example of an industry sponsoring self-regulation—is the action in obtaining passage of an Oregon law which makes it compulsory for loggers to leave reserve trees to maintain continuous forest growth and to provide adequate restocking.

No provisions for the future can be adequate, however, unless protection is provided for this present forest growth Forest fires throughout the United States annually take a toll of some $40,000,000, and an even greater waste—$110,000,000—results from decay and disease.

Millions of dollars are being spent annually by the forest products industries to check the ravages of fire And approximately 334,000,000 acres of privately owned timber are now under fire protection, according to United States forest service surveys. There are upwards of 100,000 forest fires each year, about one-fourth of them set by careless smokers and another fourth due to incendiary causes

Modern scientific methods of fire fighting have been enlisted in recent years with increasing effectiveness. Lookout towers, high-pressure pumping units, trained crews armed with portable chemical extinguishers, and parachute squads are all contributing their part. In our present crisis, the gravity of this perennial menace is increased because of the possibility of sabotage activities in our forests, or incendiary air raids—a threat already anticipated by our military leaders, who have organized emergency forces which would go into action if such happened.

Insect Pest Loss.

Less spectacular, but even more destructive, is the ravaging work of the forest insect pests. Entomologists have found the most effective means of control of some forest insects is through introduced parasites In the case of an insect which kills evergreens of the Northeast, parasites are being bred by the billions and "dusted" from airplanes over the forests. Another method of reducing loss from disease and decay is by concentrated cutting of over-ripe, mature stands of timber such as are highly attractive to the insects Not only is deterioration so rapid that the loss exceeds the accumulated annual growth, but the likelihood of insect attack makes another hazard. In other words, accepted forestry principles now call for harvesting timber crop before the decay of old age sets in, and before attacks by insects.

The importance of such conservation efforts is obvious, in view of the defense production goal set up for the forest products industries for 1942 National requirements for next year include 32 billion board feet of lumber, 16,000,000 cords of pulp wood, 75,000,000 cords of fuel wood, 2,000,000,000 cubic feet of miscellaneous products, and 1,765,000 barrels of turpentine and resin for naval stores, according to Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard. Three-fourths of the $8,000,000,000 expected to go into construction business next year will be for defense purposes.

Substitute Role.

One interesting sidelight on this picture is the extending role played by wood in "substituting for substitutes." Metal alloys and composition materials, which have replaced wood to a certain extent in recent years, are now under priority rulings. Wood is being "rediscovered" and engineers and architects are taking full advantage of a natural resource so abundant that there is no danger of bottlenecks. To again quote Secretary Wickard:

"Steel plays the spectacular part in guns and tanks and warships, but wood does much of the everyday work. Cantonments, defense housing, and factories are going up Wood is needed for pontoon bridges, gunstocks, ships, and docks. Special types of wood are needed for airplanes Wood goes into the making of high explosives. As charcoal, it is used in gas masks. This list could be multiplied many fold"

The forest, unlike mineral resources, is potentially inexhaustible, and research in forest products is a definite part of forestry.

Amazing scientific advances in new uses of wood are being made daily, many of them originating at the Forest Products laboratory at Madison, Wis. Here are being tested new principles of prefabricated house construction, forecasting a major new industry Revolutionary developments in timbered construction have been achieved through use of new resin glues and ring connectors, making it possible to substitute laminated wooden arches for steel beams Plywood has been improved and perfected and experiments are still continuing.

Speed Alaskan Defenses in Arctic Hardships

FAIRBANKS, ALASKA —Despite 50-below-zero weather, inadequate transportation facilities and formidable natural obstacles, the corps of engineers is speedily building America's defense outposts in the far reaches of Alaska Roads, landing fields, dock facilities and modern army posts are appearing in this uncharted Arctic wilderness.

Temperatures range from moderate in southeastern Alaska to extreme cold even in the central section, where winter temperatures as low as 50 degrees below zero are not uncommon. High winds often make unloading of materials from ships extremely dangerous In the coastal regions of western and southwestern Alaska sudden high winds known as "willaways" present a serious hazard to flying, shipping and other operations. These disturbances, which are more frequent from October to March, are usually of short duration but violent.

WILLKIE AND F.D.R.

Seldom in political history has a President of the United States received such wholesome support on major foreign policy from a defeated candidate as Franklin Roosevelt has received from Wendell Willkie. Few people know how active Willkie has been behind the scenes.

For instance, Willkie has even done some missionary work on Joe Martin, chairman of the Republican National committee and opposition leader of the house. Willkie remains on very friendly terms with his old campaign manager, even though they differed on foreign policy.

Shortly after the congressional vote to repeal the Neutrality act, in which the Republicans nearly defeated Roosevelt, Willkie phoned Joe Martin.

"Joe," he said, "those Republicans who voted against repeal of neutrality are going to have a tough time being re-elected. They're going to find the country is behind Roosevelt on this."

The Republican national chairman replied that he would not only re-elect all the Republicans who voted against Roosevelt, but he would also elect a lot of new Republicans to fill the seats of the Democrats who had voted with Roosevelt.

"Listen," said Willkie, "if you reelect 80 per cent of those who voted against the President you'll be the greatest political genius of all time."

"And," said Willkie, in telling the story to a friend afterward, "a few days later there was Joe himself voting with Roosevelt for a declaration of war."

SHIP-BUILDING PROGRAM

The action of the house naval affairs committee in slashing the proposed expansion of our two-ocean navy was due chiefly to shortages of materials and construction equipment.

However, Rear Admiral Samuel Robinson, chief of the bureau of ships, ran into a blunt barrage of questions about the worth of the battleship under modern combat conditions. Committee members sharply suggested that in view of the battleship's record in this war, the navy might be wise to build no more.

Robinson contended that this would be impractical, since the United States needed battleships "if our enemies continue to use them for combat purposes."

"What is your honest private opinion of the battleship?" he was asked. "Do you think this type of ship is worth all the money it costs and the time and labor required to build them?"

"I'm sorry, gentlemen, but it's not my function to answer that question," sidestepped Robinson with a smile. "I'm not a policy man. My job is to build ships after it is decided they are needed. However, I have my own ideas about the battleship."

This drew laughter, and the admiral was pressed no further.

Robinson also was quizzed closely about the high cost of certain vessels which the navy proposed in the expansion program, chiefly an aircraft carrier at an estimated $85,000,000.

"Higher labor and material costs are the biggest factors," Robinson explained. "For instance, we have a new type of armor plate for our ships which is far stronger than that used by any other nation. It costs $60 a ton, three times as much as the armor plate we formerly used."

"How about the labor supply?"

"We have plenty of labor to carry out our shipbuilding program," Robinson said. "Also plenty of facilities. Getting materials and machine tools is our big problem right now. However, the shortage doesn't amount to a bottleneck. In fact, production is running a little ahead of schedule and will be greatly expedited by next spring."

Farm Labor Situation Is Given Careful Study

Government Devises Plan for 'Complete Utilization' of Local Workers to Aid in Nation's Food-for-Victory Campaign.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

NU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

As the New Year starts, reports e beginning to come in to the Fed- al Security administration here om supervisors of farm place- ent, in the 48 states. These reports ite just what the farmers in each ite are going to need in the way labor this spring, and how these ite supervisors who are on the ound studying the question, feel e problem ought to be met.

Meanwhile, Washington has been rking on a general program ose goal is the "complete utiliza- n" of all local labor. This means at every conceivable reservoir of an-and-woman-power is to be pped to make this good earth of rs yield its utmost for the food- r-victory campaign. Students, embers of the CCC and the NYA d every other group, organized or organized, is to be called upon to ep the chow line going for democ- cy at arms.

Nobody knows better than the lks who are out recruiting for the rm battalions that you can't just sh a man through the barn door into a pasture and call him a rmer. It takes training and that part of the master-plan which is w being worked out.

But meanwhile there are a lot of ople who have had farming ex- rience who are available, skilled semi-skilled And then there are me jobs which don't need skills, t do require mass employment r short periods.

n Oregon Plan

Take what happened out in Oregon is last fall for instance. Oregon- ns have already taken hold of this 'arm placement" idea and made it rk. Along came the snap-bean op and a drastic shortage of nds. They were found in every alk of life. It meant temporary osing up of a lot of shops and busi- sses and other enterprises but they t the crop in and they didn't alyze the communities It uldn't have been done, though, th the best of will, if there hadn't en a sound plan behind it.

The farmers now have two com- titors for labor, the factory and ilitary service. Industry has al- ays offered higher wages. But esent farm wages are up higher an they have been in 11 years. the farm hand can't complain on at score. And the real patriot is e one who does what he can do st for Uncle Sam.

Then there are still a lot of farm- ained workers who have drifted to the cities where they have not cured employment or they have und themselves misfits. The Unit- States employment agencies are ing after these people and are ing to lure them out of their flats ck into the fields.

As the new year begins and I look ck at the notes I wrote down after at climactic Sunday when we re- ived word that the Japanese had ade their surprise attack on awaii, they seem very dull and rab. But some of the memories re very keen. This in spite of the ct that ever since then life has een running at such a rapid rate ch day, each hour and frequently ch minute, that it has been dif- cult to see anything but the very ivid present.

I have a memory of Sunday, of a risk, sunny winter day. Then lei- urely breakfast, the morning pa- ers, the radio, the preparation to se myself in the outdoors for a few ours—a walk which might have ade me miss those first dramatic oments at the White House. But stopped to chat with my father ho lives near me. The phone rang hile I paused, hat and coat already n. In the span of a few moments, was standing with a half a dozen ther reporters, hurriedly haled from heir Sunday rest, in the office of tephen Early in the Executive Wing of the White House.

"First," said Early very seriously, 'are there any correspondents f German or Japanese newspapers ere?" There were not. He read s a few details of the Hawaiian at- ack which he had just received rom the President hastily pencilled on a memo. The first announce- ments, which he had received at his home, he had phoned to the press associations and radio networks; and then he had hurried to the White House.

As soon as Early's brief announce- ment was over, we rushed out of his office, across the lobby and into the press room where the press asso- ciations and the radio companies have private telephone lines to their local offices. A little later an NBC engineer had a microphone at- tached to one of our lines and I was able to make the first news broad- cast ever sent from the White House.

From then on I hardly left my chair, except for moments to relieve my assistant and one of the NBC newsmen, who were keeping in touch with the state department across the street and later interviewing members of the cabinet and con- gressional leaders at the front en- trance of the White House.

The White House press room is arranged to accommodate about a dozen men who are regularly sta- tioned there. Within a few hours after the first announcement of the Japanese attack it was jammed with 50 or more people—reporters, radio men, messenger boys. The noise was so great that the micro- phone had to be stepped down to avoid catching the roar and confu- sion, and I was forced to speak in a low voice—this gave the effect of suppressed excitement which was greater than I really felt, although the events were exciting enough.

Outside the crowds were solemn, quiet. The sidewalk immediately in front of the White House was roped off and the side streets were closed. The crowd edged as near as it could, peering at the lighted windows across the wide lawns. They could see nothing, but they were satisfied to watch. Only very late, as they began to break up, did they begin to sing. Their emotions needed an outlet then.

I watched America go to war seri- ously, but not as I had seen France and Germany go—sadly, resentfully and with a sullen and deadening apathy.

Washington's Bridges And a Hobby

Every time I cross one of Wash- ington's "beautiful bridges" these days my thoughts go back to a slim young man who was a sophomore in college when I graduated. He dis- tinguished himself by winning the Julius Rosenwald medal for oratory —no mean achievement for a for- eigner. And this young man was a foreigner.

About a year ago he visited me. It was the first time I had seen him since college, and I never would have recognized the fat little man in glasses as the slim Jiuji Kasai, member of the Japanese diet. He put his arms about me and called me "dear college-mate." It was quite touching. And he produced a real "Pooh-bah" bow as he present- ed a delicate little fan to my wife.

Then he disappeared for a long time and I didn't hear of him again until he turned up in Washington with a shower of good-will interviews in the local papers. Just before his wily colleague, Mr. Kurusu, ap- peared on the scene to operate his famous shoe-string play, Kasai hur- ried back to Japan.

Kasai was a great student of America, of Theodore Roosevelt. He was supposed to love America deep- ly. I have no doubt he admired us. He certainly went to great lengths to interpret this country to his own. I have no means of knowing what he really thought, but the point of this story is an incident which seems so utterly incredible that it is an excuse for all misunderstanding of the Japanese. It is simply too good to be true and yet it is.

Kasai, on his last visit, was call- ing at the house of a mutual friend in Washington who asked if he could do anything to make Mr. Kasai's visit more valuable:

"Oh, yes," Kasai replied, with his little eyes sparkling behind his glasses, "some time I should like to have you take me about in your car and point out some of your beautiful bridges in the capital. You see, my hobby is photography and I should like to take pictures of them."

So far the beautiful bridges are still here.

FARMER WARNED ON WAR BUYING

Bargains for Cash Will Prevail After Emergency.

By H. C. M. CASE

(Head of Agricultural Economics, College Of Agriculture, University of Illinois.)

There will be plenty of bargains for those having the cash when the war emergency is over and farmers facing rising prices should keep this in mind.

As improvement costs increase it may be well to postpone some im- provements until costs are lower and labor and materials are easier to obtain, rather than pay a high price now. In fact, future construction of this kind will help prevent a post- defense depression.

Farmers will be tempted to over- expand their operations and invest- ments in response to high prices, but nothing is more important to the farmer than careful financial plans, especially to farmers burdened with mortgages and other financial obli- gations. Farmers free of indebted- ness with money to invest may still make some wise investments but should avoid heavy new obligations.

The inflation of land values and of prices of other things farmers bought during the last war, is re- called, which later were paid for with farm products at greatly re- duced prices. Many farmers lost title to their property because they were unable to meet their obliga- tions.

Current low interest rates, which are not assured for a long time in the future, may lead some farmers to overpay for land. While low in- terest rates bring a lower annual payment, usually they have the in- fluence of raising prices of land and other commodities bought. Hence the purchaser in the end has a much larger principal to pay. For ex- ample, a 5 per cent $60 mortgage is much more favorable than a 3 per cent loan on $100. Although the an- nual interest paid is the same, the principal is $40 more in the latter case.

In order to avoid the ill effects of a post-war depression, farmers were advised to consider seven points: (1) Avoid land inflation by not pur- chasing at high prices; (2) avoid long term debts or obligations that fall due in large lump sums; (3) pay off current debts; (4) improve land to meet more easily post-war low prices; (5) provide better living conditions in the home; (6) create reserves by prepaying interest and principal on debts, as well as to provide good cash reserves; (7) postpone high-cost purchases until after the emergency, if possible.

Dairy Cow Requires Protein Supplement

Overfeeding farm grains to dairy cattle in the food production pro- gram in an attempt to supply suf- ficient protein and avoid the pur- chase of a high protein supplement is false economy, explains J. G. Cash, extension dairy specialist of the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

For example, a cow requiring 10 pounds of a 15 per cent protein mix- ture a day to meet her needs could get the same amount of protein from 15 pounds of a mixture of equal parts of corn and cob meal and ground oats, but the cost would be greater and the cow probably would not produce as well because of the lack of balance between the protein and carbohydrates.

A suitable mixture containing 15 per cent total protein could be made with 600 pounds of corn and cob meal, 400 pounds ground oats and 200 pounds soybean meal, at a cost of $1.47 a hundred pounds (figuring corn at 70 cents a bushel, oats at 45 cents a bushel and soybean meal at $2.50 a hundred pounds, and adding a grinding charge of 10 cents a hundred pounds for corn and oats). Ten pounds of this mixture would supply 1½ pounds of protein and would cost 14.7 cents.

Around the Farm

Farm boys and girls are being en- couraged to increase supplies of foods needed in this country by rais- ing pigs, calves and chickens.

Oats, barley, wheat or rye grass pasture is so high in protein that very little protein feed is needed in the grain mixture for dairy cows.

Rubber tires will last longer if rubber-tired machines and imple- ments are blocked up, when not in use, to keep the weight off the tires.

Butter may be successfully stored in sub-zero temperatures for six years, claim Cornell university sci- entists after taking butter from coolers where it had been stored for that period of time.

Milk production in this country must be expanded to an all-time high. With dairy production already at a high level and farm labor get- ting scarcer, the job of boosting dairy production is a challenge to every farmer and farm leader in the dairy sections of the nation.

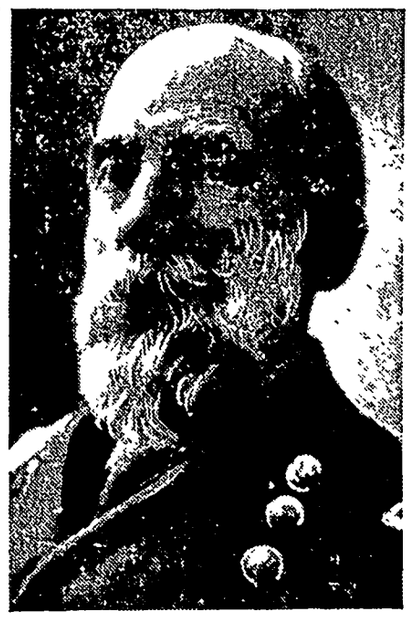
New Club Is a WOW

ADD to the list of unusual Ameri- can clubs a new one that's def- initely a WOW!

It's the Wheelers of the World club and it's made up of people named Wheeler—that is, those Wheelers who are "agin' Burton K. and for 'Fighting Joe.' " Its purpose, say its sponsors, is "to revive the spirit of Fighting Joe and save the faces of all present-day Wheelers" (at least, those who don't approve of the Montana senator's isolationism), and its aim is "to raise enough money to buy a bomber for Britain and name it the 'Fighting Joe' Wheeler."

The man whom they thus pro- pose to honor was one of the most colorful characters in American mil- itary history.

Graduated from West Point in 1859, Wheeler was appointed a lieu- tenant in the United States army but resigned his commission when Georgia seceded from the Union. When he entered the Confederate army he was first made colonel of an infantry regiment and command- ed a brigade at the Battle of Shiloh.



'FIGHTING JOE' WHEELER

But the next year he was trans- ferred to the cavalry and made a brigadier general.

Promoted to major-general when he was only 26 years old, Wheeler was given command of the cavalry attached to the Army of Tennessee and in that position rendered invalu- able service to its inept and inde- cisive commander, Braxton Bragg. One of Wheeler's political opponents later said of him that he "had never won a battle." More important is the fact that he often saved the Army of Tennessee from defeat.

For Wheeler proved that he under- stood the true function of the cav- alry, that of being the "eyes of the army," and his right to fame rests upon the fact that he was an "army cavalryman," not an "independent cavalryman." Other Southern lead- ers like Forrest, Stuart and Mor- gan might perform spectacular feats as raiders, but all too often they were away on some dashing foray when they were most needed as the "eyes of the army" and it is doubtful if they were ever as valu- able to their commanding generals as was "Fighting Joe."

That was the affectionate nick- name his men gave him soon after he was transferred to the cavalry and he proved his right to it during the remainder of the war. By the time it was over, he had taken part in 400 engagements, been wounded three times and had 16 horses shot under him. "The gamest little banty I ever knew" was the tribute one of his friends paid him—he was only five feet five inches in height and weighed only 120 pounds.

After the war he quickly adjusted himself to peace-time pursuits, studied law and was repeatedly elected to congress.

At the outbreak of the Spanish- American war, although 62 years old, he immediately applied for a commission and was made a ma- jor-general of volunteers. Thus he became the only corps commander to wear both the gray and the blue. In Cuba the little "Georgia Gamecock" defied his commanding officer, General Shafter, who was as huge as Wheeler was small, and led 1,000 men in a wholly unauthorized but successful fight at Guasimas, the first battle of the Santiago cam- paign. It was in the fury of this engagement that "Fighting Joe" is said to have forgotten that he wasn't wearing a gray uniform and to have shouted "Come on, boys, give the Yankees hell!" He died in 1906 and was buried in Arlington.

The prime mover in the organiza- tion of the new club to "revive the spirit of 'Fighting Joe' Wheeler" is Elmer ("Sizzle") Wheeler of Dal- las, Texas, a nationally known sales consultant and author of the book "Tested Sentences That Sell." He is also president of the Tested Selling Institute of New York, founded 12 years ago to test words and phrases for their relative value in making people buy things. He tells sales- men "Don't ask if—ask which." It was his famous slogan "Don't sell the steak—sell the sizzle" that gave him his nickname.

YANKEE DOODLE

I

He fumbles and he misses—
He often fans the air;
He makes his share of boners
And often splits a hair;
He wastes a lot of motions
And has a wagging tongue . . .
But, boy, he packs a wallop
When once his chin is stung!

II

He does much shadow-boxing
And dances in the dark;
His oratory often
Goes far wide of the mark;
He dearly loves to muddle
And seems a little queer . . .
But not a second after
His duty is made clear.

III

He can be fooled and kidded.
And often seems a boob;
Amid the foreign slickers
He sometimes plays the rube;
He often seems the duffer,
And likes to play the clown . . .
But it's another story
When once the chips are down!

IV

He often plays the sucker
In ways a little dumb;
In fact he's pretty childish
(Until the punches come);
He trusts a lot to fancy
And harks to fairy tales . . .
Until he gets his wind up
And then he NEVER FAILS!

V

He often is too gabby
And trusts a lot to pacts;
He sometimes wears dark glasses
So he won't know the facts;
He's futile and loquacious
Until he's good and sore . . .
But, boy, he packs a wallop
When he gets into war!

VI

He glorifies debating
And dearly loves the stump;
He likes to hear the gossip
Around the village pump;
He certainly can fiddle
Upon the old dishpan . . .
But when it comes to fighting—
It's "Gangway for a MAN!"

VII

He dearly loves his pleasures
And all his comforts, too;
He much prefers life festive
Than when it's very blue;
The peaceful road's the best one—
He nourishes that hunch;
But once that road ain't open,
You'd better duck that punch!

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confi- dence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus adver- tising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

MACHINE REPAIR PROGRAM

A Boone man is said to have gone to a dealer to purchase a new car, leaving his old one outside while the deal was transacted. Emerging from the establishment a short time later with the new vehicle he ran it backwards into his old car, with no resulting damage to the old car, but plenty to the new. Reversing his gears he was able to run the new car back into the garage for heavy repairs. There should be a moral to the tale.

HANCOCK COUNTY FARMERS ASKED FOR TWO MILLION POUNDS SCRAP IRON

Hancock County farmers are expected to collect 2,200 000 pounds of scrap iron as their share in the nation-wide scrap iron campaign, James M Townsend, chairman of the county USDA defense board announced this week

Because of the difficulty to accurately determine the amount of scrap iron on the farms of Iowa, a goal of 1,000 pounds of scrap from every farm has been set On the basis of this figure, the 220 farmers of Hancock County have over two million pounds of scrap iron as their goal.

If farmers of this county achieve or exceed this goal they will have done much toward keeping the nation's great steel industry functioning at 100 percent of capacity. Reason for the urgent need of this scrap iron, Mr Townsend said, is because scrap is a vital ingredient in the manufacture of armaments

Will Build Tanks, Guns, Etc.

Continuing on the assumption that farmers of Hancock County will easily meet their quota of scrap iron, Mr. Townsend said that the 2,200,000 pounds of scrap from this county will provide enough iron, when combined with other essential materials to construct

137 light tanks, 32,00 lb class
880 37 mm anti-aircraft guns
176,000 .30 cal machine guns

And if the Hancock County farmers want to avenge the ruthless attack on Manila with bombs they could help produce 88 000 one hundred pound aerial bombs or 17,600 five-hundred-pound aerial bombs from their 2,200 000 pounds of scrap, the chairman said

And while farmers will be sharing directly in the manufacture of munitions by supplying scrap iron, they will be helping themselves indirectly by aiding in the manufacture of more steel which will in turn release more metal for farm implements

Farmers are again being urged to check over their machinery and order their repair parts now so their equipment will be ready to go when spring work starts

Gather and sell your scrap iron today.

FOR FREEDOM

Spillville, the town where Dvorak composed the Hungarian Rhapsody, and other famous music has only 300 population, but so far has enlisted one tenth of its population in the armed forces of the United States. A goodly share of these are sons and grandsons of Bohemian pioneers who settled the community.

Most troubles from house plants arise from over-watering Nearly all plants do better when they are not watered until the soil feels dry to the touch.

America must be strong. Every man and woman must contribute their strength to the strength of America at war.

Some are carrying guns—some are flying planes—some are giving their blood on ships at sea.

'Flight Strips' Are New Aid For Aviators

WASHINGTON.—If it isn't an enemy ship don't be frightened some day soon if as you drive your car down the highway you see a plane swoop out of the sky toward the road. For chances are pretty good that the aircraft will be making for a "flight strip" or auxiliary landing area that has been built near the highway.

Army air force officials have announced that they are co-operating in building of these landing areas under terms of a highway act recently signed by the President. The flight strips are to be constructed for the use of the service type of aircraft adjacent to public roads.

Although highways themselves have been used for airplane landings in cases of emergency, it is obvious that this use of highways by aircraft is impracticable except in cases of the most extreme emergency because of the danger of accidents and the blocking of traffic.

Construction of flight strips in most instances, will involve little more than widening the highway rights-of-way or the use of roadside development areas and establishment of a defin[illegible] of demarcation betw[illegible] highway and flight strip

Runway Must Be Straight.

The runway on a flight strip area may be 3,000 to 8,000 feet in length, depending upon elevation of the ground above sea level and the type of aircraft for which it is intended. Since this runway must be straight, the "flight strip" may not parallel the highway throughout its entire length, especially in rolling or mountainous country, where few roads have long straight stretches, but where the rights-of-way or adjacent roadside development areas can be widened to provide flight strips The flight strip areas probably will have a minimum cleared width of 300 feet, with an actual runway width of not less than 150 feet

The type of construction to be undertaken at each flight strip may vary with the geographical location and altitude of the area Locations will be sought with a view to creation of landing facilities for "organization in depth" in order to conserve fuel and extend the range of aircraft Effort will be made to develop areas where treatment of the soil may not require more than the growing of a heavy grass turf to make it suitable for the operation of all except the largest and heaviest of aircraft

No drastic changes are necessary in highway improvement planning, except, that in some cases, it is advocated that, highways be placed on one side of wide rights-of-way instead of in the center, thereby allowing the remaining parts of the rights-of-way to be available for flight strips

Home Nursing Training Program Is Geared for War Emergency

Red Cross home nursing training courses include instruction on all phases of caring for the sick. Top photo shows high school girls learning how to bathe the baby as part of their training in these classes now being formed throughout the country. At right a Red Cross home nursing instructor shows another group of high school girls how to prepare and serve meals for convalescent patient.

(This article was prepared by the American Red Cross to aid in explaining to the women of the United States the efforts of the organization in its current home nursing training courses and war fund drive.)

By VIOLET K. LIBBY

NEW YORK —Women of America! If someone in your family falls sick or is injured, and you can't get a trained nurse to help—do you know how to carry on? Can you take a temperature, give bedside care, carry out the doctor's orders?

Someone's life may depend on your knowledge of home nursing, the American Red Cross warns Due to the number of nurses called to active duty with the army and navy the shortage of professional nurses grows daily more serious

Through Red Cross Home Nursing classes hundreds of wives, mothers and girls are learning to prepare for home emergencies For 30 years, through its chapters and branches, the Red Cross has been teaching the women and girls of America to take care of the sick in their own homes.

Classes Being Formed.

Now that we are at war, new Red Cross Home Nursing classes are being formed all over the country. Part of the $50,000,000 war fund for which the Red Cross is appealing will be used to finance these urgently needed courses, through which the Red Cross expects to teach at least 500,000 women the principles of home nursing as a vital measure of home defense.

Women of all ages may enroll in these Home Nursing classes. They are organized by local Red Cross chapters and branches in cities, towns, and rural communities, and may be held, not only in Red Cross chapters and branch headquarters, but in public schools, churches and similar places where there are suitable facilities for teaching. Registered Red Cross nurse-instructors give the classes, which cover 24 hours' instruction in simple home nursing

In these Home Nursing classes, women learn through demonstration and actual practice how to follow the doctor's orders intelligently and what to do in case of emergency. They learn how to keep themselves and their families fit and well as part of their contribution to national defense. Mothers learn how to take care of their babies properly, what to do in case of illness, and how to prevent the spread of communicable diseases Students learn just how to take care of patients in bed, how to make them comfortable, and how to feed them They are also shown the best way to look after convalescents and old people.

All Can Help.

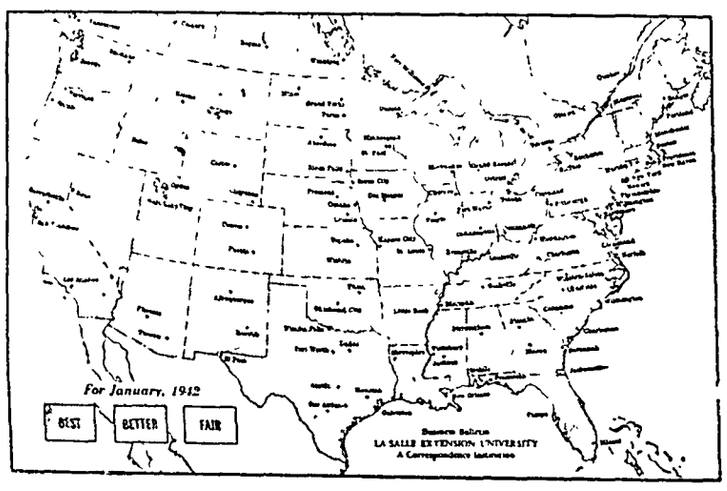
There are classes for all—mothers, wives, young women, high school girls—and there are even classes for men and boys. Any person or group wishing to join such a Home Nursing class should get in touch with the local Red Cross chapter or branch.

On completing the course satisfactorily, students receive a "Red Cross Home Nursing Certificate," and are ready to take care of the sick at home and to volunteer their services in local wartime or disaster emergencies, if necessary.

Last year 2,500 nurses, many volunteering their time, taught 80,000 women and girls Today, the Red Cross expects to enroll 15,000 registered Red Cross nurse-instructors to teach these courses. Any nurse who is qualified and able to serve as an instructor for these Home Nursing classes should get in touch with her local Red Cross chapter or branch at once.

The Red Cross is appealing for a $50,000,000 war fund, to expand its Home Nursing and all other services to meet war time needs.

Farmers Prepare for Their Biggest Year



By L. G. ELLIOTT
President, LaSalle Extension University

As their contribut.on to the war effort to achieve victory, the farmers of the United States are planning to produce, during this year, the largest amounts of farm products that have ever been raised. The new production goals call for more intensive efforts in every line, and farmers are using the slack winter months to get ready for turning out this greater output of food that is needed.

Increases reaching more than 10 per cent are planned for most of the major farm products, including corn, pork, beef, eggs, and chickens Farmers specializing in these lines have already boosted their production and raised their income. They will do even more during this year in order to meet the larger demand from consumers with higher incomes, from the government to supply the armed forces, and from nations abroad that are fighting with us

Dairy farmers are expected to lead all types of farmers in income gains, consumer use of milk is increasing and augmented exports of condensed milk and cheese to Great Britain will further improve their income. The national production schedule calls for a 7 per cent increase in milk production in 1942 Whether this will be reached is problematical Dairy herds number only about 3 per cent more cows, and the other 4 per cent desired will have to result from increased output per cow.

Soybeans assume even more importance as the oil derived from them becomes more vital in our national production program. Acreage is expected to be larger in 1942, and higher prices are in prospect

Less wheat and cotton will be raised because supplies of these crops are already large and the export markets for them have either been entirely cut off or greatly reduced. Surpluses now amount to almost two years' normal requirements. Instead of raising more to add to the surplus, farmers will devote most of their energies to turning out the food and feed crops for which the new need is much more urgent.

Farms in every part of the country are in good condition to meet the increased demands that will be put upon them this year. Except for the drouth areas in the East and parts of the Southeast, and the excessive rainfall in the Central area, moisture has been normal and will give the crops a good start this spring

Farm Labor Shortage.

The shortage of farm labor and increased wages for hired hands will add somewhat to costs, and is already handicapping farmers in many parts of the country This shortage will be one of the major problems during this year, but it is now being tackled by federal, state and local co-operation. It will be a hardship for many farmers, but it can be overcome to a large extent by careful planning of work and improved methods of farm management.

Hawaiian Islanders Defend Large Area

HONOLULU.—Hawaiian islanders in their onetime tourist paradise—transformed into an active war outpost with the attack on Pearl Harbor and bombardment of Maui island—have a "bits and pieces" area of nearly 6,500 square miles to defend.

The Hawaiian group, lying diagonally across the central stretches of the North Pacific, comprises eight main islands and a number of islets. Maui, near the easternmost end of the archipelago, is more than 2,000 miles from the United States mainland On the western side, the outlying atoll of Kure is roughly 2,300 miles from Japan, according to the National Geographic society

According to 1940 figures, the Hawaiian islands have a population of about 423,000, of whom more than a third are Japanese. Of the rest, the chief classifications include about 108,000 whites, some 65,000 native and part-Hawaiians, 50,000 Filipinos, and 35,000 Chinese and Koreans With some four-fifths of the people born in Hawaii, a large proportion of the Oriental group are United States citizens.

The island of Oahu, containing Honolulu and the Pearl Harbor naval base, has the heaviest population density.

Vaccines Being Tested To Prevent Influenza

"We are testing vaccines which probably will be successful in preventing a repetition of the World war influenza epidemic."

This and other information regarding the progress of medicine as a constructive force for combating the evils which accompany war was revealed recently by Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, medical savant, of California.

The former faculty member of the University of California, who now is consultant and research scientist of the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., spoke at the dedication of the new $500,000 wing of the Collis P. Huntington Memorial hospital, Pasadena.

Dr. Alvarez drew back the veil from "New Things That Hospitals and Physicians Are Doing for Mankind." He revealed recently discovered drugs, new methods of anesthesia and advances in plastic surgery which effectively offset the usual hazards of warfare.

"In addition to combating influenza," announced Dr. Alvarez, "we have a vaccine to prevent a plague of measles . . . the deadliness of pneumonia has been overcome and new drugs have lessened the dangers from blood infections."

He pointed out that anesthesia is now far superior to past forms, largely eliminating pain, and that deformities are being overcome by the miracles of plastic surgery.

New Mystery Force May Give Light Without Wire

More than 100 scientists and educators watched a demonstration recently of "klystron," a new type of generator which the inventors said sends out beams of power, without the use of wires, over great distances.

The scientists and educators met in Bloomfield, N. J., at the laboratories of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

I. E. Mouromtseff, research scientist engaged by Westinghouse, said the new type of generator might be employed eventually to turn on lights at great distances over the air.

Homes could be illuminated by power coming over the air just as radio programs are now received.

He foresaw the time when the generator might be used to increase the number of television transmission channels and to increase the number of messages transmitted simultaneously over telephone wires.

He said the new generator had potential value for producing heat for medical purposes and for improving the means of aircraft navigation.

"The possible uses of the apparatus are limited only by the imagination," he declared.

Klystron was originated about two years ago by scientists at Leland Stanford university.

Substituting Cooking Fats

Can fats be substituted for one another measure for measure?

Not usually. The amount of actual fat in a cupful is not the same for all fats. Follow these handy rules in making substitutions.

If the recipe calls for lard and you want to use butter or oleomargarine instead, add an extra 2 tablespoons of butter or oleomargarine for each cup of fat called for in the recipe.

Substituting the other way round —use seven-eighths of a cup of lard (1 cup less two tablespoons) of lard for every cupful of butter or oleomargarine called for in the recipe.

If the recipe calls for lard, and you are substituting a hydrogenated fat for it, add an extra 1½ tablespoons for every cup of lard called for in the recipe.

Breakfast Without Coffee

To many Americans breakfast without coffee would be unthinkable. Yet until the Eighteenth century coffee drinking was considered a serious vice.

Women in England were not allowed to drink coffee in public. It was considered a vulgar custom, until hostesses began to serve demitasses after dinner.

Our word "cafe" for small restaurant, comes from France. It was there that the cafes sold coffee mainly. Later they used to sell lemonade and other cool drinks in the summer time

At one unique dinner, the host tried to spell the word "coffee" on the menu without using one letter that ordinarily appears in it. He spelled it "kawphy."

World History Put on Tap for Button Push

A history of the world—pictorially and visually—in four minutes!

Source of this condensed panorama of the past is the cosmic or "clock of the ages," constructed in the observatory shops

The "clock" is 10 feet wide and 8 feet high, with a dial 4 feet in diameter in the center. The dial has illuminated sections to represent geological ages.

Two hands turn on the dial. The shorter hand turns once for each 100,000,000 years of geological time, while the longer hand makes a turn for the complete geological history of the world.

As the hands turn, a series of pictures is flashed on a screen on the dial's face to show scenes from the time being indicated

At the same time the voice of Dr. Chester Stock, Caltech scientist, paints a word picture of the changes and the reasons behind them.

Apply Your Bible

The days in which we live are crowded with problems—social, religious, ecclesiastical, political, economic. Many of them are closely woven with one another, not one single problem of which but would be helped by the use of the Bible in the we statesmen, churchmen, leaders of economic thought, leaders in every branch of all these great organizations—if every man could approach these problems on the principles and truths of the Bible we could deal with them in the light of its solemn warning; if we could administer and decide all our great questions in the light of obedience to the commands in the Bible, what a difference there would be in the history of the world today!—Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary of England.

Do It Now!

Many reasons suggest themselves for not going out of our way to help people in trouble. Laziness says, "Why should you?" Fear of being misunderstood steps in. "Perhaps get mixed up in all sorts of unpleasantness," whispers Excessive Caution. No doubt the Samaritan who helped the wounded man on the road between Jerusalem and Jericho felt that it might be more prudent to pass by, as the Pharisee and the Levite had done. But he swept such cowardly prompting aside. No harm ever came to anyone out of a kindly effort, sympathetic word or readiness to lend assistance. If we stifle our impulses in that direction we may lose the greatest opportunities of our lives.

42 Will Be Record Year For American Farm Crops

Food Goals Are Raised to Boost Production As Agriculture's Part in Winning The War for U. S. and Allies.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

The farmer came across.

He produced more the past year than any year in history. Never has America blossomed and borne fruit as she did. Next year the production will be even higher for the department of agriculture found that the farmer was willing to meet the goals set up last August, and even to exceed them

But that doesn't mean that the food-for-victory problem has been settled. Now the department of agriculture finds a part of the problem back in its own lap, for we are in the war ourselves and our allies depend on us for supplies The farmer must be assured labor, supplies and machinery to carry out his part of the job. And the processor must have the equipment to take care of perishable products when the farmer lays them down at the door.

Experts here tell me that the farm-labor problem is not unsolvable. The combined demands of war and industry mean that the farmer will have to put up with older hands, with less skilled farm hands. It means that schools will have to be dismissed at harvest time and when harvest time and cultivation time come together It may mean a land army of women But the farmer will get the help he needs, even if it isn't exactly the kind of help he would prefer.

Can Get Repairs

The farmer can also get the parts he needs to repair his farm machinery.

He will get some new machinery, enough to get by with.

He may have to skimp a little on the nitrates and the phosphates although at present there are reserve supplies.

But the big problem is to provide the processor with the essentials he needs to prepare the food and to wrap it up in packages for the consumers. Take for instance milk: some 24 new evaporating plants will have to be built, some 350 cheese factories will have to be put up.

And PIGS! This year was a record crop. Next year will be bigger. Will the packers be able to take care of the porkers which may be waddling up at the rate of a possible thousand a day to squeal their last squeals for freedom? That is one thing which the secretary of agriculture is battling over now It takes tin and stainless steel and a lot of other things which the army wants before you can change a pig into a portable meal And the army is tighter than a Sunday shoe when it comes to yielding up any of those essential metals It is interested chiefly in destroying, not preserving.

Food Goals Raised

The department of agriculture has raised the food goals—already it has called for a 25 per cent boost in the tomatoes wanted; 33 per cent in snap-beans, corn and peas for canning. Russia is very likely going to ask for food that we had not figured on supplying, China may need more. And then, who knows there may be an American Expeditionary Force, probably will be before we are through, which will have to be fed. Modern armies still move on their stomachs, but even in that position they cannot eat off the land as they used to.

These extra, added demands were not in the cards when the original "food for freedom" goals were set up. But they will have to be taken care of. America's good earth can produce them, the farmers can and will raise them The next thing is to wangle the means of putting them into the packages that will take them where they are going. It's a big job—one of those which when done, will win the war.

Will the Horse Stage a Comeback?

"My kingdom for a horse!"

A lot of the people who own America's 30 million vehicles may murmur that wish before long.

With sale of new autos and trucks banned pending rationing and with the rationing in effect, "My kingdom for a horse" may become no idle wish.

And nobody knows today when the farmer will be told he can have no new farm machinery when what he has wears out.

So the question naturally comes up, will the horse come back?

In the city he just can't. Some cities won't allow horse-drawn vehicles on certain streets. Washington is one of them and not long ago a man drove an old-fashioned carriage with a team of mules down Sixteenth street just to see if he could get away with it. He did—because after all, even a cop knows a mule isn't a horse.

But the city man, even if he learns which end of the horse to put the crouper on, wouldn't have any place to park the animal—he couldn't leave it out beside the curb all night the way many do their cars.

On the farm the horse may become a necessity. But his return will not be achieved overnight. In the first place every year with the increased mechanization of the farm, the supply of horseflesh has been dwindling. The situation isn't as bad as it was some years ago before vaccination scotched the sleeping sickness that threatened to reduce the equine population still further. But considering that it takes nearly four years after breeding before you get a horse in shape for regular heavy work, a market couldn't be built up to supply any increased demand for some time.

It is true that in 1932 and 1933 when money was scarce and feed was cheap a lot of farmers used horses instead of trucks. But the American is a mechanical minded man and unless he just naturally takes to animals he would a lot rather drive a motor. As one horse expert said to me:

"What's more a lot of folks are afraid of horses. Many men who will drive a farm truck 50 miles an hour nowadays would think he had a runaway on his hands if a team he was driving broke into a trot."

On the more serious side of the question however, is the possible long-time demand of the army for essential materials that go into trucks and tractors and which may cut down perceptibly the machines that run farms today. A lot of farmers, like a lot of city people, really can't afford to own the machinery they have. It makes work easier. A horse is more trouble than a machine. But a machine is not always necessary to do farm work any more than a car is necessary to the city dweller to do the work his own father made a shank's mare do.

Also, a horse can eat a lot of nonsalable roughage, which food is much cheaper than gasoline is going to be while we need it for tanks and airplanes and army jeeps.

The United States now has 100,000 civilian pilots at the end of 1941, or five times as many as it had on July 1, 1938. About 65,000 of the new pilots were trained in the Civil aeronautics administration program begun in 1939.

¶ Although the White House grounds and entrances are guarded by a flock of extra policemen, nobody is paying any attention to the Japanese pin oaks which line the walk from the main building to the Executive office entrance.

¶ The first commander in chief of the army and navy to hold divine services on ship board was President Roosevelt.

¶ Japan is burning the candle at both ends as far as her materials for war are concerned. Supplies of metals are, of course, particularly short. Reports reaching our commerce department say that strenuous efforts are being devoted by the Japanese to the gathering of old railway cars, kitchen utensils, iron fences, manhole lids, pipes, wire, etc.

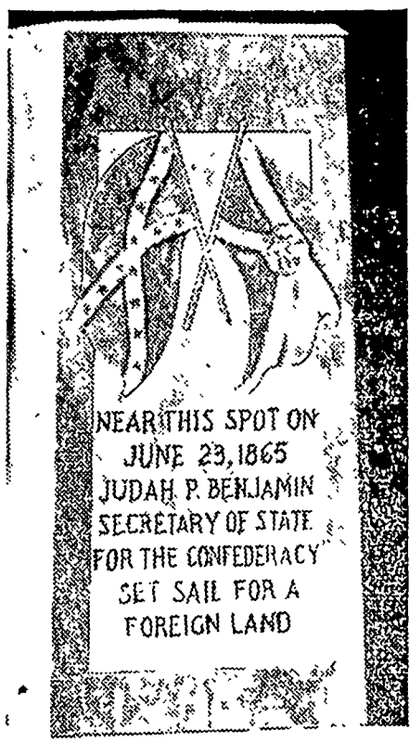
Honors to an Exile

ON JANUARY 22 the Sarasota (Fla.) chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will unveil in that city this monument:



Thus will belated honors be paid to an American exile whose career was unique in the annals of his country. For when Judah Philip Benjamin "set sail for a foreign land" he left behind him a distinguished record under two American governments. Twice elected to the United States senate, he was the second Jew who had ever attained such a high place in the national legislature. In the government of the Confederate States of America, he had held successively three cabinet posts—attorney general, secretary of war and secretary of state—and had the reputation of being the "brains of the Confederacy."

But on June 23, 1865, he was a fugitive in disguise with a price of $50,000 on his head. Such a fact should have marked the end of an ordinary man. But in the case of Benjamin it only marked the beginning of a new life. Escaping to England he resumed his law career and within seven years had a practice not exceeded by any attorney in Great Britain.

In sharp contrast to the wealth and influence to which he attained in the British capital was the status there of his parents — an unsuccessful Jewish merchant and a Portuguese Jewess. In 1808 they left London for New Orleans. But the blockade of the Mississippi, caused by the Napoleonic wars, forced them to stop at the island of St. Croix in the West Indies (now one of the Virgin islands under the American flag) and here their son was born on August 6, 1811.

Judah Benjamin

He was admitted to the bar when he was only 21 and his success soon brought him into prominence and made him a member of the celebrated firm of Slidell, Benjamin and Conrad. By the time he was 31 he had an annual income of $100,000 and two years later he was elected to the Louisiana assembly.

Elected to the United States senate in 1852, he was offered a place on the Supreme court by President Pierce but declined and was re-elected senator in 1859.

When Jefferson Davis became president of the Confederacy, Benjamin was the logical choice for attorney general but after five months he was made secretary of war. Smarting under the injustice of Confederate senate criticism, Benjamin resigned the war portfolio, whereupon Davis immediately made him secretary of state, a position which he held until the fall of the Confederacy forced him to seek refuge in England.

There, besides earning fees totaling almost $1,000,000 during his 16 years of practice, he completed his famous work on the English laws of sales, known now as "Benjamin on sale," which is still in use today as a major law school text and THE authority in its field. When he retired, leaders of England's legal profession honored him with a banquet, the first of its kind ever given an English barrister. Later he moved to Paris and there he died on May 8, 1884.

Besides being a man of great natural talent, Benjamin was noted as an indefatigable worker. While he was secretary of state, President Jefferson Davis, relying upon his versatility and capacity for hard work, often called upon him to perform many tasks outside his own department. As an example of Benjamin's industry it is recorded that often during the dark days of the Confederacy, it was his habit to begin work at eight o'clock in the morning and continue uninterruptedly until two o'clock the next morning.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

by DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

AN INSIDE STORY

Here is the inside story on what happened in all the fuss and furore over the Free French seizure of the two tiny North Atlantic islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon.

The story illustrates a very important point: That U. S.-British foreign policy has got to pull closer together in the future, and that state department officials might have thought twice about slapping British policy in the face—especially at a time when Winston Churchill was sitting in the White House working on plans for closer Anglo-American co-ordination.

The crux of the situation was that the radio stations on these two French islands long have been suspected of giving information to Vichy—and then to Berlin—on British convoys crossing the North Atlantic, also on Britain-bound bombers hopping off from Newfoundland.

French fishing vessels from St. Pierre-Miquelon cruise all over the Newfoundland banks and are in an excellent position to observe Allied activity in this vital part of the Atlantic More recently, Nazi submarines have been prowling closer to U S shores and it was suspected they might be getting information—or even supplies—from the fishing vessels.

So the British gave the nod to General DeGaulle to move into the islands. In fact they even let his associate, Vice Admiral Muselier, take three French corvettes to do the job. There was no great secret about it, for Admiral Muselier stopped in Canada to talk to Canadian Naval Minister Angus MacDonald, and also picked up some American newspaper men to witness the taking over of the two islands.

'SO-CALLED' FREE FRENCH

However, on the morning Admiral Muselier placed the Free French flag on St. Pierre-Miquelon, Secretary Hull, getting the news at his breakfast table, hurried to the state department and OK'd a scathing statement, castigating the "so-called" Free French.

This upset the British considerably, because they had been encouraging the French people to think of the Free French not as a "so-called" government, but as a government more truly free and representative of the French people than Vichy.

Also it upset the Jugoslavs, the Dutch, the Greeks and a lot of other "so-called" governments which have been maintaining headquarters in London and have been calling themselves the real governments of their countries—even though in exile.

However, Secretary Hull seemed to be even more upset than the British. He had made a deal with Vichy's Admiral Robert in Martinique a few days before, by which Admiral Robert was to keep an eye on St. Pierre-Miquelon. And he felt this agreement should be kept. So, his Tennessee dander up, Mr. Hull cabled U. S. Ambassador Winant in London to take up the matter with the British government.

Ambassador Winant, in turn, went to Malcolm MacDonald, minister of colonies, who was upset that the United States and Britain should be working at cross-purposes, and telephoned his friend Lord Beaverbrook back in Washington to have Churchill straighten the matter out with Roosevelt.

By that time, Sam Reber, in the state department, had telephoned R. E. Barclay of the British embassy wanting to know what the British were up to, and every Anglo-American co-ordinator seemed to be in every other Anglo-American co-ordinator's hair.

What the President said to his secretary of state is their secret, but in the end Mr. Hull adopted a milder tone toward the Free French and is working out a compromise agreement with the Canadians.

The crux of the controversy, of course, is that Mr. Hull still believes in appeasing Vichy, and the British gave that up long ago.

The British say that General DeGaulle did most of the fighting for the Allied cause in Syria, while Vichy, in resisting, killed many British troops. So they are going to stick with DeGaulle.

But whichever side is right—the British or Secretary Hull—it might pay to work out some teamwork in advance.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Lend-lease officials were puzzled by a British request for "horn and hoof meal" manufactured from dead cattle—until they learned it was excellent for extinguishing incendiary bombs

Most staggering lend-lease request was for one railroad—complete with locomotives and freight cars. The order has been filled, and shipped off to Iran.

Before buying cloth for army raincoats, the quartermaster depot in Philadelphia tests it with a machine that creates an artificial rain storm.

For military reasons details can't be revealed, but the U. S. is producing an anti-aircraft gun that is more powerful and deadly than any now in use in the army. The new weapon is designed to combat stratosphere bombers

Novel Products Being Developed in Building

Structural clay tile especially suited to defense construction, an upward acting garage door set, a modern wiring system for low cost dwellings and farm outbuildings, and newly designed bathtubs of ceramic material are among the building products described in the bulletin of the Producers' Council, edited by the Department of Technical Services of the American Institute of Architects

When structural clay tile is used, construction time is not required for plastering, painting, or other wall finishes, because the tile functions as both structural wall material and surface finish of the building, it is pointed out The exterior faces are textured while the interior faces are smooth The tile has strength, low maintenance cost, and good resistence to weathering and fire It has been used in the National Guard armory, Hot Springs, Ark

The new bathtub, designed with flat bottom and a panel front, has a hard glasslike surface that is easy to clean A comfortable seat extends across the front of the bath, a splash rim keeps water from surging over, and a hand grip provides greater safety in getting in and out of the tub Although the bottom is flat to reduce danger of slipping, a pitch toward the outlet assures overall rapid draining

Modern garage hardware for the house built on a limited budget swings the garage door up out of the way It can be applied to old doors, converting them into a one-piece upward acting door The doors can be fitted snugly all around, completely sealing the opening when closed The installation is called simple and speedy The hardware includes all necessary parts, with locking device designed for use with a padlock.

America's 'Garden Spot' Known for Fertile Land

Called the "Garden Spot of America" because it is located in one of the richest farm regions in the country, Lancaster, Pa., was first settled by English, Palatinate Germans, Scotch-Irish and French-Huguenots It is the center of a large population of members of the "Plain People" sects

According to a descriptive pamphlet published by the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce, "Here Penn's Commissioners signed a treaty with the Indians in the old Moravian Church on West Orange Street Continental Congress met at Lancaster when the English captured Philadelphia At an old stone mill on the edge of the city the famous 'long rifles' were made for the Continental Army Cannons were cast in the Lancaster County iron foundries of 'Baron' Stiegel, also famous for his glass"

Lancaster also boasts of other claims to fame such as Wheatland, the home of James Buchanan, fifteenth President of the United States and only Pennsylvanian to hold that office, birthplace of Robert Fulton, Donegal Church and Historic Witness Tree and other spots of historic interest

Poultry Bones Kill Dog

Poultry bones are, sooner or later, fatal to the dog who is allowed to eat them When chewed to a pulp, their many sharp points are liable to pierce the throat or the walls of the stomach or the intestines, as thoroughly as would a handful of pins For a while, your dog may be able to avoid this fate, after a feast of such bones (often he disgorges them and thus is saved) but in the course of time they will get him That is known to all dog men.

The question was put to three noted scientists and to a professor at a veterinary college

All of them said that any kind of cooking has the effect of "calcining" poultry bones making them brittle and giving them needle points when they are crushed by a dog's teeth. Raw fresh poultry bones are softer They can be chewed and digested usually without harm.

Rice Stem-rot

Rotations of four to six years apparently will not eliminate the rice stem-rot disease from the soil, is the opinion of E C Tullis of the United States department of agriculture and E M Cralley of the Arkansas Agricultural Experiment station here

The scientists found that the stem-rot disease of rice can remain viable in uncultivated rice soil for as long as six years, when infective material was stored under normal outside conditions Even after two years infective material was obtained from stubble in the field When stubble was stored in the laboratory under less favorable conditions, infective material was recovered after 2½ years.

Seek Better Outlets For Southern Products

Southern farmers, who have been growing more and more fruits and vegetables since 1931, also have a growing problem of getting the produce to market. On a tonnage basis, production in six southeastern states increased more than 30 per cent in the seven years up to 1938, according to the bureau of agricultural economics, U. S. department of agriculture More and more of this increase is going into the eastern markets New York city and Philadelphia in 1938 received nearly one-third of their supplies from six southeastern states, in comparison with about one-fourth in 1931.

There has been a marked shift in the way these fruits and vegetables move to market While tonnage was increasing more than 30 per cent, rail and boat shipments went down 17 per cent. Motor-truck receipts of fruits and vegetables in New York and Philadelphia from those six southern states were equal to more than 17,000 carloads in 1938—about seven times the figure for 1931.

The South needs an adequate market system, says the bureau, to provide for its expanding fruit and vegetable production and for the shifting methods of transportation. The bureau of agricultural economics, co-operating with the various states, has been studying ways to improve the handling of these perishable commodities, and to develop a marketing channel where no adequate channel exists.

New Flour for National Diet Developed by U. S.

Nowadays everyone talks of business, home, recreation in terms of the national defense program. And the program has speeded up production in many fields. Besides guns, munitions and war equipment, for instance, there's a noticeable speed-up in nutrition experiments.

The latest development along these lines is a new flour for the national diet And government experts say it will restore vitamin B to "the staff of life" This vitamin flour is in the last stages of perfection in the offices of the department of agriculture. But it still is unnamed.

Authorities say that the new flour will not be a compulsory diet item. Millers and bakers and grocers will still be permitted to mill, bake and sell the old white flour, and housewives will use it. But any flour sold under the name to be picked must meet the standards that are being written into the definition.

The public will be urged to eat this flour, at least as the main part of the breadstuffs that go with the daily three meals. And that brings a short discussion of the need of vitamins Doctors and research workers have spent years delving into every possible angle of the subject And their findings are conclusive enough to prove that vitamins are not a fad.

Meat on Daily Menu

Through ages long past, meat has been an important part of man's diet Centuries before man knew that meat was a rich source of protein, vitamins, phosphorus and iron, he ate meat to satisfy his natural craving for it

Now, nutrition has become a science which shows us what we should eat and why Recent advances in this science make it clear that from a nutritional point of view, even though a charge account at a grocery store has replaced a bow and arrow, the important place meat has always held in the diet of man is both desirable and justified

And why should meat be a part of the daily diet? First of all, it is an unexcelled source of protein Protein is one of the essential elements we need in our body for growth and to build or repair body tissues. The protein of meat is unequaled not only because it is present in large quantities but because the protein of meat contains so many of the amino acids necessary for health.

Grand Coulee Dam

Grand Coulee dam is 98 per cent completed and it now towers far above the construction trestle from which visitors view the dam. About 10,500,000 cubic yards of concrete are already in the barrier and only about 35,000 yards remain to be placed.

The dam is 4,200 feet across the crest, 550 feet wide at the base and 32 feet wide at the top. It contains 25,000,000 tons of concrete and steel. A highway will run across the crest over a series of bridges spanning the drum gates.

Electric Toothbrush

With the invention of a mechanical toothbrush human beings are going to be relieved even of the slight effort now required to scrub their molars. The electric toothbrush cleans the teeth with rapid "up and down" motions in the manner prescribed by dentists as the bristles are vibrated The apparatus resembles an electric razor in appearance with the exception that either a short-handled brush or a rubber gum massager is inserted in the handle. And one electric toothbrush safely can be used by all members of the family by obtaining individual brushes and massagers.

Three Meals Daily Plan Generally Followed Here

The three-meal-a-day plan is the most generally followed in this country. We have never felt the need of officially breaking the interval which is between luncheon and dinner as do the English.

What may be called a typical American breakfast will give us a good start toward getting the proper quota of necessary nutriments for the day. We begin with fruit or fruit juice which gives us some of our mineral and vitamin supply. Children and many adults will be sure to have cereal, either hot or ready-to-eat, and this will be served with milk. From this combination we get some minerals and vitamins, some protein for tissue building and some fuel for the energy which we are going to use up during the day. As a final source we may have eggs or bacon or sausage with toast or rolls.

The eggs should be used at least three times a week for the sake of their minerals and vitamins unless we are using them at some other meal. Sausage and bacon supply savoriness which stimulates appetite and gives us a feeling of well-being. In sausage, we will find more of the protein which will give us a start toward what we need for the day.

Doing without breakfast is a bad habit which should not be encouraged. The stomach needs food after its 12 or more hours of rest.

Orthopedic Expert Says Army Shoes Don't Fit

The United States government, which is spending thousands of dollars daily for army shoes and has numerous inspectors examining shoes made for soldiers, has spent scarcely a penny for properly fitting the shoes for the men who must wear them, said H. L. Whitman, shoe inventor and orthopedics expert.

Whitman said every factory making army shoes has from five to eight inspectors checking output. "The government is spending thousands of dollars a day to see that army shoes are properly constructed," he said. "Why has it failed to spend money to see that the shoes are properly fitted to the men?"

He said he recently examined shoes of more than a dozen army recruits and National Guardsmen called to service. "In every case," he added, "I found that the shoes were improperly fitted Every shoe was from a half-size to two sizes too short"

A scarcity of narrow shoes exists in the army, he stated, with a surplus of wide ones.

Smallest Incorporated Town

The town of Dellview, N C., owes its incorporation to a band of dogs. Davis P Dellinger and his two brothers ran a big poultry ranch. Dogs used to raid the coops. The county laws did not seem to afford enough protection. So Davis Dellinger, who was also a lawyer, hit on a plan to curb the depredations.

While county laws may or may not have been lax in dealing with stray dogs, the laws of incorporated towns were not. The Dellingers arranged for the legislature to incorporate their huge ranch into a town —a town of only eight inhabitants, perhaps the smallest burg of its kind. Then they enacted drastic laws for the destruction of ownerless dogs They put those ordinances into effect so vigorously that soon the dog pack was wiped out.

This was in 1925. Later, the poultry business was given up, and the ranch was turned into a farm for the raising of hay and of vegetables. But it was still a legally incorporated town; and with the same population as at first.

Origin of Slang Words

Although many slang words and popular figures of speech are of unknown origin, more than few may be traced to the classics and to mythology, while others are found to have rich historic and romantic backgrounds.

Common expressions that are typical American include "anxious seat," which has a religious background; "tax per nose," originated with Odin, a legendary ruler of Sweden, who assessed a tax of one penny per nose; "well heeled," is a bird that has a good natural spur, or a well-placed steel gaff, and the picturesque "lock, stock and barrel" was given to us by the early American settler whose most important possession was his flintlock rifle, consisting of three parts, the lock, the stock and the barrel.

Glimpse of Old South

As the scene of one of the decisive battles of the world, Vicksburg, last stronghold of the Confederacy, offers the visitor a fascinating picture of the South as it was and is today.

One of the nation's longest and most beautiful scenic highways, U. S. 16 (Ole Man River Trail), follows the Mississippi to Vicksburg where it junctions with another great transcontinental highway, U S 80

A sight not to be missed by the traveler is the Vicksburg National Military park, best preserved and most completely marked major battlefield in the world.

One look at the towering bluffs, overlooking the greatest river in the world, and it is easy to understand why General Grant failed three times before he succeeded in breaking the Confederate stronghold.

President Grant Never Member Republican Party

Ulysses S. Grant was elected President by the Republicans in 1868 without ever having been a member of that party. He never cast a Republican ballot until after he had been that party's President for eight years. His last vote before he reentered the army in the War Between the States was cast for a radical pro-slavery Democrat.

There had been a bitter feud between Grant and Andrew Johnson, who became President after Lincoln's assassination. Johnson tried to get Grant out of the country by ordering him to Mexico, but Grant refused to go. Johnson then made an attempt to overthrow Grant by calling Gen George Henry Thomas to the command of the Union army Thomas, who had been born in Virginia, declined to obey the order because he felt he was being used as an instrument to displace Grant

As a result, Grant served notice that he would not permit Johnson to accompany him in the inauguration ceremonies This is one of the few instances where a retiring President has not been present at the induction of his successor. Neither was Johnson at the White House to welcome Grant to his new home

The real nightmare of both Grant's inaugurations were the inaugural balls The first was held in a new wing of the treasury building. The guests had to descend steps to get to the ballroom, and no provision had been made for checking wraps or for carriage calls. Women were almost unprotected from the hazards of mismanagement. The supper was a failure.

Those who got into the supper room simply stayed there hungry, sleepy and many so tired that they lay on the floor to rest It was there that Horace Greeley lost his famous white hat and his gray overcoat.

Plates on Shoes Arouse School; Ban Protested

A furor was created at Soldan high school at St. Louis by protests about students who wore steel plates on the heels and toes of their shoes to keep them from wearing down

They made so much noise walking through corridors and classrooms that school authorities requested the students not to wear the plates in the school building.

At least one student protested the ban as "undemocratic."

H. P. Stillwagen, principal of the school, denied any strict orders had been issued He said "that when several hundred students came to school wearing steel shoe plates, the clatter could be heard the full length of the building." He said "We courteously requested the students not to wear the plates."

How Gossip Started

To associate "gossip" with God would at first sight seem sacrilegious, yet, strange indeed in the way of words, the two are closely connected.

For "gossip" stems from the Anglo-Saxon godsibb, which is a combination of God and sib relation, the whole meaning "akin to God" or "a kinsman of the Lord."

This accounts for the earliest meaning in English of gossip as a godfather or godmother, one, that is, who sponsored a child, a sense exemplified in the usage of the word by Selden in the line·

"Should a great lady that was invited to be a gossip, in her place send her kitchen maid, it would be ill taken."

The next natural evolution in meaning of "gossip" was its now obsolete sense of a friend, companion or intimate, and finally, its modern significance of one, frequently a confidante, who tells tales out of school.

Bacteria in Cheese Okeh

The aging or ripening of cheese is the result of bacterial or mold action Don't get scared—of the many thousands of kinds of bacteria there are, only a very few are disease producing, less than 100 in fact. The rest are harmless or beneficial, and it is the beneficial sorts that set to work on cheese What they work on is the casein

When casein is coagulated for cheese-making, it is tough stuff, in fact, when coagulated casein is not made into cheese, it is made into billiard balls or glue If you ever try to wrench apart a wood joint set up with casein glue you may get an idea of why green cheese is difficult to digest

The bacteria and their ferments and enzymes transform this casein into soft and friable forms—almost digest it, in fact. Since cheese must be ripened at a rather low temperature, 40 to 60 or at most 65 degrees, and since bacteria grow slowly at these temperatures, proper ripening of cheese takes time.

Fear Unknown Mystery Most

Men have always been more afraid of mystery than of genuine known dangers The fear of the unknown caused people to become terrified as the result of Orson Welles' famous broadcast We thought we were being bombed from Mars and could not tell what caused it

People in London who now know what causes the bombing go calmly to their shelters and often go on about their work. Men go bravely to death in battle because they know what causes all the danger, but imagined dangers terrify the stoutest heart.

If soup is too salty, drop a sliced raw potato into it, and boil for 5 or 6 minutes. The potato will remove some of the salt.

U. S. citizens have eaten about 600 billion pounds of meat since Jan. 1, 1900, or an average of about 141 pounds per capita per year. Of this meat, 47 per cent was pork, 43 per cent beef, 4½ per cent lamb and 5 per cent veal.

Bureau of Agricultural Chemistry and Engineering experiments with soybean oil for paints show that paints containing soybean oil alone as the oil constituent compare well with linseed oil paints in durability, flexibility and adherence However, they dry somewhat more slowly

Since 1932 social welfare work has become increasingly important in Iowa. This is shown by the fact that in that year there were only 150 full-time social workers in the state compared with more than 500 this year These figures do not include those connected with private agencies.

THE TEMPTATION OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 4:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—For we have an high priest . . . (who) was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.—Hebrews 4:15.

"We have not a high priest that cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but one that hath been in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4:15, R.V.). We recognize that Jesus was tempted as the Messiah (see Matt. 4:3, 6) and as One who had no sin, and yet He was tempted in all points as we are; and we may learn from His temptation how to meet temptation and be victorious over it.

I. Temptation.

It is the common lot of all mankind to be tempted (I Cor. 10:13). The strongest and most noble of men are subject to it; angels were tempted — yes, even Jesus was tempted. We need to know about temptation, so we note

1. What It Is (v. 1). Temptation is of the devil. It is, as Principal Fairbairn expressed it, "seduction to evil, solicitation to wrong. It stands distinguished from trial thus: trial tests, seeks to discover the man's moral qualities or character; but temptation persuades to evil, deludes that it may ruin. God tries. Satan tempts."

Note that temptation is not sin, but yielding to the temptation is sin.

We are told by James (Jas. 1:13-15) that man is tempted by his own lusts. He also tells us that God may permit temptations or trials to test our faith (Jas. 1:2, 3), but His purpose is only to prove us able to stand. God does not suffer us to be tempted beyond endurance, but provides a way of escape (I Cor. 10 13).

2. How It Works (vv. 2, 3, 5, 6, 8, 9). Satan has only three temptations, although he is a master at giving them different appearances. The temptation of Jesus followed the same threefold line as that of Adam and Eve (Gen. 3:6), which is described in I John 2:16 as the general temptation of all men, namely, "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life." Observe how Satan worked on Jesus: (a) By appealing to the flesh (vv. 2, 3). Jesus had fasted 40 days, and Satan took advantage of that fast to suggest that He use His divine power of creation to satisfy His hunger. To do so would have been to deny His very mission on earth.

Satan observes in man the normal appetites of his body, excites them to a high degree, and then tempts him to satisfy them in an improper way. (b) By appealing to pride (vv. 5, 6). God had promised to keep Jesus "in all his ways" (Ps. 91: 11), but casting Himself from the temple was not one of God's "ways" for Him.

The devil wants us to be presumptuous and call it faith, and this is his pitfall for one who really wants to believe—cause him to become a fanatic and substitute foolish presumption for faith. (c) By appealing to the eyes (vv. 8, 9). By showing Christ the kingdoms of the earth in some kind of striking panorama, or moving picture, he offered a short cut to their rule by a brief act of worship of him, rather than by way of the cross. The devil showed his real purpose here. He wants worship—he wants us to bow to him instead of to God.

II. Our Lord Was Victorious Over Satan.

We, too, can triumph in His blessed name. To do so we need to study the way of victory.

1. How to Gain It (vv. 4, 7, 10). Three steps appear: (a) By the right use of Scripture. If our Lord needed and used that weapon, how can we possibly do without it? How can we use it if we do not study it, and hide it in our hearts (Ps. 119: 11)? (b) By complete dependence upon God. Every Scripture used by Jesus against Satan honored God the Father. We cannot fight Satan in our own strength. Luther was right—"Did we in our own strength confide, Our striving would be losing"

The real victory for the Christian is to bring Satan to the foot of the cross. Christ defeated him completely there, and we may plead that victory. (c) By denouncing Satan. Jesus sent him on his way. We may do the same, in Jesus' name. It is always a serious error to argue with Satan, or even to discuss matters with him. He is not divine, but he is a supernatural being with knowledge and cunning which are too much for us Meet him with Scripture, honor God by your faith in Christ, then "resist the devil, and he will flee from you" (Jas. 4:7).

2 What It Brings (v. 11). When the defeated devil left Christ, angels came and ministered to Him. The overcoming of temptation brings victory, peace, and blessed rest. This is ever true in the life of the believer. Temptations victoriously met make one stronger in meeting the next temptation. There is always a next one, for we read (Luke 4:13) that the devil left Christ only "for a season."

Treasurer Says 99.05% Of Taxes For Past Year Paid In Now

Hancock County Treasurer Roy L. McMillin brings good news this week when he says "Citizens of Hancock County may feel proud of the fact that the county is out of debt. We have a good balance in all accounts and have no outstanding warrants and the county books show a balance on hand amounting to $322,380 80"

In these critical times that news is very encouraging and shows the efficient manner in which our officials are handling the business of the county.

Total amount to be collected was shown as $562,073 23, and the collections to December 31st were $556,768.41.

This is only the current tax, while the Delinquent tax shows collections amounting to $8,531.98 Drainage collections $18,514 99 and interest on delinquent taxes $1,893.28.

Auto and truck fees for the year amounted to $85,405 75 The treasurer received from the auto department for credit of the county fund the sum of $3,374 00

Use Tax for the year 1941 amounted to $9,489 00

Auto License and Truck License become delinquent January 31st, and all have penalty attached after that date Trailers are also delinquent and draw $1.00 per mo penalty.

Federal Stamps for automobiles and trucks that are in use on the highway may be purchased at any post office. If they are in storage they need not have stamps until they are taken out and put in use on the road.

HELP YOUR GROCER— SAVE PAPER BAGS

There is developing a real shortage in paper bags used in grocery stores and you can help your home town merchant by saving the paper bags and when you go to the store take a bag with you to carry your groceries home in This is now being done in many towns.

Here are a few ways you can help your Klemme grocer

When you do your shopping get along with a minimum of wrapping Don't ask him to put a wrapped loaf of bread in a large sack, don't ask for separate small bags unless necessary; don't ask for a bag if you have only a few items to carry That will all help.

Don't think the stores are stingy when they stop using paper, tape, string and extra wrappings in the wastefully lavish form we have been used to These things are going to be hard to get, so help conserve and by so doing you are also co-operating with the government in helping lick the Japs

Farmers who have been getting their groceries in paper boxes can help by bringing the boxes with them and again have them filled with groceries several times.

People in town should use a shopping bag, or bring their own large paper bags in which to place groceries

Save paper, don't burn it or throw it away. Save paper bags and return them to your grocer

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE RICH to help American Defense. That's the theme of the above poster, one of the newest of the Defense Savings promotional pieces now going up in streetcars, on bulletin boards, and at other public places. This poster emphasizes the point advanced by the Treasury Department that every American can—and must—pitch in if the United States is to have the arms and the tools necessary to protect her freedom.

Care of Tires Becomes Vital With Rationing

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Before tire rationing became an actuality, motorists and car owners in the United States considered a tire as just another commodity purchaseable when ever needed. Then few motorists gave any reasonable amount of thought to ways and means of lengthening the life of their tires.

There are a good number of motorists who are well acquainted with the story making the rounds concerning a test-car driver who was asked how he would wear out a brand-new set of tires in three days. Those motorists, more than likely, after hearing that story began to check up on themselves to see if they were guilty of such actions suggested by the test-driver in that story, the idea of which is repeated here.

'Successful' Tire Wear.

The "successful" ways to wear out tires, according to that veteran driver, are· "Underinflate each tire about 20 per cent. Drive in hilly country where the roads are twisty and the grades steep. Select a pavement having a 'sandpaper' top. Choose hot, dry weather. Take curves so fast the tires slide and squeal loudly, run mostly on the road shoulders. Spin the wheels when starting, open 'er up to 70 or better when you can, and always make screaming, sudden stops."

But today motorists aren't out for such an experimental lark. They are intelligently doing the following things test-car research has proved about tires and their proper care:

They are keeping careful check on the inflation of their tires. For

it has been found that underinflation increases tread wear, causes walls and cords to break down, and increases susceptibility to pinch-damage Overinflation concentrates wear in the tread center, makes wheels bounce, spin, and skid, and promote bruises and hard riding If a tire is run flat it might be ruined in but a few seconds

Then, they now realize, there is the matter of pinching, bruising, and overloading Such is often hooked up with improper inflation Pinching usually is caused by striking objects which fold a tire wall against the rim often breaking or loosening cords. Bruising comes from striking stones, chuck holes, or curbing Overloading magnifies the effect of such thoughtless abuses

Good Tires Only Recapped.

And at this point motorists should understand it will be only the good tire that the government, through army specialsits, will permit to be recapped Not just any tire is going to be recapped For there is a definite time and condition of the life of a tire beyond which it is uneconomical to recap Trying to get wear out of the last few thousand miles puts a tire in the class where recapping for economically suitable use is doubtful

Besides the above points which motorists are paying strict attention to, here are some more suggestions, as read in Popular Science Monthly, that are helpful in adding miles, and perhaps years, to tires

Prevent wheel misalignment which scrubs rubber from treads. Similar damage comes from improper front-wheel camber and caster, bent axles, loose bearings, wheel wobble, unequal brakes, and out-of-round drums Likewise proper balance of the wheel and the shifting of tires, with the spare included in the shifting, further decreases rubber wear.

And a Few 'Don'ts'.

A few "don'ts" for motorists interested in longer tire life are: Don't speed in hot weather. Don't let the brakes become inequalized. Don't wheel-spin the car off to a jumping start—especially in gravel and cinders. Don't speed. And once again, don't let the rubber on your tires get too low before having them retreaded or recapped.

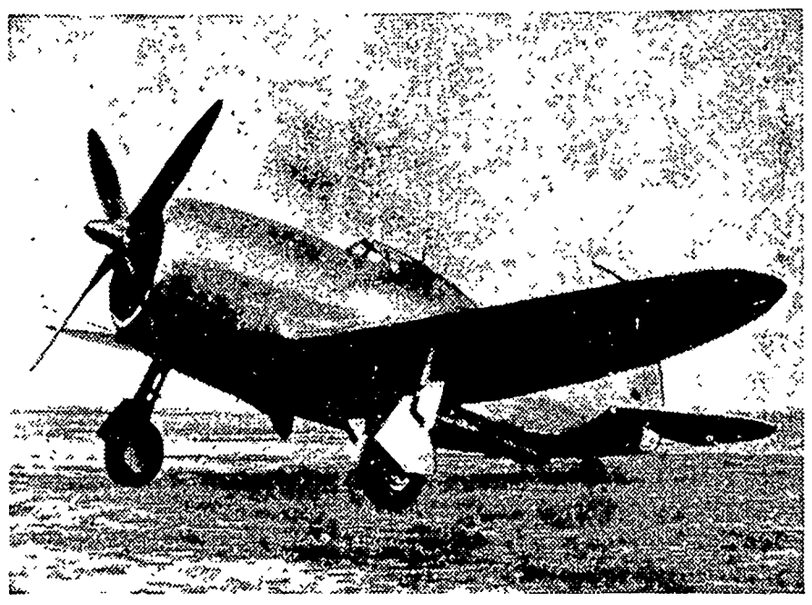
For technicians point out that a tire which is recapped before the rubber is worn to too great an extent will give close to the original mileage obtained from a new tire. Say these technicians, the recapping of a tire by the addition of approximately 15 pounds of rubber, keeps in service a tire of about four times that weight according to estimations.

Finally, here is what an authority has to say to put the "finishing touch" on tire conservation: "The kind of driving that is safest for the driver, his passengers, pedestrians, and the occupants of other cars is precisely the kind that produces longest life in tires and the car itself"

Vast Training Program Protects War Industry

STATE COLLEGE, PA.—Although long-range industrial planning has already created a huge reservoir of skilled workmen for war industries, the federal government in cooperation with Penn State and 144 other engineering schools is training reserve personnel. Penn State is giving courses at Pittsburgh steel mills, a Schenley, Pa , distilling company among other factories.

Fighter Planes Offer Best Defense In Protection From Bombing Attacks



WASHINGTON, D. C.—Pictured is the fastest fighter plane in the world, the Republic Thunderbolt, the P-47, which has attained a diving speed of 680 miles per hour and in level flight a speed of more than 400 miles per hour. According to the Office for Emergency Management, the Thunderbolt is soon to be placed in massed production. The plane has a 2,000 horse power engine, a four-bladed propeller and is 32 feet long. It has a wing spread of 41 feet. Fire power of the plane was not disclosed, but O.E.M. said it is "heavily armored and bristling with both large and small caliber guns."

How effective are anti-aircraft guns? How can they hit a target like a speedy elusive plane? Isn't it difficult to fire heavy projectiles several miles up into the air against the strong pull of gravity?

These questions are arising in the minds of many Americans, now that coastal cities of the United States are preparing for air raids, and guns are being set up to guard against them.

Actually, British experience in this war has shown that the chief value of anti-aircraft guns is not in bringing down enemy bombers, but in keeping them high and spoiling their aim, says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"If a bombing plane is to score a hit on its objective on the ground far below, it must fly in a straight line in the direction of the target for a few minutes to give the bombardier a chance to set his bomb sight accurately It is during this period that a bomber is vulnerable to anti-aircraft fire, for then the pilot cannot dodge or follow a zigzag course

Anti-aircraft gunners worry less about overcoming the pull of gravity than about getting their shells up fast enough to explode near or hit their rapidly moving target. Anti-aircraft shells contain a powerful charge of powder, designed primarily to launch the projectile on its upward path with the greatest possible speed.

Bomber pilots have learned in this war to watch for the flash of anti-aircraft guns firing at them from below, according to British officers who have been interviewed in this country. When they see the flash, they know that it will take several seconds for the shell to reach their level and explode. In this brief period of grace they try to dodge, if possible. Hence the importance of making shells travel upward at the greatest possible speed.

Fighter planes are the best defense against enemy bombers, the British have found. During the heavy air attacks on England in 1940, British fighters shot down nearly 10 times as many German bombers as did anti-aircraft guns. Heavy guns of about three-inch bore and upwards are used against high-flying bombers.

Against dive-bombers, which zoom down close to their targets, light, rapid-fire anti-aircraft guns are effective, British experience shows. One of the most useful is a 40-millimeter (about 1¾ inch) gun. The best way to use such a gun is to wait until the dive bomber is very close to the ground and the range is short, and then fire at high speed. If a dive bomber is fired upon when it is still high, the pilot can see the location of the guns, and has time to pull out of his dive and approach from a new direction.

Machine gun fire also is effective against dive bombers if the gunner can restrain his eagerness until the plane is at very close range, British officers report During the evacuation of the British army from Dunkerque some German dive bombers even were brought down by concentrated rifle fire.

One incidental use for heavy anti-aircraft guns is to show friendly fighter planes the location of enemy bombers It is often difficult for fliers in the air to spot other planes Gunners on the ground in England sometimes fire a few bursts of shrapnel in the direction of an enemy bomber formation to point out its location to British fighters that are in the air, then leave the battle to the airmen

Anti-aircraft shells are set to explode at any desired height before they are loaded in the gun. The height, and other factors that enter into calculation of the range are determined by secret and highly complicated apparatus. When a shell bursts, fragments of shrapnel are sent flying in all directions over a considerable area.

WASHINGTON —Food production is at high record levels, buying power of consumers is the greatest ever, prices and income to farmers average the best in a decade or more, according to a current analysis of the bureau of agricultural economics, U. S department of agriculture. This means, says the report, that producers and consumers of food are in unusually good economic position.

Government figures show that the income of industrial workers has increased considerably more than the increase in food prices during the last two years Whereas total non-agricultural income is about 39 per cent larger than the 1935-39 average, retail food prices average only 10 per cent higher than at that time Monthly earnings per employed factory worker are 40 per cent higher than in 1935-39, whereas farmers in recent months have been getting about 30 per cent higher prices for food than at that time. This means purchasing power is increased in the same proportion.

Expanded War Program Will Touch Every Home

All Phases of National Life to Feel Effects of Changes Brought About 'Colossal' Economy; Tire, Car Curbs Are Mere Beginning.

By BAUKHAGE

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

In less time than it takes to read this column a new airplane should be completed—that is, if the program outlined by the President in his message on the state of the Union is carried out.

That seems like a large order. It is. But this is what the President has planned for 1942: 60,000 new planes, 45,000 new tanks, 20,000 new anti-aircraft guns, 8,000,000 tons of merchant shipping. Since there are only 8,760 hours in the year, if the OPM is to meet the President's goals, planes will have to roll out of the factories at the rate of one every eight minutes, tanks at the rate of one every 11 minutes, anti-aircraft guns at the rate of one every 25 minutes, and shipping at the rate of 15 tons a minute.

America's resources may be unlimited, but human comprehension is not. Ever since that message was delivered in congress, Washington has been straining in an attempt to comprehend those colossal figures.

Already some of the effects are being translated in terms of human experience—you know if you have tried to buy a tire or an automobile Other even more painful experiences are ahead One of them is the unemployment which is coming while the civilian industry is being converted to defense production

Small Plants Hit

It means that some 133,000 small plants will close their doors for good. They are too small to be converted. Their workers and supervisors, if they are competent, will be able to find employment elsewhere

It means that thousands of salesmen who sell, not merely refrigerators, ice boxes and juke boxes, vacuum cleaners and electric toys, but other things which we once thought were necessities will stop selling. They may have to take off their white collars.

A survey of some thousand middle sized manufacturing concerns now turning out defense products has been made by the labor department. It revealed that three-fourths of the plants were working on three shifts already. Remember that was before the President tossed off his new production figures and the OPM "raised its sights" to meet them But in these plants it was found that the second and third shifts used only half the man-power employed in the first shift. Right there is a 50 per cent increase in employment. These were plants selected as typical.

Someone will have to fill those extra shifts and a great many others It will mean that a lot of "brain-workers" will have to work their hands. When a nation suddenly turns over 50 per cent of its income to defense production, it means that the man in search of a job has less than half a chance at getting any other kind of work.

In our homes, the effect of war measures has already made itself felt Wool is rationed already That is because even with all our sheep we depend on Australia and the Argentine for wool We haven't the ships to bring it here And we are getting ready to clothe an army of 5,000,000 men. Other restrictions will come.

In his budget message, the President hinted that we might have to carry ration cards the way the Europeans do before the war is over. That is more of a threat perhaps, than a prediction but it is worth remembering before we get too complacent.

Fertilizer 'Rationing'

Already the farmer is being rationed though he may not realize it Take fertilizer, for instance:

First, the nitrates All synthetic nitrates have to go into munitions. The one word nitro-glycerine reminds you of that Natural nitrates have other things in them, so the army is after those, too. But since they come from Chile, they have to come in ships And there are few ships for this purpose.

Second, phosphates. They come from Florida, Wyoming and Idaho. But they come in rocks. You can see a whole pile of these rocks right over in Baltimore. But it takes sulphuric acid to "digest" them. Sulphuric acid is needed for munitions

Third, sprays. Formaldehyde is a vital part of many sprays. Also, it is needed to disinfect stored grain and to remove smut and fungus from grain before seeding. But formaldehyde is necessary in the production of plastics to dissolve the woody material. And plastics! They are needed as substitutes for many essential metals.

Fourth, copper sulphate. There is no need to comment when you consider the part copper plays in war.

When it comes to rubber, the farmer, like everybody else is affected. The difference is that some farmers are going to be making rubber the next few years.

Out in California the climate produces the best Gayule plants. And there will be acres and acres of these plants cultivated. It takes some time—but some are already growing. A two-year-old crop will produce 900 pounds of very good rubber per acre. The trouble is that you have to dig up the plant to get the latex—it comes from the roots.

Then, of course, there is synthetic rubber, but I am not allowed to reveal the figures, which are going to play a lot more important part than many of our enemies think in our victory production. There are also the big cultivated rubber plantations in Brazil and Central America run by Ford and Goodyear, there is the wild rubber from the Amazon. And most important of all, there is the contribution that the most autominded people in the world are going to have to make—the privilege of not buying tires for America's 27,000,000 pleasure cars.

The privilege of "not buying" is going to be extended. There will be no more gadgets and there will be a lot less money to buy even the necessities when we pay our share of the bill for building the greatest war machine in history. A machine so big and so destructive that perhaps it will destroy war itself.

Weather Information And Broadcasting

The highly interesting yearbook just issued by the department of agriculture is devoted to climate and weather It appears just when for the first time in American history it is worse than a crime to discuss the weather—that is if you talk loud enough to be overheard by enemy ears A few weeks ago the navy department released an official communique severely blaming a commentator who mentioned the weather in Dakota He gave out information which the navy said may have been the cause of increased submarine activity in the eastern Atlantic.

In Washington we are not permitted to mention even yesterday's weather on the air. This ruling seemed a bit far-fetched to me. In commenting on the fact to an official I told the story of what happened to me when I was broadcasting from Berlin just after the war broke out. On a beautiful moonlight evening I blandly announced over the short wave that "it was a fine night for an air raid." Nobody objected to that. There had been no air raids and the question had never been raised. But the next night it was different. No more description of the current weather, I was told by the military censor—"You can talk about last night's weather but not tonight's," he said.

I asked my Washington friend why, if Berlin let me talk about last night's weather I couldn't do the same thing here. "Weather," he answered, "moves from west to east. Berlin's weather moved off where it didn't matter in 24 hours. Washington's weather moves right into the eastern Atlantic where knowledge of it might benefit raiders."

Snack on a Frosty Night—Broiled Wienies
(See Recipes Below)

Wintry Snacks

The cold, frosty evenings with their full program of basketball games, sleigh ride parties, skating and other wintertime amusements call for piping hot, hearty snacks to take care of brisk appetites While in warmer weather, the family could raid the ice box, now the problem is slightly different, as hot food, satisfying but still simple, is in demand.

Here's a dish that just seems to fit the bill: the broiled wienies and hot potato salad pictured above. Of course, hot potato salad with wienies is an old favorite but there's a touch of something new in the wienies broiled with cheese and the green beans around the potato salad to add a touch of color.

Broiled Wienies.

Select two to three skinless frankfurters for each person to be served, two will do nicely for the girls and women but better count three for the men and boys Split the frankfurter and insert a strip of American cheese. When almost ready to serve, pop into the broiler and cook until cheese melts and browns.

Hot Potato Salad.
(Serves 6)

6 potatoes, boiled with skins on
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
Salt and pepper
6 slices bacon, broiled until crisp, crumbled

Peel potatoes and cube. Add remaining ingredients. Just before ready to serve, mix with this hot dressing:

Cooked Salad Dressing.

3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon yellow mustard
1½ tablespoons flour
1 egg yolk
¾ cup water
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon butter

Blend dry ingredients, then add egg yolk and blend until smooth. Add water, then vinegar, stirring constantly. Cook over boiling water, stirring all the while, until thick. Remove from fire, add butter and serve hot, mixed with potato salad.

Spaghetti is and has been for some time now one of the reigning favorites among hot dishes to serve in the evening. Here's one dish you'll like because it's both tart and satisfying, with plenty of cheese and sauce baked right into the long strips of spaghetti:

Baked Spaghetti.
(Serves 8)

1 pound package of spaghetti
3 small onions, chopped fine
2 tablespoons oil
1 pound ground beef
½ pound sausage (in the bulk)
½ pound mushrooms
½ teaspoon pickling spice
1 teaspoon salt
4 small cans tomato sauce
¾ pound grated American cheese

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water 12 to 15 minutes. Drain and run cold water through it. Saute onion, ground meat and sausage in oil until brown. Add mushrooms, spice, salt and tomato sauce. Simmer slowly for 40 minutes. Put thin layer of spaghetti on bottom of buttered casserole. Then add a layer of sauce then cheese, another layer of spaghetti and so on until all sauce, cheese and spaghetti is used. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven.

Another tomato-meat dish which is guaranteed to be aces with your guests dropping in after a basketball game, sleigh ride or what-have-you is this:

Tamale Pie.
(Serves 8)

1 medium-sized onion, chopped
3 tablespoons oil
1½ pounds beef, cut in cubes
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 large can tomatoes (2½ cups)
1 cup yellow bantam corn
1½ cups corn meal
5 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup grated cheese

Brown onion in oil, then add beef and cook until brown. Add salt, chili powder, tomatoes and corn and cook slowly 1 hour. Add corn meal to salted water and cook 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Cool mush, then line buttered casserole dish with a 1-inch layer of the mush. Pour in meat-vegetable mixture, then top with remaining mush. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 1¼ hours. During last quarter hour, sprinkle top with cheese. Serve with a sauce made by heating one can of tomato soup to which has been added 1 can of ripe, pitted olives.

Are you one of those homemakers who is always looking for one dish that can be modified and yet seem to be different every time it's served. I think baked beans is one of those dishes, and because of its hearty appeal you can serve it often.

Bean and Sausage Bake.
(Serves 4)

1 small onion, sliced
½ pound link sausage
1 can baked beans
1 tablespoon pickle relish
1 tablespoon chili sauce

Place onion on bottom of casserole and lay sausage on top of onion. Bake in a moderate oven 15 minutes, then drain off excess fat. Combine beans with onion, sausage, pickle relish and chili sauce. Return to oven for 20 minutes to reheat.

If you have only eggs, don't ever despair for they have excellent possibilities as snacks. Try scrambled eggs with cheese, bacon fried crisp and brown and crumbled, or broiled sausages. Omelets made with a slice of American cheese before they're folded are menu tempters, as are omelets made with a tomato sauce folded over them before serving.

Peach Crisp Pudding.

2 cups diced, dried peaches
2 cups water
½ cup sugar
¼ cup honey
½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon each, cloves, nutmeg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups ¼-inch toasted bread cubes
2 cups corn flakes

Soak peaches in boiling water 10 minutes Drain, add water and sugar; cook covered for 30 minutes. Remove from heat, add honey and stir until well mixed Cream butter and sugar thoroughly, add eggs and beat well. Stir in spices, flavoring, bread cubes and corn flakes Place one-half of mixture in buttered baking pan. Spread peaches evenly over top and cover with remaining mixture. Bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven about 25 minutes.

Lynn Says:

Here are a few quick snack ideas you'll like to paste in your notebook: Baked beans garnished with brown bread, cream cheese sandwiches, placed around the bean pot. You might try the canned baked beans with sliced ham, too It's quick, easy and delicious. Toasted buns with hamburgers, cheeseburgers, or ham and cheese slices go over nicely, too. Toasted English muffins with an egg fried or poached with ham are high in favor.

JESUS CALLS FOUR DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 5.1-11
GOLDEN TEXT—Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men. —Mark 1 17.

Followers of Christ are those who have not counted their goods nor their persons their own, but have willingly yielded all to Him. Obviously many who profess to follow Him have only done so in that measure which will not interfere with their own plans and interests. They need to study this lesson with care.

The call of Christ is one which demands willing and wholehearted obedience.

I. Yielded Possessions (vv. 1-3).

These disciples had already responded to the ministry of Jesus and had followed Him for a time (see John 1 35-4 54), but they did not yet know the fullness of surrender to Christ and had now gone back to their old work of fishing. May they not be typical of many in our day who know the Lord and have for a time followed Him closely, but have again become engrossed in their daily vocation, perhaps just making money?

Jesus was now ready to call them out into a lifetime of service, and the first thing He did was to ask the use of their chief possession, their boat. That was first yielded to Him.

It was not by chance that it was Peter's boat which was just at hand when the Master needed it. Such things do not "just happen." The destinies of men are in the hands of God, and with His children the simplest happening is known to and controlled by Him. He who numbers the hairs on our heads, He who observes the fall of the sparrow, knows about everything that happens to us.

II. Yielded Service (vv. 4-7).

Having completed His teaching by word, Jesus had a special object lesson for Peter and the others concerning the fruitlessness of service apart from His guidance and control, and the blessed results which come from obedience to Him.

Taking them where he found them, He showed the disciples that He was the Master even of their secular vocation of fishing. He is the One who knows more about your business than you do, who can give or withhold His blessing. All that we have has come to us from His hand, and it is all within His control.

This Almighty One was ready to call these fishermen out into the greater business of fishing for men by revealing to them His mighty power to bless and prosper the fisherman—who becomes a fisher of men.

III. Yielded Lives (vv. 8-11).

The giving of their possessions, the yielding of their work into His hands in obedience, led up to His call for the yielding of their lives.

Often we speak of God's claims upon the life of the Christian as though it were the fiat of an autocrat, one who demands his rights. God might well do so, for He has full authority and power over all of us, but He is a gracious God and gently leads His children along to the place where they make their own decision to leave all and follow Him.

The work of God in the world is carried on by men. The joy of proclaiming the gospel was not given to the angels, but to redeemed men and women. Knowing the regenerating grace of God in their own lives, they have been called during all this Christian era to go out to tell others.

In preparation for that ministry our Lord needed yielded lives, which He sought and found in these humble fishermen They were "not visionaries or dreamers, but were practical men with common sense. They had been disciplined in the school of common toil . . Though unlearned so far as formal theological training was concerned, these men were teachable. Under the tutelage of the Son of God Himself they received matchless informal training . . . leading to a record of service which the world will never forget. It is that sort of teaching that counts. We, too, may learn in the school of Christ, through a study of His Word, assisted by His Spirit, and through the yielding of our lives to His control" (B. L. Olmstead).

Christ no longer walks this earth to seek and call out disciples as He did these men, but the blessed succession of those of whom it may be said, "They forsook all and followed Him" (v 11), continues to this day

We repeat what we have said before, that one of the thrilling things about teaching Sunday school is that somewhere, in some class this next Sunday, God is going to touch the heart of some boy or girl who will be a leader for Him for the next generation

TOO MUCH LOMBARD PUBLICITY

This writer was really "burned up" reading all about Carole Lombard when the papers were filled with the details of the terrible plane crash into a mountain near Las Vegas, New Mexico

The papers had screaming headlines about "Miss" Lombard's fatal ending, pictures of the actress covered the pages of the dailies. She was set up as a heroine and "gave her life to her country," because she had helped sell defense bonds and stamps That was all very nice, and we are sorry to hear of anyone meet death in such a tragic way

But what about those fifteen soldiers on the same plane, each one meeting death in the flaming wreckage Did you see their pictures in the papers? Did you see a lengthy write-up about them? In a small corner was printed a picture of the pilot The co-pilot was mentioned briefly.

The great loss in this terrible wreck was not "Miss" Carole Lombard, nor her mother nor Lombard's press agent The real loss was the snuffing out of the lives of those fifteen soldiers, every one of whom was a pilot in the U. S Army Air Corps They were on duty bound and died for their country in line of duty These men were expert pilots and their work consisted of ferrying bombers and fighters They were on their way west to bring more planes to the armed forces where needed

The pilot of the ship had over a million miles of flying to his credit, and the co-pilot was an experienced flyer

"Miss" Lombard was a great moving picture star, and like all of them a "publicity hound" Even in death her press agents put Lombard on all the front pages of American newspapers

To our way of thinking the big dailies fell down on the job and put the cart before the horse The bouquets should have been passed out to Uncle Sam's fifteen soldiers and if there was anything left "Miss" Lombard could have been given a small corner on the inside page

"Miss" Lombard was twice married (in case you have forgotten) and was the wife of Clark Gable

Right from our own little community we have about forty young men serving in Uncle Sam's Armed forces Anyone of them is doing far more for their country than any of the Hollywood stars.

Let's give praise where praise is due Our soldiers must come in first, film stars can take a back seat as far as this writer is concerned!

THE POOCH CAME OUT SECOND BEST

About a week ago workmen at the Jacobs new store were cutting a plate glass window and the glass was resting on the side walk and held up by a workman

Somebody's pet dog came running along the street, headed in a bee-line for the plate glass that extended out on the sidewalk

Not knowing anything about glass the pooch ran headlong into the invisible obstruction with such force that it knocked him flat

A lusty ki-yi and a few yips and the pooch was on his way a bit shook up and possibly nursing a very sore nose!

CREAMERY STILL MAKES BUTTER!

Yep, it's a horse on us! Last week The Times said that a "new church had been installed in the creamery!" Of course it should have read "churn"

Yeah, and don't think several of our readers along the Main Drag didn't call us on that typographical error . they did . . and how!

In the meantime we are gunning for a couple of pirates

EDUCATION AND PHYSICAL FITNESS

Physical Education is being required of all pupils in our schools The law definitely states that there must be fifty minutes of instruction per week in physical education

In order to maintain a high grade program pupils should be properly equipped and encouraged All pupils can be benefited by the proper kinds of exercise and activities Today there is a great need of physical fitness for boys and girls Sometimes people do not realize the values of a good program, the pupils are not willing in many cases to get the necessary equipment, however, the time has come when we must change our attitude and be willing to help encourage our boys and girls to take an active part in the building and strengthening their bodies

The first semester is over, one half of the school year is gone How have each one of you fared in your subjects? What social contacts among the pupils have you made? How many new friends have you added to your list? What were your contributions to citizenship during the past months? Have you been loyal to your classmates and teachers? Have you been constructive in your criticism? What kind of conduct grade are you building for yourself? These and many other questions are yours to be answered Can you answer them satisfactorily? Let's take time for an inventory, let us see ourselves as we really are and not as we think we are

Watch Your Kidneys.
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

SCRAP IRON

It may be that those who let millions of tons of scrap iron go to Japan are not too anxious to advertise our present dearth of scrap, but the real fact is that it is so serious as to cause the shutdown of nine blast furnaces in Youngstown, Ohio, alone.

To meet the shortage, the OPM has been conducting an experimental campaign to collect scrap iron in Erie, Pa., and is launching other campaigns in Boston, Pittsburgh, Bridgeport and Akron. However, the campaign is going very slowly. Chief trouble is that collections are made through the normal scrap iron trade.

Therefore, it looks as if the American public might have to take things in hand. A survey of Butler county, Ohio, shows that every farmer has an average of about 500 pounds of usable scrap iron and rubber rusting or rotting behind his barn. On this basis, the OPM estimates that it should be possible to collect 1,500,000 tons of scrap from American farmers.

Not many people realize the importance which scrap plays in the iron and steel industry. Ordinarily, steel is made 50 per cent from ore and 50 per cent from scrap iron. But today ordinary supplies of scrap iron are diminished, not only by previous sales to Japan but by the fact that war industries supply no scrap. Many tanks, guns, and military motor trucks are shipped off to Egypt, Malaya or Russia. They never come back Ordinarily, industry supplies its own scrap iron from junked automobiles, etc. But now there will be fewer automobiles to junk.

So the scrap iron problem is one which will require every farmer and householder to look around behind his barn or in his basement to see what he can spare for war industries.

You can check off lead as the next strategic material to be put under interdict for civilian use. OPM's banning order will be issued shortly. That will mean the end of lead foil and numerous other items of normal everyday use One possible exception may be lead for automobile batteries, but even that will be under severe restrictions.

Reason for the ban is inadequacy of domestic supply to meet the increasing need for bullets. War production tables call for a lead consumption of 60,000 tons monthly by June; 100,000 tons monthly by next January. For military reasons, figures on U. S. supply can not be disclosed, but it is below what is needed even with production increases now under way plus imports from Canada, Mexico and other foreign sources. So civilian use will be restricted for the duration.

WLW ICELAND

The largest standard-wave broadcasting apparatus in the U.S.A.—owned by WLW Cincinnati—may be set up in Iceland to drown out Hitler's rasping broadcasts to the German people.

For many years WLW operated a 500,000 watt station in Cincinnati, but was forced by the Federal Communications commission to reduce to 50,000 watts, which is the maximum for ordinary commercial stations in the U.S.A. Therefore, WLW has now offered its big 500,000 watt set to the government to be established in Iceland. Since Hitler's stations are nowhere near as strong as 500,000 watts, WLW's beams from Iceland could drown out his voice every time he went on the air.

Furthermore, WLW Iceland would not operate on short wave, which the German people are not permitted to hear. It would operate on a standard broadcasting beam and would come in over the ordinary German radio. By turning a button in the station in Iceland, the wavelength could be changed to cut in on any German program.

There is one catch to the proposal, however. WLW Cincinnati wants to make a deal with the government whereby it would be permitted to set up another 500,000 watt station in the United States in return for sending its equipment to Iceland.

HITLER AND THE DOCTOR

"I'm feeling very funny,"
Said Adolf in disgust;
"You'd better fetch a doctor—
And get one I can trust!"

A doctor came arunning,
And cried, "You sick! Ah, me!
This news is most amazing—
I thought YOU couldn't be!"

"No small talk," barked Der Fuehrer,
"Just get to work, and quick!
I'm just as dazed as you are
To find I CAN be sick!"

"What seems to be the matter?"
The doctor did implore;
"You're asking me!" snapped Adolf—
"That's what you're summoned for!"

"Stick out your tongue," the doctor
Requested (and we quote);
Der Fuehrer sadly did so . . .
And, boy, was that a COAT!

It plainly showed a fever,
And stomach all upset;
"It was that Russian dressing,
And other things he 'et.'"

It showed grave indigestion,
And bile disturbance, too;
It showed amazing symptoms
Of ailments far from few.

It showed clear indications
Of major gluttony—
Of ulcerous ambitions
And chronic treachery.

It showed some bladder trouble—
(No blight could that tongue hide);
"Your spleen's bad," said the doctor,
"Your trouble's deep inside!"

"Your arches they are falling,
Your kidneys aren't good . .
I don't think you've been doing
Exactly as you should!"

* * *

Der Fuehrer's eyes were bulging—
His nerves seem torn apart,
And now the doctor whispered,
"I'll listen to your heart."

* * *

He listened and he listened,
He listened everywhere,
He listened most intently—
But heard no ticking there!

The doctor said: "Your heart, sir . . .
I hear no beat, alas!"—
And Adolf answered, sneering,
"I have no heart, you ass!"

* * *

The doctor was befuddled,
He took another look
At Adolf's tongue deep coated
And wrote this for the book·

"His uniform this patient
Once said he'd never doff,
But one thing I can tell him—
THAT COAT HE MUST TAKE OFF!"

The Russians captured a carload of iron crosses marked "For presentation after the capture of Moscow" the other day. Maybe the Nazis would now like to mark the whole Russian campaign "Opened by mistake."

OF ALL THINGS!

"The speaker told the audience that America should develop a cheerful-sounding air raid warning. Victory chimes were suggested.—News item.

This seems eligible for the Baloney of the Year Award. Americans are complacent and cocky enough without trying to provide an air raid signal with an entertainment motif.

It is the most cockeyed suggestion so far made. Any minute now we await word from the man who has invented an air raid signal that will combine the music of Irving Berlin with the soothing qualities of another aspirin tablet. Not to mention the fellow who will come forward with an idea for tying up the signals with a system of radio crooning

Employees of Yale university have joined the C.I.O. by a vote of 462 to 143, which must be quite a shock to conservatives under the elms. We can now understand why the Blues put so much more feeling, when they sing the Boola Boola song, into the line "Break through the Crimson line, its strength to defy"

This labor movement at our universities suggests interesting possibilities. Perhaps ultimately the whole jurisdictional issue will be settled by having the C.I.O. play the A.F. of L. in the Yale Bowl.

Shamrocks Win County Basket Ball Tournament The Hard Way

BATTLE THROUGH THREE CLASS A TEAMS TO WIN COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

Coach "Pat" Patterson's five iron men went all the way, the hard way to bring the Hancock County Basket Ball Championship trophy to the Shamrock trophy case.

In order to win the championship the Shamrocks had to battle their way past Corwith, Britt and Garner, all fast class A teams

In the first round Corwith nosed out Crystal Lake 27-26 as Hayfield beat Kanawha 36-16 in last Wednesday night's preliminary at the Garner gymnasium.

The Shamrocks drew a bye in the first round of play. Thursday night Klemme put Corwith in the discard by trouncing them 39 to 30 with Bill Grosshuesch pouring in 18 points for the Shamrocks.

Garner defeated Goodell 39-17, as Britt took Woden 24-15

In Friday night's game Hayfield proved to be the big surprise outfit when they met Garner in a slow but thrilling game that Garner won in the last seconds of play by a score of 24-23.

In the other semi-final game the Shamrocks defeated Coach Rockwood's snappy Britt quintet 25-19 that was close all the way until the Shamrocks put on the heat in the last quarter and won 25 to 19.

In the finals Saturday night the Britt boys had tough going against Hayfield but finally emerged with a 30 to 21 victory. The game was close most of the way with Britt leading in the various quarters by small margins: 8 to 3, 15 to 12 and 17 to 15 in the third quarter, but burst ahead in the final stanza to win 30 to 21.

In the championship game the Shamrocks took a 10 to 6 lead at the end of the first quarter. From there on out they proved to be the masters of the situation and scored at will, running the count up 20 to 9 at the half time mark. They relaxed somewhat in the third frame as the Garner Cardinals went on a scoring spree but the Shamrocks maintained a safe margin that saw them ahead 28 to 20 as the third quarter closed.

In the final quarter the Cardinals were able to count only three points while the Shamrocks poured balls through the net at will and rang up 14 points.

Grosshuesch lashed through the net eight times for 16 points while Kaduce tallied up an even dozen. Jacobs and Brinkman each counted six points each. Klotzbach was too occupied with ball handling to try for more than a couple times at the net.

For the Cardinals Knoke played an outstanding game but the tall Shamrocks held the Garner ace to 9 points, four field goals and one charity toss. Stott and Schneider each tallied 4 points, while Chestnut hit the hoop three times for 6 markers.

The game was clean throughout and only twelve fouls were called, six on the Shamrocks and six on the Cardinals.

Both teams played good basket ball but the Shamrocks had the edge on basket shooting that put them out in front.

This is the first time the Shamrocks have brought home the Hancock County Championship. They have been runner-up on several occasions.

Millions More To Pay Taxes On '41 Income

Government Offers Aid to Those Who Will File This Year.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In less than two months millions of citizens of the United States are going to be paying their income tax for 1941. It is also a known fact, because of the lowering of the income tax base, very many more people are going to be paying or filing an income tax that didn't do so for 1940. Following are some hints and suggestions that will help you when filling out your income tax form:

WHO MUST FILE A RETURN? Every single person having a gross income of $750 or more; every married person, not living with husband or wife, and having a gross income of $750 or more; and married persons living with husband or wife, who have an aggregate gross income of $1,500 or more.

WHEN MUST RETURNS BE FILED? For the calendar year 1941, on or before March 16, 1942. For the fiscal year, on or before the 15th day of the third month following the close of the fiscal year.

WHERE AND WITH WHOM MUST INCOME TAX RETURNS BE FILED? In the internal-revenue district in which the person lives or has his chief place of business, and with the collector of internal revenue.

HOW DOES ONE MAKE OUT HIS INCOME TAX RETURN? By following the detailed instructions given on the income tax blanks, Form 1040 and Form 1040A (optional simplified form).

WHAT IS THE TAX RATE? A normal tax of 4 per cent on the amount of the net income in excess of the allowable credits against net income.

DON'T prepare your income tax return until you carefully read and understand the instructions accompanying the forms Make out a work-sheet and check it with the instructions before filling in the forms.

DON'T, if your gross income is $3,000 or less and is wholly from salary, wages, or other compensation for personal services, dividends, interest, rent, annuities, or royalties, file your return on Form 1040 without carefully considering the option to file the simplified Form 1040A, since the filing of your return on either form in such case constitutes an election which prevents you from filing an amended return on the other form.

DON'T overlook the fact that for the majority of taxpayers the tax for 1941 will be two or three times as much as for 1940 and that it is important for you to save out of your weekly or monthly earnings, or otherwise provide, a sufficient amount to pay your tax when it becomes due. If any installment is not paid when due, the whole amount of the tax unpaid is required to be paid upon notice and demand from the collector.

A very arresting fact in the 1941 income tax law is the lowering of the personal exemption from $800 to $750 for a single person, and from $2,000 to $1,500 for a married person or the head of a family, and the change in the basis for determining liability for a return.

It matters not if the return discloses that, by reason of allowable deductions, or the credit for personal exemption or for a dependent or dependents, the individual has no tax to pay, the gross income of such persons must be reported to the government.

The experience of former years shows that the bureau is always swamped with late returns. If taxpayers will file their returns early, they will find that this will be mutually beneficial to them and to the government.

Forms for filing returns of income for 1941 have been sent to persons who filed returns last year. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time—on or before March 16 if the return is made on the calendar-year basis, as is the case with most individuals.

Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors and from deputy collectors of internal revenue in the larger cities and towns

The revenue act of 1941 provides a simplified method of computing income tax in the case of individuals whose gross income is derived wholly from salary, wages, or other compensation for personal services, dividends, interest, rent, annuities, or royalties, and does not exceed $3,000 A new Form 1040A has been provided for taxpayers who are entitled to and elect to use such method. A table on the reverse side of the form shows the amount of tax on increasing amounts of gross income after the proper allowance of $400 for each dependent.

Notes for Taxpayers

To make it easier for taxpayers to meet the increased taxes required by the national defense program, the treasury department is offering for sale two series of notes, both dated August 1, 1941, and maturing August 1, 1943

Salaried persons and wage earners whose income is derived from personal services form the largest number of federal income taxpayers. This year this army of taxpayers will be greatly increased. Those who paid an income tax for 1940 have received the forms for the 1941 income tax return through the mails. In order that none may escape filing the return, employers are required to report the names of all their employees to whom, if single, they made payments of $750 or more in 1941, and if married, $1,500 or more.

If a person is paid in whole or in part for his services by anything other than money, the fair market value of the thing taken must be reported as income.

For Deceased Persons.

A return is required to be filed for a deceased individual if the gross income to the date of death is $750 or over, and the individual was single, or married and not living with husband or wife for any part of the taxable year, or if the gross income to the date of death is equal to, or in excess of the credit for personal exemption (not including credit as head of family or for dependents), and the individual was married and living with husband or wife for all or any part of the taxable year.

An individual, although a minor, who is single, or is married and not living with husband or wife for any part of the taxable year, is required to render a return of income if he has a gross income of his own of $750 or over for the taxable year.

Domestic relations enter into the making of an income tax return. This shows itself in the matter of personal exemptions.

The head of a family, as defined by the income-tax regulations, is an individual who actually supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected to him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage or by adoption. As such, he or she is entitled to a personal exemption of $1,500.

A credit of $400 is allowed for each dependent. A dependent is one under 18 years of age, or one who is physically or mentally defective and incapable of self-support. He need not live with nor be related to the taxpayer.

Income taxes for 1941 are paid on normal tax net incomes and on surtax net incomes. A study of the instructions that accompany the income tax forms will show how to compute the tax on such incomes.

The credit for dependents as well as the personal exemption is required to be prorated where a change of status occurs during the taxable year.

For income-tax purposes there can only be one head of a family. In addition to being the chief financial support, the head of a family must be related by blood, marriage, or adoption to his dependents, and he must have a legal or moral obligation to exercise family control over them and provide for their care.

It is not always necessary that a taxpayer and his dependents live under one roof the entire year in order that he be allowed the exemption given the head of a family.

In computing a federal income tax, the taxpayer is confronted with the problem of ascertaining, (1) his gross income and, unless the tax is computed under the optional simplified method, (2) his net income, and (3) his surtax net income The instructions which accompany the forms clearly and explicitly set out how this is done. If, after reading them carefully, the taxpayer does not understand them, he should consult the nearest collector, or deputy collector, of internal revenue.

Farmers' Income Tax.

Farmers, which include livestock raisers, fruit and truck growers, poultry raisers, and operators of plantations and ranches, are liable for federal income-tax returns provided their income is sufficient to require the filing of returns. Primarily, due to the reduction in the credit for personal exemption, many farmers will be liable for returns and to the tax for the first time for the year 1941.

Amounts received as loans from the Commodity Credit corporation may, at the option of the taxpayer be considered as income and included in gross income for the taxable year in which received. The election made with respect to the calendar year 1939, or for the first year thereafter for which a return is required to be filed, is binding for all subsequent years unless the commissioner approves a change to a different method of accounting Amounts received under the soil conservation and domestic allotment act, as amended, the price adjustment act of 1938, section 303 of the Agricultural Adjustment act, as amended, and the sugar act of 1937 constitute taxable income to the recipients for federal income-tax purposes.

Income which becomes the property of a person during the taxable year should be included in his gross income even though he does not have physical possession of it. This occurs where income is unconditionally credited to his account or set apart subject to his order at any time, and such income is said to have been constructively received.

Exempt Items.

Certain items are specifically exempt from the income tax and need not be included in the taxpayer's return of gross income. Among such items are the proceeds from life insurance policies paid by reason of the death of the insured. Amounts received (other than amounts paid by reason of the death of the insured and interest payments on such amounts and other than amounts received as annuities) under a life insurance or endowment contract, which are less than or exactly equal to the premiums or consideration paid therefor, are exempt from federal income tax. Any excess received over the consideration paid is taxable. Amounts received as an annuity under an annuity or endowment contract shall be included in gross income.

Pensions and compensation received by veterans from the United States for services in time of war are exempt, and pensions received from the United States by the family of a veteran for services rendered by the veteran in time of war are exempt.

The destruction by frost, storm, flood, or fire of a prospective crop is not a deductible loss in computing income. If livestock has been purchased for any purpose, and afterward dies from disease, exposure, or injury, or is killed by order of the authorities of a state or the United States, the actual purchase price of such livestock, less any depreciation allowable as a deduction in respect of such perished livestock may be deducted as a loss if the loss is not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

Citizens Filing Income Returns

Because of the lowered income tax base this year, a considerable number of citizens will pay taxes for their first time. Federal income tax officials will be on hand to assist such crowds as this one in filing their returns. "Come early, avoid the rush," is the advice which officials again offer this year.

Historical Russian Crimean Sector

Before the German attack, the Russians held well over a thousand miles of Black sea frontage, extending along the entire northern and eastern reaches. Early German advances eastward had cut this figure almost by half, when Russian counter attack not only recovered considerable Crimean mileage but also gave the Russians a centralized position overlooking still German-held territory in the southern Ukraine.

The Black sea long has been an "international lake" where history was made. More than 700 miles long and with an area larger than that of California, it has offered a broad field of operations since its jagged coasts provided haven from which powerful pirate fleets attacked ancient merchant shipping.

Hating Hate:

The President of the United States has announced a completed objective. It is: The United Nations. Twenty-six nations have united to win a war and to keep the peace that follows war. What the nations refused to learn from concentration camps and torture chambers of one continent, they have learned on the bitter battlefields of all.

Dictators fight for power; diplomats for prestige; and militarists for victory. But the Common People always fight for peace. Not an armistice between nations, but peace of soul between men.

That is why the present struggle is a total world war, because the dictators' New Order is a campaign against world conscience. The panzer attacks to break a military line are less important than the propaganda efforts to tear the fabric of law and order. The Common People today are fighting for their stake in law and order.

Men from all over the world are fighting side by side for their countries. Because they want to live in dignity side by side for their God. And when final victory comes, it will be the job of the diplomats not only to bring peace to nations—but peace to men.

For the Common People of the world are awake. Their enemy is out in the open. It is not a man. It is a creed. They know there is nothing to hate—but HATE!

Innocent Bystander:

Judge Joseph Guthrie, of Kansas City, tells the one about the show that came to town and was pretty bad. The audience almost to a man groaned and grumbled most of the evening.

Except, that is, one spectator, who just kept staring at the stage. His neighbor who kept growling, "This is awful," finally turned to him and said: "You haven't had anything to say—what do you think about it?"

"I am here on a free seat," was the dry reply, "but if this thing gets any worse—I am going to buy a ticket and raise hell."

Old razor blades are being collected to supply steel for tanks.

Don't forget. No blade is too dull to cut Hitler's throat.

Jessie Royce Landis, star of "Papa Is All," the Theatre Guild comedy about the Pennsylvania Dutch, had to spend a great deal of time around Lancaster learning dialect, customs, etc. She passes along this legend, typical of the people there. To appreciate it even more, she says the Dutch rarely keep money in banks. They usually hide it around the house or in the barn.

Anyway, this concerns an elderly pair who arrived at a real estate office before April 1—"Settlement Day" for the Dutch. They were buying a farm, the price of which was $17,000.

Papa brought forth a huge stocking packed with folding money and patiently counted it.

"It only comes to $14,000, Mama," he said unhappily. "What happened?"

"I guess," Mama said blandly, "we must have brought the wrong stocking."

How courteous is the Japanese!
He always says, "Excuse me, please."
He climbs into his neighbor's garden
And smiles and says, "I beg your pardon."

He bows and grins a friendly grin,
And calls his hungry family in;
He grins and bows a friendly bow:
"So sorry, this MY garden now."
Ogden Nash, March, 1938.

All the Axis citizens are Aryans now. Hitler issued an order admitting the Italians and the Japs to membership. A British soldier in Libya, a dress designer in private life, was a little confused by all this. The other day his sergeant sent him on patrol duty.

"The captain," he instructed, "wants you to catch him an Aryan prisoner."

"Veriwell," said the private. "Bleached, olive or snuff-colored?"

While negotiations were going on between Japan and the U. S.—during the Kurusu-fiction—Kurusu presented this plan: Why could not the two nations peacefully divide the Pacific?

Secretary Hull smiled agreeably. Encouraged, the Japanazi continued. "Which part would you want—the north or south?"

Mr. Hull is supposed to have replied: "As long as we are dividing the Pacific, we'll take the top; and you take the bottom."

Over at the new Club 181, they were talking about the magazine writer who disappeared for weeks. "Wonder where he is," somebody said.

"Oh, he's very busy," explained a Winchell fan, "blowing up a rumor and two untruths—into a full-length article for his mag."

The harsh reviews on "Johnny on a Spot" revealed there were two MacArthurs under bombardment—the General and Helen Hayes' Charlie, the author.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma:

Well from what I read in the papers and hear on the raddio I gess the boys in the army are a lot cooler then the folks back home in civilyun life. I hope you and pop half not had a breakdown listening to all them air raid warning tests and trying to follow all the different orders. The army has one thing on the civilyun, it don't have to work in so much confusion.

I got your letter about dad being a air warden. I knew he wood want to do his bit but I half to laugh when I think of him ordering anybody to keep away from windows as he is always in a window looking out most of the time.

I wish you could realize what a change has come over the boys here. They now want to fight anywhere and most anybody will do. But they put Japs at the top of their list. The more news we get about the treacherous stuff at Pearl Harbor and the brave work of our boys the soarer we get. Sergeant Mooney when he read about the Japs using a two-man submarine said it was probably no sub at all but just one of them barrels they juggle in the circus. And he says even two Japs in a sub would only be about half a man anyhow.

They serprised us all right but they got a serprise coming and how. I just heard a definition of a isolationist. A isolationist is a fellow who thinks a net under a trapese is foolish on account of he is only a spectator anyhow.

Well I see where the draft age is to be extended to 44 which disposes of any idea I may get out soon witch I don't want to do no more anyhow. A few weeks ago I was kicking like all the rest of the boys and asking what was the sense of all this time in a army with nobody to fight but now that we got more people fighting us at one time than ever before it all is different.

You may laugh mom but this is a fact that we ain't been worrying half about what happens to us in the war lately as we been worried about the folks back home with all them mayors broadcasting orders at once. I could picture you rushing around shopping for sandbags and pop having a fit because he couldn't find out how to shut off the gas in case of a raid. Still you better follow instructions as best you can as nobody can tell what may happen only I wish the mayors could be as calm as the people. I tuned in one night when Mr. LaGuardia was talking. It was such a cool calm talk I almost felt the war was over but you could of knocked me over with a feather when he wound up his talk by saying: "Well, I don't expect any attack TONIGHT. The weather is unfavorable." What a crack that was. I hope it did not scare you any.

There is a lot of rumors around camp and I think something is up, but I don't know where we may get sent. Nothing would serprise me and I don't care no more where I go as long as it gives me a chance to do my bit for the greatest country on earth. And I hope when we see action it won't take no umpires to find out who won.

* * *

Well take care of yourself, do not let those air raid hints scare you too much and say a prayer for me now and then as this is the kind of war when they will all be needed.

Your son,

Oscar

A Near-President

TER years of neglect, tardy honors at last have been paid great American—a man who ed his country as United States tor, minister to France, secre- of war and secretary of the sury, a statesman who just sed being President! From At- a, Ga., recently came word that restoration of the burial place William Harris Crawford had n completed.

rawford was a native of Am- st county, Va., where he was n February 24, 1772. His par- s moved to Georgia and there father died in 1788, leaving his ear-old son to become the prin- al support of the family by teach- school.

Meanwhile he was studying law in 1798 he was admitted to the . From the law to politics was gical step and in 1803 Crawford s elected to the state legislature ere he served until 1807. Elected the United States senate in 1809, made an even more brilliant cord as a legislator there and m March, 1812, to 1813 he was sident pro tem of the upper use.

At the end of Crawford's term in senate, President Madison of- ed him the post of secretary of r but he declined. However, he accept an appointment as min- er to France and in Paris he re- ived a warm reception. When poleon was overthrown in 1815, awford returned to the United ates where Madison again offered m the post of secretary of war. is time he accepted and held the sition until 1816 when he became cretary of the treasury.

During that period in our history residents were nominated by congressional caucus and as Madison's erm drew to a close his secretary of the treasury was the favorite to succeed him. However, when the vote was finally taken, James Monroe received 65 votes to Crawford's 54 The new President asked his al to continue as secretary of the reasury and Crawford consented. He served until 1825.

When it came time to select a presidential nominee in 1824, Crawford's name was again prominently mentioned. In fact, he was the congressional caucus nominee, although there were only 66 out of 216 members of his party present when the vote was taken. By this time the caucus method of choosing a President had fallen into disrepute and three other candidates entered the contest. They were John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson and Henry Clay

When the electoral votes were counted it was found that Jackson had received 91 votes, Adams 84, Crawford 41 and Clay 37. Since none of the candidates had a majority of all the votes cast, the election was thrown into the house of representatives, which was to ballot on the three high men. There Henry Clay threw his strength to Adams and the New Englander was elected President.

After Adams was inaugurated, he asked Crawford to continue as secretary of the treasury, but the Georgian pleading ill health—he had suffered a stroke of paralysis in 1824—declined the honor and returned to his home in Georgia.

However, by 1827 his health was good enough so that he was able to take on the duties of a circuit judge and he continued in this office until he died at Elberton, Ga., on September 15, 1834. His death was a fitting conclusion to his active life for he literally "died in the harness" He was away from home on the circuit, fulfilling his judicial duties, when the end came.

Few men have ever filled the post of secretary of treasury more capably than Crawford. As a member of the senate he had done much to bring about the reincorporation of the Bank of the United States and because of this Madison first offered him the treasury portfolio. This proved to be a wise choice, for Crawford, taking over the tangled financial affairs of the nation at the close of the War of 1812, handled the situation with extraordinary skill and was able to turn the treasury over to his successor with its finances on a sound basis.

Current Fashions Stress New Use of Daring Color Contrast

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AT FIRST this matter of using two or three colors together in daring contrast was regarded as an adventure that would give a new slant to fashion. It was a deliberate departure from traditional color technique that might reasonably be expected to prove a mere passing fad. However, this courage on the part of designers to start something new has not only added zest to fashion, but has developed a movement that is being carried over from one season to another with increasing enthusiasm.

This spring the fashion program fairly vibrates with breathtaking color contrasts that defy staid and sedate ideas as to which color goes with which.

In every phase of fashion, from bathing suits to sweaters and from simple daytime dresses to dress-up afternoon frocks and pretentious "formals," designers are courageously handling color in new ways with an artistry that is winning tremendous applause.

To demonstrate the brilliant and audacious spirit style creators express in their use of color, note the daytime dress shown to the left in the group illustrated above. The dress in this instance is of narrow wale corduroy with sleeves and collar of bright red wool jersey. A patch pocket has a striking heraldic design embroidered in multi-colored yarns.

By the way, this idea of contrasting sleeves might serve as an inspiration in stretching a limited budget to meet the exigencies arising in present war times when economy is a virtue every woman is urged to practice. For example, there's that dress hanging in your closet, "perfectly good," yet seeming to have outlived its usefulness. The sleeves show wear at the elbows. Why not rejuvenate this poor outcast with a new pair of sleeves in a bright, contrasting color? To complete the costume, add a belt, and, perhaps, pockets in the same bright color. You might even go so far as to do the contrast sleeves in a tri-color scheme, cerise for the top, gold for the center and purple for the lower arm portion, repeating the colors in pockets and neckline details.

Smartly typical of the new vogue for contrast is the dress shown to the right in the picture above. It has a definitely "peasant" feeling in its use of vivid colors and its trimming in a flower of self fabric.

There's something about the middy-blouse fashion done in red, white and blue that makes an irresistable combination. The pattern for the two-piece outfit, centered in the group above, with its easy-to-follow instructions, is especially interesting if you sew the modern way. If you aspire to be your own seamstress, your local sewing center will instruct you, at little or no expense, in the making of such expert dressmaker details as buttonholes. Crisp white rayon fabric is used for the middy blouse and cadet blue for the skirt. Bands of vermillion red accent the collar, cuffs and pockets and can be made in "jig time" with an edge stitcher sewing machine attachment.

And don't forget about the newest bathing suits. They have sprightly little skirts of ruffles, each in a different color. A bandanna for the head repeats the color scheme.

Flour Sack Dress

Imagine! A dress as attractive as this actually made out of ordinary cotton flour sacks! You'll need three large cotton bags for this charming frock. It is no trick at all to dye them a deep red and for trimming use beige colored yarn (dyed with coffee liquid). Add real pine cones for buttons and you have a dress for the farmerette that any city cousin would look upon with understandable envy.

Slim Skirts Have Soft Draped Lines

There's excitement coming in the way of skirt silhouettes. To say that they are versatile is to put it mildly In the fashion picture there will not only be pleated skirts but there is an important trend toward pencil-slim draped effects.

Very smart, too, are the new wrapover effects, many of which tie on without any other fastening. The surprise is the skirts that are flounced in a new way. These will be repeated again and again in wash dresses. Also in long evening taffetas.

Ballerina skirts are making front page news, and the young set is wearing them like the dirndl.

Color Goes to Work— In New Defense Uniforms

Color is being advocated throughout the fashion field Those who are studying conditions say that for defense work, particularly, bright color is essential to morale. The gabardines, denims and other cottons used for uniforms, field work and various defense activities will not only be thoroughly practical and functional, but they will spread a good measure of cheer.

Spring Hats

Flattering hats, many of them flower trimmed, will be worn from now on into the spring. The flower-trimmed calot is a favorite. The little sailor, of straw or felt, will also be shown. Many fabrics will feature back drapes over the hair.

Child's Slacks

Very practical and cunning for little tots are pinafore slacks with matching bonnets that are made with a view to stressing the "pretty" look. Chambray and seersucker are favored fabrics for these suits.

NEW SELECTEES

It needed no mind reading to fathom what was behind that war department announcement of the purchase of 700,000,000 feet of lumber and 240,000 kegs of nails—the biggest order of its kind in U. S. history.

The materials are for the construction of numerous new army cantonments and the enlargement of existing ones.

Army strength, down to 1,600,000 after the demobilization of 28 to 35 year olds last fall, is due for a big increase—at least another 1,000,000 after the next draft lottery following the February 16 registration of men between 21 and 44.

An estimated 24,000,000 will register next month, and on the basis of past experience only about 5 per cent will be rated 1-A; that is, subject to immediate call. Heretofore the army has inducted only men in good physical condition, with no dependents and not engaged in "essential" production

However, as the need for military manpower develops, 1-A standards will be broadened and many thousands of 1-B, 2-A, and 2-B deferees by pre-war standards will be called up

For the present, the army still is placing primary emphasis on youth. The February 16 registration is expected to list around 2,000,000 20-21 youngsters and the largest proportion of new inductees will come from this group. Registrants in the 36 to 44 group will have to be in top condition to get in the army at this time.

However, big scale inductions from this age group can be expected by fall, particularly those with no dependents and with previous military service.

For the present the army will take its older-age recruits from the 28 to 35 year olds who were exempted because of dependency or defense work.

REDTAPE BUSTER

Ordnance is the haughtiest and most hide-bound branch of the army. So much so that it has been the object of much bitter private criticism by civilian defense chiefs.

But there is one notable exception to this Ordnance rule. He is William Van Antwerp Kemp, a tall, husky, dynamic engineer, who made a big success in private business and volunteered his services when the national emergency arose. Since then, as an Ammunition division executive, he has been making history, busting redtape in tradition-bound Ordnance.

There are many tales of Kemp's unconventional exploits. The latest is one of the best.

Asked by a general to suggest a manager for a new government munition plant about to begin production, Kemp recommended a crack expert who had been loaned to the British to build a plant in England.

"He ought to be finished with his job over there by now," said Kemp.

"If he is, get him," was the order.

From the British, Kemp learned the expert had completed his work and was available. So Kemp picked up a phone and called the state department.

"I want to talk to the guy," he said, "who gets guys back from England."

There was a gasp, but the operator switched Kemp to someone who asked him who he was and what he wanted.

"I'm Kemp of Army Ordnance," he said. "There's a guy in England we want to run an ammunition plant for us. Get him back here right away, will you?"

Six days later the expert reported to Kemp and left for his new job.

A few days later the general again summoned Kemp, asked what had been done about the expert.

"It's all taken care of, general," said Kemp. "He's been on the job at the plant two days."

"How did you get him back here so fast?"

"No trouble. I just called up the state department, asked for the guy who gets guys back here and he arranged it."

"Kemp," said the general severely, "do you know who that guy in the state department was?"

"No, sir."

"He was the undersecretary of state."

Note: Kemp has persistently refused to accept an army commission. Finally, pressed by the general for the reason, he retorted: "Some day I may want to come in here and blow up. If I do, as an officer you could court-martial me. But as a civilian, all you can do is fire me. I'm remaining a civilian."

JAP SCHOOL LESSONS

After three years' probing of subversive activities, it takes a lot to excite Rep. Martin Dies, but the other day the rangy Texan hit on a discovery that took his breath away.

His committee has been making a sweeping inquiry of Jap fifth-columning on the West coast, including subversive teaching in Japanese language schools located all over southern California. Investigators found that from the primary grades up students in these schools are indoctrinated with militarism and the ideology of their Jap ancestors.

Few More Years Would Have Toughened Uncle

The oldest inhabitant had celebrated his hundredth birthday and the reporter of a local paper called on him for an interview. Having congratulated the old fellow, the reporter asked a few questions.

"To what do you attribute your longevity?" he inquired.

The centenarian paused a moment and then, holding up his hand and ticking off the items on his fingers, began: "I never drank alcoholic liquors, or overate, and I always rise at six in the morning."

"But," protested the reporter, "I had an uncle who acted in that way, yet he only lived to be eighty. How do you account for that?"

"He didn't keep it up long enough," was the calm reply.

Mercury Is Only Metal Common in Liquid Form

Did you ever accidentally break a thermometer and then try to pick up some of the heavy silvery droplets of mercury that had spilled out? They were liquid yet they did not wet the table's surface. They scurried elusively about; they defied your efforts to seize them. No wonder the Romans christened that mysterious liquid argentum vivum and we today call it by the English translation of that same name—quicksilver.

Many people do not recognize mercury as a metal simply because it is a liquid, writes Harry M. Day in Nature magazine. It is a true metallic element, none the less—just as much a metal as tin, zinc or lead. The fact that we usually see it as a liquid means simply that its melting point happens to fall below our ordinary temperatures, it is, strictly speaking, a molten metal. Professor Braune, at St. Petersburg, first succeeded in freezing it at 40 degrees below zero and recognized its true metallic properties. In its low melting point mercury is unique, and out of its uniqueness arise many of its uses and indispensable services to mankind.

What You Can Do

Neighbors, who are musically inclined, often are the most disputes. A New York judge according to news commentator Helen Rowland, ruled with the wisdom of Portia that a man could keep his radio going night and day if he wished but that if one note crossed the air shaft into a neighboring apartment he could be charged with disturbing the peace.

People who know their rights may collect liberally upon this knowledge. A widow in the Bronx and her two daughters received $100,000 from a sheriff's jury in a slander action against a neighbor who had talked with such effect that a policeman engaged to one of the girls broke it off. A manager of a New Jersey country club, who had been charged by a member with forgery, was tried, acquitted, and then won a judgment of $20,000, for false arrest. The "bar maker" that an Omaha detective landed on the jaw of a robbery suspect proved a boomerang for a court awarded the man $1,213 damages for the physical pain and indignities he had suffered.

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

The Boy Scouts of America is celebrating its thirty-second birthday this week. This is an anniversary that the whole Nation could well celebrate, celebrate it with thanks in its heart that such an organization exists!

The aim and purpose of Scouting Character and Citizenship, are the aim and purpose of every Democracy. Without these two ideal qualities Democracy becomes a sham, a dictatorship.

America was wrested from a wilderness by a determined people, people who had fine character, people who understood the responsibilities as well as the privileges of citizenship. Therefore it was only natural that the ideals of the Scout Movement, as expressed in the Scout Oath and Law, should meet with such widespread approval in this country.

Scouting builds MEN, it develops citizenship. Scouting is American, it is as American as Indian corn, as American as ice cream sodas. Americans accept Scouting because it is continually strengthening and invigorating democracy.

We have watched the results of Scouting right here in our own community. These former Scouts, now men, have taken their place in the world. Just to name a few who have stated that Scouting has been a big help to them; one former Scout is a practicing physician, another a dentist, one a public accountant, a couple are teaching, several are farmers, while others are winning promotions in the U. S. Army or Navy.

Scouting helped these boys become successful men.

NATURE'S WEATHER FORECASTER CENSORED!

Even the ground hog on February 2nd just stuck his nose outside his den and walked back in again, beat out of his annual job of weather forecasting because of the strict censorship on weather reporting.

He is not telling whether or not he saw his shadow and so you will just have to guess what the weather will be for the next six weeks.

Well, anyway, we never did take much stock in ground hog weather predicting.

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME GOES INTO EFFECT

Monday morning at 2:00 o'clock February 9th, the time pieces all over the United States will be set ahead one hour for the duration and six months thereafter.

The "daylight savers" tell us it will save vast amounts of electricity and that factory workers will have more daylight time after working hours and that there are a great many other advantages.

Maybe we are dumb, but we still fail to see where it will save electricity. If we save electricity in the evening, we will use that much more in the morning.

Of course it will give factory workers and others more time to play around or work in their gardens in the evening after working hours. And, we admit, daylight saving time is fine for fishermen it gives them an extra hour when fishing is the best.

And we have also heard the farmers's side of the question.

The farmers say they will not be able to get into the fields any earlier for the very simple reason that the morning dew will not pay any attention to daylight saving time!

But, if daylight saving time will help win the war, we are for it one hundred per cent.

WE HIT A RESPONSIVE CHORD

This writer wants to thank the many readers who complimented us on our article last week, 'Too Much Lombard Publicity."

It seems that the majority agree that credit should be given where credit is due and in the case of the Lombard publicity Uncle Sam's fighting men should have been given more recognition.

We are always glad to have our readers express their opinion, even though they do not agree with us.

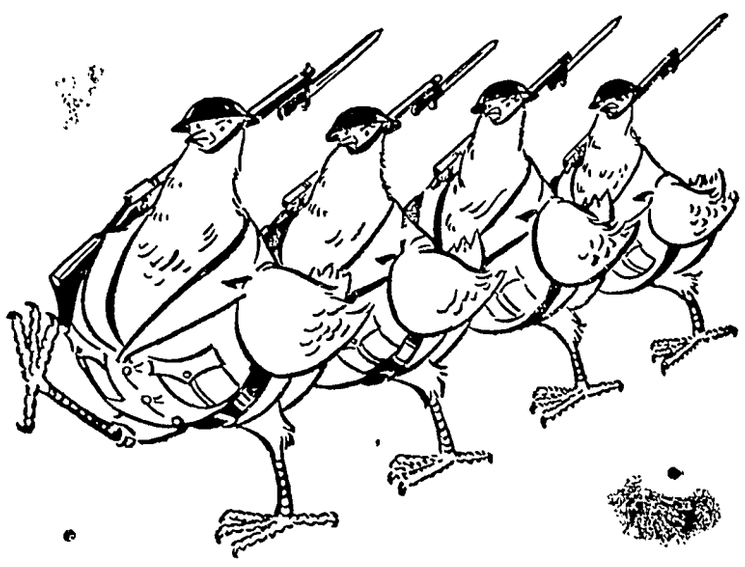
Your Chickens Have Become



A First Line of Defense!

Build a new poultry house.

Your chickens can do a great deal to help defeat the Nazis. The Department of Agriculture has announced that the United States and Great Britain will need more eggs in 1941-42 than were produced last year.

The price on eggs will be set at a profitable level . . . allowing more than enough margin to pay for new poultry quarters and still make a respectable profit. Why not plan for the future with a new chicken house . . . and pay for it with profits from defense orders.

Come in and look over our plans for poultry houses. We have one to fill your requirements . . . and an easy payment plan that will fit your pocketbook.

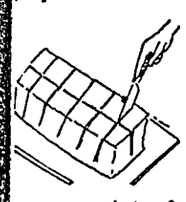
Luscious to Look At and Eat, Too . . . Orange Sponge Cake
(See Recipes Below)

Snacks, II

"What shall I serve to guests who drop in for an evening of bridge or for a chat?" This is a question I've heard many hostesses ask, especially often during colder weather when visiting time really comes into favor again. The answer is simple, for a delectable cake with steaming coffee or hot drink turns the trick.



Your guests will have finished their supper only a short time before, and since snacks do not come late in the evening, it is best to serve something not too heavy. Light cakes, preferably those with a touch of piquancy and tartness, fill the bill perfectly. These cakes may be baked in one of your not-so-busy moments to have on hand for just such an occasion.

Hot drinks are favorites in the chilling weather. If you like coffee, be sure to have quantities of the steaming beverage on hand. If you're on the lookout for new ideas, there are the hot fruit juice combinations which hit the spot. Either type of drink goes well with these dessert-like cakes.

Here's the first cake on our list. It's like spun gold in color with just the right tartness. You'll find that the navel oranges which peel and separate easily into sections will be perfect for decorating the cake as pictured above:

Orange Sponge Cake.

5 egg yolks
1¼ cups sugar
½ cup orange juice
½ cup water
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
5 egg whites

Beat egg yolks, sugar and orange juice until light. Add water and beat 2 minutes. Add flour sifted with baking powder and salt. Beat 1 minute or until thoroughly blended into egg mixture, fold in grated orange peel and egg whites beaten stiff but not dry. Bake in 9-inch ungreased tube pan in a moderate (350-degree) oven 70 minutes. Invert pan until cake is cold. Remove Cut in three cross-wise layers.

Gold Topping.

¼ cup cold water
1 tablespoon gelatin
4 egg yolks
¾ cup sugar
1 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
4 egg whites
¼ cup sugar
Orange sections

Soften gelatin in water. Cook egg yolks, sugar and orange juice in top of double boiler until thick. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add grated peel and cool mixture. Beat egg whites stiff, adding ¼ cup sugar and fold into cooked orange mixture Spread between layers and on top of cake. Chill in refrigerator. Decorate with fresh orange sections just before serving.

*Recipe Given.

Gleaned from an excellent chef, this Lemon Cake-Pie is a good combination of a cream pie and cake. Because of the delicate lemon flavor it will prove interesting to serve for those evenings when friends just drop in for a bit. Made just according to directions, it's guaranteed to bring plenty of encores!

Lemon Cake-Pie.

1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 lemon

Blend the sugar and butter, add beaten egg yolks, milk, flour and the juice and rind of the lemon. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into an unbaked pie-crust. Bake in a slow (325-degree) oven 35 to 40 minutes. The top will be like a sponge cake and underneath there's a soft, firm custard.

Pumpkin pie will never wear out its welcome if you serve it this way. It has extra zest because of the addition of orange juice:

Pumpkin Pie.

3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon cloves
2 cups cooked canned pumpkin
1 cup cream, rich milk or undiluted evaporated milk
1 cup orange juice

Mix sugar, spices, salt. Add slightly beaten eggs, pumpkin, cream or milk, and orange juice. Pour into an unbaked 10-inch pie shell. Bake at (450 degree) for 10 minutes, and then in a moderate (350-degree) oven for about 50 minutes or until knife comes out clean when inserted in filling. Serve with whipped cream garnished with grated orange peel.

Gingerbread is a favorite for after-dinner bridge type of entertaining. Gingerbread made with boiling water gives the cake a special kind of feathery texture which is certain to charm. Most of the time you like to serve gingerbread with whipped cream, but you can vary this if you add crushed peppermints to the cream before serving.

Old-Fashioned Gingerbread.

½ cup boiling water
½ cup shortening
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup molasses
1 beaten egg
1½ cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon soda
¾ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Pour water over the shortening and add sugar, molasses and egg. Lynn Says:

Hot mulled fruit juices lend tang to winter evening snacks. You can have hot mulled cider by heating the cider and adding 1 teaspoon whole cloves and 1 stick of cinnamon (tied in a bag) while the cider is heating.

Here's another mulled fruit juice served piping hot: Tie in a bag, 12 whole cloves, 1 3-inch stick of cinnamon, and 1 whole nutmeg. Empty a large can of apple juice and a 12-ounce can of cherry juice in the saucepan and add spices. Heat, remove spices and serve. This recipe takes care of eight people

Hot spiced lemon tea has lots of pick-up. Make it by pouring 5 cups boiling water over 6 teaspoons of black tea. Seep 5 minutes, then strain Dissolve ¼ cup sugar in ¼ cup boiling water Combine 6 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel, ⅛ teaspoon ground cinnamon and ⅛ teaspoon ground cloves, and add to hot tea Serve at once, garnished with lemon slices Serves 6.

A BUSY SABBATH IN CAPERNAUM

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1.21-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day —Revelation 1 10.

The Sabbath of the Jew and the Lord's Day (Sunday) of the Christian were both intended to be days of rest The ordinary activities of life were to cease and one was to be free to worship and to rest The manner in which a man uses this God-given day of rest is a remarkably accurate indicator of his spiritual condition.

We have before us the account of a very busy Sabbath day which our Lord spent in Capernaum, the city in which most of His mighty works were done, but which ignored Him and His teaching to its own destruction (see Matt. 11:23, 24) As we look at our Lord's activity on that day we learn what we may do with our Sundays to make them bear fruit for eternity. We find Him in three places.

I. In the Church (vv. 21-28).

The Sabbath day found our Lord with His people in the synagogue, their place of worship. The service of worship was probably formal and lacking in spiritual vitality, but none-the-less He was there. What have we to say if we miss the opportunity for fellowship and service which church attendance brings us?

Observe that because He was there He (as a distinguished religious teacher) was called upon to teach the people. He taught them in the serene consciousness of His divine authority, and the people were delighted and astonished at His message. We may not serve exactly as He did, but if we present ourselves in God's house on His day we will find the way opening for us to share in the worship.

Jesus not only spoke, but He performed a miracle. Certain it is that we could not do what He did, but we can be ready to give ourselves in service as well as in worship, or in speaking. There is much work to be done in the church, and God's people should be ready and willing to do it.

II. In the Home (vv. 29-31).

From the synagogue Christ went into the home. How appropriate! We too should go from the church to the home, always bringing with us the strength and blessing of the worship service.

The daughter of a great preacher and Bible teacher said the thing she most loved in her father was that he did not give out the "cream" of his Christianity in his meetings and bring home the "skim milk." Too often we fail to bring into the home the power and beauty of the service in the church. We who have been very sweet and spiritual in the church should not come home to be sour and crabbed.

Jesus brought a blessing into Peter's home, miraculously healing his mother-in-law of a great fever, setting her free to serve Here again we cannot do what He did, but we can, in His name, bring power and blessing into our homes.

III. In the City (vv 32-34).

From the home the ministry of Jesus reached out to the entire city. As the strict laws forbidding travel on the Jewish Sabbath were set aside by the coming of sundown, not only the city but the entire countryside brought their sick and needy to Him.

The scene staggers the imagination as one attempts to conceive of this coming together of troubled humanity for the Master's touch. Mark tells us that He healed many; Matthew, that He healed all, and Luke, the physician, is emphatic in saying that He healed every one of them.

We may learn from this incident that our Christian faith, which has been developed and strengthened by our time of worship and service in the church, should not only reflect itself in the home, but should reach out into the life of the community in which we live. The primary interest of the Christian in his city or the place of his residence should be spiritual, a desire to bring to bear upon the people of the community the power of the gospel.

There is, however, a secondary responsibility which is of much importance and that is the extending of Christian influence into every phase of school, social, political, and business life. It is said that when D. L. Moody came into a barber shop the entire course of the conversation changed. The Christian should have an influence on problems of social welfare, the work of the public schools, the proper conduct of business in the community, and surely upon its political life. It is said that if every Christian in America would vote according to his professed convictions we could put the saloons out of business in a single election Why not do it?

STORE NEWS

Business was rushing in our Store all through the month of January However, we have a big stock, mostly new Furniture and Rugs on display We turn our stock four times a year, thus our stock is always new and fresh

Our Customers have more money and are demanding better merchandise For example A year ago soft-wood Breakfast Sets at $9 50 to $19 00 were much in demand Now they don't want them. We moved the half dozen sets we had left into the Used Department What they buy now is hard-wood sets and Chrome-leg sets at from $29.00 to $49.00.

In Bedroom Furniture we do not need too many suites at $65 00 and $75 00 but our customers buy a surprising number of suites from

$95.00 up

and they are beautiful sets.

In Dining Room Furniture about half the sets we sell are of the Duncan Pfyfe Style, dark walnut with drop leaf tables

Cheap all-cotton Mattresses have advanced about $3 00 each, but all Inner Spring Mattresses are still at last year's prices

$19.95 $24.75 $29.00

$32.50 and $39.50

Bed Springs are a little hard to get, but we bought from several places and have 80 on hand. This should last a while

The Government takes 50 percent of the Carpet Wool from the factories, thus wool rugs will be hard to get later on, but now we have plenty.

Not much change in price on Linoleum and Hard Rugs, but for us they are slow arriving Sometimes it takes 2 months to get an order thru. However, we have enlarged our department and have bought ahead and have enough for everybody.

Mrs. Trumbell, local Red Cross chairman points out that those women in the community who do not find it convenient to come to the school house, may obtain work to do at home. More women are needed to help with Red Cross work in Klemme.

Among those who are leaving for eastern Africa to work on a British and American airport are Ray Powell and Fred Schlachter, both of Rockwell City.

CAN HELP WAR EFFORT BY CONSERVING BALING WIRE

Each year farmers of the United States throw away enough used baling wire to build three mighty battleships or 3,000 medium tanks, says County Agent Paul Henderson. In other words, much of the 100,000 tons used each year for baling straw and forage crops is allowed to rust away in a scrap heap after removal from the bales.

With a little care, Henderson says, much of this wire could be used a second time, not only for baling economy, but as an important conservation measure and a direct contribution to the national war effort. Farmers may find a situation in which new baling wire cannot be obtained.

Henderson suggests that baling wire be removed by untying the knot, or by cutting the wire as close to the knot as possible so that it can be used over again Short ties may be used over again by making shorter, lighter bales, or they may be spliced to full length. Baling wire hung over a fence or piled in a heap outside the machine shed, may rust and become unfit for re-use. Rusting can be prevented by wiping each tie with oil and storing in a dry place.

CROP AND FEED LOANS NOW AVAILABLE

Mr. Arthur J Petit, 323 Old Federal Bldg., Des Moines, Iowa, Hancock county Field Supervisor for the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration is quoted as saying that crop and feed loans for 1942 are now available to all eligible farmers in Hancock county and that inquiries for these loans can now be made at the County Agent's office in Garner.

As in former years, Federal funds appropriated for the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section are available for crop and feed loans, which include seed, feed, fuel and oil, and machinery repairs. Due to expected delays in securing repair parts, applicants are urged to apply as early as possible for funds for the purpose of needed machinery repairs.

This service to farmers is offered by this Section of the Department of Agriculture to enable all eligible farmers to produce food and feed in line with the Food for Freedom program.

Loans can be made to all eligible farmers who can meet the requirements by giving a first lien on 1942 crops financed. The 1942 crop production loans will mature August 31, 1942, and will bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent from date of disbursement.

In order to be able to make application for a loan in Hancock County, an applicant must be of legal age and farm in the county..

The Burma Road

China's 'Life Line' Is Packed With Heroicism While Death Always Lurks

By CLIFF LANGE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union)

Dispatches to the newspapers in the United States have been keeping the people well informed on the Japanese activity in bombing the Burma road, life line of China. Since the United States declared war on Japan, news coming out on this famous road has been pushed to "inside pages" of newspapers because of other war activities closer to the people in the United States. Nevertheless, this road which means so much to China still plays an important part in the activity of the Allies against their enemies.

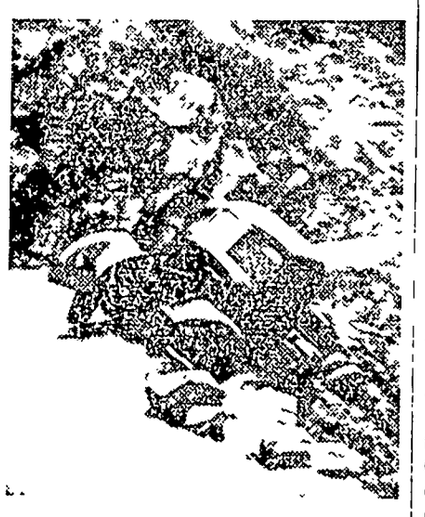
This famous road begins at Rangoon, India, as a rail line northeastward to Lashio, near the Chinese frontier. At Lashio the goods for embattled China are transferred to trucks and carried along the twisting, dangerous, wreckage-strewn highway to Chungking, headquarters of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government.

From the railhead at Lashio, the Burma road in its 726 miles, crosses mountain ranges 10,000 feet high, and then plunges into canyons of two of the world's greatest rivers: the jungle hedged Mekong, and the verdant trimmed Salween. Within the distance of 40 miles—easily an hour's travel on a highway in the United States—this fascinating, adventure-packed highway rises and dips twice from 2,500 feet to 7,500 feet.

Throughout its tortuous length the road twists and turns through some of the most hazardous driving terrain in the world. The roadbed, in some places is just about nine feet wide, but never more than twenty. It hugs the edge of seemingly bottomless chasms, and sneaks over chassis-breaking ridges.

Engineering Feat.

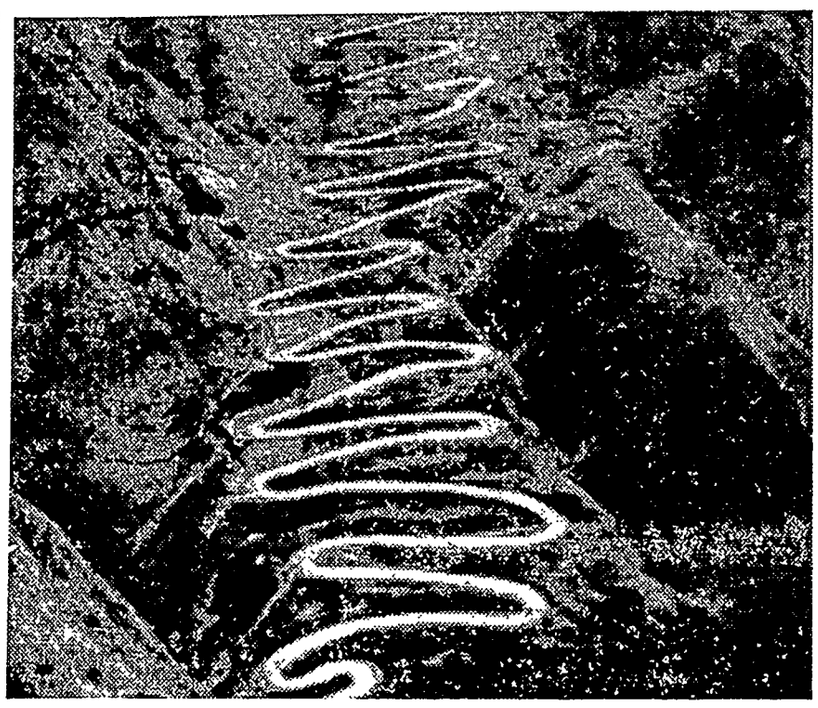
It is no wonder that engineers consider this road as one of the world's greatest engineering feats, comparing with China's other great defensive effort, the Great Wall. Fortunately, this important highway carrying supplies to the capital of China was completed to its present condition before Japan attacked not only the possessions of the United States in the Pacific, but also those of the Dutch and British. The United States, way before the attack by the Japs, fully realized the great value of China as an ally. For over a year now the U. S. has been sending supplies over this road. And more recently she has been seeing to it that the frequent bombings by the Japs wouldn't go unchallenged, by having volunteer corps of U. S. aviators patrol the road, ready for a scrap at any time.



Another Burma road casualty on one of the hundreds of hair-pin curves along the route bringing war supplies to embattled China's capital in the interior. Since the road opened at least 1,300 trucks have been destroyed by rolling off precipices. This "off the road" casualty is not as bad as some of them. Sometimes "off the road" means a mere drop of something like 7,000 feet.

Military authorities are not reticent in saying that this tortuous, grueling road may decide the battle of Asia now well under way. For without supplies going to General Kai-shek's capital, China would soon be forced to drop out of the way—possibly ask for terms with her hated enemy, Japan, who has been attempting to batter her into submission for at least five years.

Literally the Burma road is the life-line to China and her armies. Except for the overland route from Soviet Union Turkestan, it is the only inlet for material which China needs so badly. The present conflict between the Soviets and the Nazis has practically cut off the supplies which had been coming from Russia, in the north.



This unusual shot of the Burma Road as it twists and curves over the mountains to Chungking has been compared to a snake. Possibly it will—as the story notes—be the "snake" that will help strike down Japan in her present fight against the democracies.

Recently, American truck line transportation experts came through here on General Kai-shek's invitation on their way to inspect the road. Their purpose was to put greater co-ordination and efficiency in its operation. For reports of indifference, lassitude, and perhaps graft began to reach the General's ear. With a typical "westerner's" reaction he did something about it. The U. S. transportation officials came over for a check-up.

Over 400 trucks a day are rolling over the road loaded with American military supplies sent by terms of the lend-lease bill, and relief supplies sent through the United China Relief. These same trucks returning from China carry tungsten, tung oil, wolframite and other strategic U. S. defense-program materials to pay for these supplies.

Sudden Death.

Many lives were lost in building this road. Today, the loss of lives continues. Not so much from bombing by Japanese airmen, continually blasting away at it, especially the two major suspension bridges across the Salween and the Mekong, but from the drivers and the road workers on it. Since the road opened, 1,300 trucks have been destroyed by falling off the precipices along the hundreds of hairpin turns such as shown in the picture above.

Thousands, too, have fallen victim to malaria, for the road traverses the worst malarial swamp in the world. Medical relief on the road today is under the care of the American Society of Friends, member agency of United China Relief.

Since the inspection of the road by the traffic experts invited over by Generalissimo Kai-shek, many projects calculated to eliminate inefficiency and truck delays have been instituted.

A complete system of auto repair, gasoline and dispatching stations is being established along this vital route. A school for automobile mechanics, to teach the essentials of repair and maintenance, has been opened in Chungking by the College of Science of the University of Nanking.

The awakening, and fighting, Chinese aren't going to let it be said that they, once being shown how, didn't do anything to prevent their life-line from functioning properly.

At the present time the trip over the Burma road requires from 10 to 12 days of hard, tough driving. After the improvements recommended by the experts are made, the trip will take a week or less. Asphalting will improve the efficiency of the road and also reduce the ever lurking risks.

Hewn by Hand.

The Burma road will then be greatly different from the day when it was first completed by 150,000 peasant men and women, working entirely with hand tools, and who finished the job in a little more than a year. (American and British engineers estimated the job would take four years to complete.)

The immensity of the project is near appalling when it is remembered that those peasants actually hacked the road out of the granite cliff edges. Within a very short time the hand-crushed rock and gravel topping this highway-for-freedom will be asphalted.

In a short time, when the 30,000-ton figure is reached, providing the force of the Japan military machine doesn't achieve and keep the upper hand of the present battle now raging, the turning point in the war over here will be reached.

For then goods will be moving in sufficient volume to permit China's armies to undertake their first major sustained counter-offensive. A counter-offensive which will make the recent one against the Japs who were moving in on the beleaguered British at Shanghai, small in comparison.

Watch the military activities evolving about the Burma road. There, too, you will read more tales of great heroicism such as have surrounded the road ever since it was first begun. The fate of the Burma road will decide the fate of the battle of the Pacific—and the battle of the Atlantic, too.

Interesting Notes on the Famous Burma Road

With hand tools only, 150,000 Chinese peasant men and women completed it in less than 13 months.

It is 726 miles long, and hacked out of the edges of granite cliffs.

The road spans 2,000 culverts and 300 bridges, including two major suspension bridges across the Salween and the Mekong.

Since opened, 1,300 trucks have been destroyed by falling off precipices on its hundreds of hairpin turns.

A recent estimation (actual movements are a military secret) place the present volume over it from 18,000 to 20,000 tons a month.

The present trip over it requires from 10 to 12 days of hard driving.

It crosses mountain ranges 10,000 feet high—plunges into canyons of two of the world's greatest rivers.

Wide Powers Given To State Governors For War Emergency

CHICAGO.—Armed with emergency war powers granted recently by their legislatures or by state statutes of 1917 still in force, most of the 48 governors are prepared for speedy mobilization of military and civilian resources of their states, a survey by the Council of State Governments indicates.

So broad are the governors' powers that it seems unlikely states will have to enact the mass of legislation found necessary during the first World war. For this reason, special sessions of the states in 1942—an off-legislative year—may be less numerous than anticipated.

The governors' war emergency powers, in addition to complete supervision of state defense councils, cover a wide range of subjects, from organizing state guards to controlling oil supplies. Twenty-seven states adopted state guard acts in 1940-1941, and in 26 of them the governor has authority to dispatch the guard in response to calls for help from neighboring governors.

Mobilizing State Resources.

In two states—Massachusetts and New Jersey—governors last year were authorized to undertake unusually wide wartime mobilization of state resources, according to the survey. The governor of Massachusetts is permitted to "take any measures which he may deem proper to carry into effect any request of the President of the United States for action looking to the national defense or to the public safety." Massachusetts last year also re-enacted a 1917 statute authorizing the governor to take possession of any equipment and supplies in the state for service of the state or country. This act further permits the governor to seize, sell or distribute gratuitously cattle, poultry, provisions, fuel, gasoline and other materials to inhabitants of the state.

The New Jersey act, approved late last month, directs the governor to render the United States in the present crisis any assistance within the power of the state. To accomplish this, he may organize and employ any and all resources within the state, whether men, properties or instrumentalities, and is directed to exercise any or all power convenient or necessary in his judgment to give such assistance.

Nine other states, under 1917 statutes, give the governor power to organize all of the state's resources.

Practically every state constitution provides the governor shall be the commander-in-chief of the militia and volunteer forces of the state, the council survey showed. Twelve states have provided specifically by statute for the declaration of a state of martial law by the governor.

In 12 states also the governor can appoint special police to guard strategic areas. Nebraska and New York give their governors particularly wide powers in the use of county or municipal officers to enforce criminal laws, it was pointed out.

New York Heartbeat:

Sallies in Our Alley: The strict new parking regulations inspired this one . . . Jimmy Dorsey's drummer came late for rehearsals—with the excuse that he got a summons for passing a traffic light . . . "Well," said Dorsey, "that's a poor excuse. Why didn't you stop for it?" . . . "What!" exclaimed the drummer, "and take a chance on getting a parking ticket?" . . . The other night several scribes were wondering about a green-with-envy colyumist's war record . . . "He was with Herbert Hoover's Food Commission," explained a vet . . . "Yeh," said another, as the crowd rocked with laughter, "he was the only casualty — when a chocolate cream puff exploded in his face."

Carole Lombard, one of the stars the 48 stars will always be proud of, died in active service selling defense bonds. Actors and actresses, directors, producers, cameramen, electricians and members from all the allied theatrical professions, have enlisted in some branch of the service. Giving their energy, time and money to playing benefits, buying tickets for them and entertaining Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and the Coast Guard, etc.

And it was only a few months ago when some Senators tried to stain the movie industry by alleging it was un-American!

One thing we are sure of. There must have been a wreath sent by the Army to Carole—inscribed with the highest compliment the Army can give a woman. To wit: "She was a Gentleman!"

There's a Hollywood couple who want to get a divorce, but they can't agree on who gets custody of the spare tire.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Wireless: Sec. Knox's release to the newscasters, that it was stupid to bank on a crash in Germany, was good advice. Nobody is going to whip Hitler but his enemies, he reminded. Berlin wants us to imagine it is in trouble and uncover our chins . . . Just the same, it was nice to read in Anne O'Hare McCormick's Times spot that foreign broadcasts are reaching the ears of stay-at-home Heinies. Joe Louis at least got a laugh out of licking Buddy Baer. He told Eddie Cantor why he donated his share of the gate to the Navy. "When I go overseas," said Private Joe, "I want a boat under me." "The Court of Missing Heirs" is hunting for a 79-year-old man to give him $2,700. "What fun can a man that old have with $2,700?" queried a listener. . . "What fun can a man that old have?" corrected a blue-penciler . . Every week radio is full of shows helping this and that worthy cause. The theatrical profession should be proud of its contributions. Actors are always first and anxious to help, although they were the first to suffer when the government started cutting relief expenses. Remember?

The Story Tellers: H. Hoover played target for the book reviewers' arrows. He made a book out of his recent Satevepost pieces, called "America's First Crusade," ignoring Pearl Harbor. The Stuff was penned in 1934-35 when the Roosevelt trouncing was smarting acutely. The critics were stunned to discover that the Pacific battles apparently hadn't budged his opinions . . There is a timely article in Collier's called "Don't Believe a Word of It." It tells how the gullible are needled into disunity tricks by shooting off their mouths on planted slanders against our defense. . . I. A. R. Wylie spreads a nifty tale across the pages of Liberty. It concerns people who believe that "it's better to have a broken neck than a bowed one."

The Front Pages: The most cheering war story of the week told about the Chinese victory at Changsha. The Chinese teased the foe into a trap by feigning weakness, then turned and ruined them . . . The Chinese press has grounds for squawking. China doesn't think Japan should be undersold. What does it matter what part of the world the Axis is trounced in, it inquires, objecting to Germany taking the first beating . . . "From the Land of Silent People," a war book by Robert St. John, is getting big handclaps. He was an AP staffer in Yogoslavia when the wolves came, and it's all in the book. Edward Doherty, once of the dailies, now a Liberty writer, recalls his reporting days beguilingly in "Gall and Honey."

The Big Parade: The Girl From Stockholm going into the Stanley Theater to see "The Girl From Leningrad"—Greta Garbo . . . Mrs. FDR, who originated the slogan, "Let's Grind Down the Axis"—but is too modest to accept credit for it. . . Merle Oberon, being introduced by that monicker and correcting: "Don't you mean Mrs. Alexander Korda?" . . . The D. Toppings (S. Henie) at all the sinful places—hoping to run into (but hard!) the colyumers who had them dividing.

UTILITY SENSATIONS

The hard-hitting Truman committee hasn't got around to the matter yet, but some hot sensations are in store when the committee digs into the dollar-a-year-man handling of the power phases of the war production program.

For years one of the hottest issues in Washington has been the power lobby. It has been repeatedly investigated, and several years ago, after fierce legislative battles, the federal power and holding company laws were enacted to curb the lobby.

The Truman committee has confidential information that today this lobby is more powerfully entrenched in the capital than ever before.

For months, it has been operating directly inside the government, formulating and running the power policy of the OPM, which was until last week the key war production agency.

The OPM power division is not only manned with utility officials, but they are still on the payrolls of private power companies. In other words, while presumably working for the government, they are actually paid employees of the utilities.

After being deluged with complaints that the utility-ruled OPM power division was secretly aiding independent rural power co-ops, the house appropriations committee questioned J. A. Krug, head of the division, on these charges.

Krug defended his staff, but the committee, unconvinced, ordered him to submit a detailed report on his dollar-a-year assistants, including the amount of salaries they are drawing from utility companies while working for the government.

Two months have elapsed since Krug promised to produce this important information and so far he has not done so.

All the committee has received was a cagey letter from John Lord O'Brian, former corporation attorney who is OPM general counsel, giving a list of the power division's personnel, but has nothing about their private salaries. However, the little information O'Brian did disclose speaks volumes.

It shows that no less than 18 key officials in Krug's division are dollar-a-year and "WOC" (without compensation) men, who are still on private utility payrolls.

Note: Appropriation committee members estimate that the total pay these men draw from power companies is more than $250,000 a year. War Production Chief Donald Nelson has privately indicated he will houseclean Krug's unit.

BAD FILMS FOR GOOD NEIGHBORS

Young Nelson Rockefeller, who on the whole has done a good job for Pan-American cultural relations, has bogged down badly on films for our Pan-American neighbors. His Museum of Modern Art, which was supposed to do this, has been laboring for nine months at a cost of $15,000 per month to the government—and finally has brought forth a mouse.

Rockefeller and Jock Whitney are getting a large dose of criticism about this because they personally are interested in the Museum and have permitted an amateur group to run the show—into the ground.

Without benefit of competitive bidding or any system of checks and balances, amateur after amateur in the Museum has tackled the job of deciding what kind of films should be sent to Latin-America. Here is a cross section of the results so far:

"Better Dresses Fifth Floor," "A Child Went Forth," "The City," and "Power and The Land"—all utterly unsuited and without objective for South America.

Some reasonably good commercial films have been donated, such as "U. S. Steel," "Greyhound Bus," "General Electric Excursions in Science," and "The American Can Company's Silver Millions." Also Hollywood has handed over a group of pictures, such as "Eyes of the Navy," "Soldiers of the Sky," "The Battle," which are the best pictures that have gone to South America.

Meanwhile the amateurs continue to chatter and muddle over uplifting the films for our Good Neighbors—all at the expense of Uncle Sam.

MICKEY ROONEY'S marriage to Ava Gardner, the pretty girl from North Carolina whose movie career has so far consisted of a few minor roles, depleted the ranks of Hollywood eligibles—and that's a serious problem. There has never been enough bachelors there to go around. Now the draft, enlistment in the armed forces, and matrimony have made it harder than ever for a pretty, unattached girl to find a presentable, unattached male escort

Franchot Tone, George Brent, Rooney himself—all seemed bent on pursuing the single life, no matter how many girls they were said to be engaged to. Then matrimony hit them all, like a hurricane. Pity the press agents, who'll have to find substitutes, when they want to get publicity for a film starlet by announcing her engagement to a movie celebrity!

The dearth of bachelors isn't going to bother Martha O'Driscoll, Paramount starlet; she herself removed one from circulation when she announced her engagement to Walter Brewer, a non-professional, and the brother of Mrs. Hal Roach Jr. She appeared in "Reap the Wild Wind" in one of the principal roles and recently finished work in "Pacific Blackout" in the feminine lead.

—*—

Betty Field has had a lot of good roles, but they've been non-dressy ones; in "Shepherd of the Hills" she wore makeup on her body that made it look as if she were covered with dirt, in addition to having drab clothing Now, in "Mr. and Mrs. Cugat," in which she is co-starred with Ray Milland, she has 15 changes of clothing—Edith Head, who designed the garments, said she had the highest budget wardrobe that Paramount will provide for any of its glamour stars this year, so for once Betty will have something to wear on the screen!

Claudette Colbert goes Betty Field one better, though—she wears two wedding gowns in "The Palm Beach Story," in which she marries Joel McCrea twice—once in 1937, once in 1942—and both costumes are tops.

When the call to duty came, it found Carole Lombard ready and obedient. She did not lose her life in that call, she gave it, as willingly and freely as any soldier upon the battlefield. Her memory shall be cherished and revered down the ages by all who love that honor and freedom for which the fun-loving beloved wife of Clark Gable made the supreme sacrifice, when an airplane, carrying the film star, her mother and 20 others, including 15 army fliers, crashed near Las Vegas, Nev., none surviving. Miss Lombard was returning to Hollywood from Indianapolis, where she had gone to assist the U. S. treasury in the sale of defense bonds.

They tell us there's a new word for "oomph," which Hollywood had been tirelessly hunting. Help came from the army. A buck private was visiting the Paramount studio, and saw Jean Phillips, blonde exstandin, who'd just finished a costarring role in "Dr. Broadway."

He looked at her once, twice, and turned to the bystanders. "Wow!" said he. "She's got woodle!"

Smart Midseason Dresses Are Dignified and Simply Styled

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THERE is a new psychology in the matter of dress. It's a most wholesome one which yields to no compromise with feminine charm and flattery, but tends toward greater simplicity, careful selection and an appreciative evaluation of wearing apparel that avoids extravagance. Clothes are made to serve dependably and at the same time graciously, during the stress and strain of the present war period.

It's well-mannered clothes that women are wanting, the sort that won't shriek with glitter and gewgaws, yet will be spirit-lifters in their colorfulness, suavity of line and genuine charm The winsome little wool dresses now so popular give the answer. Not only do they exploit color but they are styled to a nicety with all sorts of "catchy" details that individualize them and make them of outstanding style importance, not only for immediate wear with fur wraps but also to wear into the summer.

The accompanying group picture eloquently tells the story of quality, materials of distinction and flattering color. The first of this trio, that shown to the left in the above illustration, is a clever sports dress for the teen-age girl. It is in chocolate colored wool panelled with brown-stitched beige. Simple tailored princess lines enhance this model, together with an easy grace achieved by the full-gored effect below the hipline.

The dress to the right in the picture above stresses the new 1942 classic simplicity to a nicety. It exploits the sleek-fitting long-torso lines now so popular with college girls and the junior set. One of the persuasive arguments in favor of the attractive colorful daytime wool frocks is that they are "up to tricks" in the way of ingenious detail. In this instance it is the lacing at each side of the long-torso bodice that is eye-catching. Self material is laced around gold hooks. This model comes in delectable pastels or in lush colors.

Centered in the group above is a perfect "date" dress for the girl who must wear her "special occasion" dress all day in the office. This gown of leaf green crepe has a striking triple - tiered peplum, a smartly curved yoke and the somewhat full, straight sleeve favored this season.

Too sweet for words are the dainty little afternoon dresses of light wool or rayon crepe in exquisite pastels. They are fashioned with cunning self-fabric trimming. One has three rows of tiny ruching applied to a medium flare skirt line, three huge hand painted wood buttons and matching ruching about a clever yokeline. Made of China pink crepe it is the ideal answer to the demand for something dressy but not too dressy

The fuss made by the younger set over white date dresses continues. White jersey seems to be the outstanding material for these dresses. Now that color is so important, many of these jerseys are made gay and bright with embroidered flowers and motifs done in multi-colored yarns. Some of the most attractive white jersey frocks are highlighted with effective trapunto quilted design. Others are made festive with gilt buttons and girdles.

Ribbed Jacket

If you're headed resort-ward, plenty of lightweight sports things should be in your trunks. Here is one of the new loafer coats (the name reveals its purpose) to wear when you loll around on the veranda or beaches or wherever the spirit moves you. These jackets are made of cordurella, a feminine version of cordurex, the popular velvety-ribbed men's wear fabric. If you are a husband-and-wife combination, his windbreaker and slacks should be made of the finest lightest cordurex in order to interpret fashion at its smartest.

Save Stockings to Help Student Work

Women throughout the states are being asked to join a unique campaign to save old, worn-out silk or nylon hose (no rayon), to help send American girls and boys through college For every thousand pairs of old hose contributed one girl or boy is enabled to attend college for 12 months.

A curtailment of silk has forced many in the student body of Athens college in Alabama to stay home this year. They had been earning their way working in the college's hosiery mills.

The stockings sent in will be reconditioned and "backwound," the process done under government supervision.

For Blackout

Some of the stores are featuring blackout accessories, such as bags done in plaid fiber to wear over the shoulder. They have five pockets, and it is advised that they be kept stocked with emergency requirements—flashlight, sweater, and other useful items. You can even get shoes that have tiny flashlight attachments

Floating Suit

For those who cannot swim it should be good news that a floating swim suit has been devised that is non-sinkable, its patented feature being the lining of a spongy substance that floats. You can get these novel, practical suits in fitted or in dressmaker styles.

Brunch Coat

A fad that is growing into a pronounced movement is the brunch coat. It's as practical to wear as the usual smock, but is more formal and can be found in a greater variety of styles.

THE HEALING MINISTRY OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—2:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus . . . was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick.—Matthew 14:14.

Man is more than a body. He is made up of body, soul, and spirit. In a physical world where he is so much in touch with physical nature, and the needs of his body are so much before him, he is prone to forget that there is within a spiritual nature which is his real self.

God is interested in both the physical and the spiritual side of man. He provides all that we need for our bodies, and above all, He meets the all-important spiritual hunger of man's inner being. We find the Lord Jesus in our lesson graciously touching both spirit and body of the palsied man in response to the faith of his friends.

I. Faith Brings a Double Need to Christ (vv 1-4).

This faith-stimulating story faces us first with

1 An Impossible Situation Incurably afflicted and helpless physically and far more deeply afflicted spiritually, this man had no one who could heal his body and restore his soul. Apart from the power of God in Jesus Christ his situation was hopeless, and thus he may well typify every one of us except for the grace of Christ.

Furthermore, his circumstances were such as to make it impossible for him to get to Jesus, who was there in his city. Even when his four friends came to his help and bore him to the house where Jesus was, they could not enter because of the crowds. So a journey begun in hope was evidently to close in despair. But wait, these men had

2. An Undeniable Faith. "Where there's a will there's a way." Where there is faith the obstacles may be surmounted. Having begun a good work they persevered in it.

Had these men been bound by convention or custom they would never have put their friend at Jesus' feet. They did try to make a proper entry through the door, but it was blocked. The way to Jesus is often closed, by some custom, a vain philosophy, or a religious ceremony. Let us, like these believing men, open the roof if necessary to bring our needs and our needy friends to Him.

Although mention is made only of the palsy of this man, it is probable that both he and they knew that his need was for a double cure, for he was yet in his sins.

They brought him to Jesus, where their

II. Faith Receives a Double Reward From Christ (vv. 5-12).

Immediately Jesus "saw their faith" (v. 5), just as He always does. God is on the lookout for faith and is quick to reward it. The twofold need here brought a double blessing.

1. Spiritual Cleansing. The man's physical affliction thus proved to be his greatest blessing, for it brought him to Jesus, who cleansed him of all unrighteousness. If he had not been palsied he might never have met the Lord. Suffering, then, may be a means of grace. That is more than a pious platitude, for it has been proved repeatedly in the existence of men and women.

Certain scribes "sitting there" (they were not doing a thing to help) began to reason in their hearts that Jesus was blaspheming because only God can forgive sin. Their theology was faultless and their reasoning was logical, but the premise of their argument was wrong. Only God can forgive sin, but Jesus is God, something which they in their wisdom did not realize or accept.

We (especially young people in school) should be careful that the fluent smoothness of some unbelieving philosopher's logic does not lead us astray, and away from God's truth.

Note also the solemnizing thought that Jesus knew what they were thinking in their hearts. Let us remember that "all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do" (Heb. 4 13). What does He see when He looks into our hearts?

The challenge of these questioning scribes is met by

2 Physical Healing. Forgiving sins was harder than healing the body, but these enemies of Jesus lived so much in the realm of the physical that He had to give them a demonstration of His almighty power which they could see. It was a gracious thing for Him to do, and perhaps necessary in those early days of His life and ministry.

Today, with all the light of history upon the work of God, we need to beware that we do not sit in the seat of the scornful and demand a physical sign before we will believe. God is doing great things in the spiritual realm even in our day, in which Christian men and women may share by faith

Increasing the quality of eggs to get the maximum price can be accomplished quite easily if eggs are taken to market at least twice a week, by keeping the eggs in a cool place, producing eggs that are infertile, and by producing clean-shelled eggs.

THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY

Those who complain most are to be complained of M Henry.

We can do more good by being good than any other way.

—Rowland Hill

MUSIC NEWS

The band has three new pieces Midnight Sun," 'Light Calvary,' nd 'La France' We may use one of them for contest which is by the way only a month off

A letter from the officials of the contest informed the music groups that there will be more elimenations of contestants and the rules will be more severe than last year

If the mixed chorus is not considered good enough to go (by the band directors of nearby towns,) we will not be taken.

Entrants for the contest will be Clarinet Quartet Saxophone Quartet, Band Brass Quartet, Mixed Chorus, Brass Sextet, Girls Glee Club, Girls Sextet, Boys Glee Club, Boys Quartet and Girls Trio

All apologies to Ed Barz whose name was ommitted from the list of the sax quartet members

SPORTS FLASHES

After a victorious tournament the Shamrocks barely eked out a victory from the hard fighting Goodell team 32 to 25 Wes Boller, the expert basketball player showed the Shamrocks what real basketball is He looped the net for 14 of the Goodell points

The basketball boys want to thank Mr Ed Buntenbach for the (not lunch) but feast that he gave us after the tournament The boys say that he is their No 1 fan!

The Shamrocks also thank Mr Patterson's father for his treat He came all the way from Seneca to see us play every night and ever had to go back one night to see the Seneca girls play in their tournament at Wesley Now that's a good fan for you!

But we won't forget all of the rooters that Klemme had, and although we can't put all the names of the loyal fans in the paper, we thank everyone for their fine support and sportmanship at the tournament With a spirit like that we hope to come through with more victories.

WHY WE MUST CONSERVE ON SUGAR

Many people still do not understand why sugar is being limited in civilian use There has always been plenty of sugar and our big source of supply has not been cut off. We can grow sugar beets for vast amounts of sugar right here at home So the question is one which is quite logical.

The answer is. Sugar is used in making powder for cartridges and shells.

Sugar is first converted into alcohol and the alcohol made into powder.

Fifty pounds of sugar will make sixty-two pounds of smokeless powder. Every time General McArthur fires six shells at the Japanese in the Phillipines he has used the equivalent of one acre of sugar cane!

Sugar is needed for gun powder more than it is needed to sweeten cakes and candies.

Instead of two teaspoonfuls of sugar in your coffee or tea, use one and the other will send a pair of bullets toward the Japs!

CHANGE OF TIME NOT SO BAD AFTER ALL

Well, we are on "war time" and "The war will end one hour sooner!"

the change-over was hardly noticeable.

The world looked rather strange to some of us Monday morning who were not in the habit of getting up while it is still dark at this time of the year!

Not only was it very dark when we got up, but the weather man took a hand in the change-over and had seven inches of snow for us to shovel in the darkness!

And, any way you figure it, we are out one hour of good sleep

The only ray of sunshine was a statement some wise cookie made,

CREED FOR AN AMERICAN IN AN ALL-OUT WAR

I am through with compromise, halfway measures, crystal gazing and the idea that it's all done by mirrors.

I am finished with talk for talk's sake and the "that's under advisement" and "in due time the matter will be attended to" technic.

I have canceled my subscription to the theory that "it all comes out in the wash," even if you haven't thought to provide soap.

I believe in my country's capacity to triumph, despite its tendency to argue, muddle, procrastinate and compromise.

I believe the "Never say die" spirit of America will completely supersede the "What's in it for ME?" motif, and that it's about time

I believe the Spirit of '76 will submerge the Spirit of Every Man for Himself, Every Politician for the Main Chance and Every American for Softer Upholstery.

I believe in the American Way and I now believe it is the way upward and forward and not just a circular path around the artificial rosebeds.

I believe the country is beginning to understand that sacrifice is not merely something done with a goat.

I believe that patriotism is something beginning to show in the deeds of Americans and no longer something that was the main concern of orators during a five-minute interval at national conventions.

I believe that "The Star-Spangled Banner" is now a song to stir every American to the depths, and no longer a number reserved in the main for special school exercises, army and navy activities and for musical comedy climaxes.

I believe that this is a war in which Americans see the issue more clearly than they have seen the issue in any war since 1776.

I believe that the hopes of Washington and Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln must triumph over the hopes of Hitler and Tojo and Mussolini.

I believe that the Bible must and shall triumph over Mein Kampf; and that the kindly figure of the Man of Galilee shall endure to guide the way of mankind long after the chest-thumping, plaza-strutting, dictatorial, microphone addicts and bullies have dwindled to the size of long-forgotten baccili.

I believe there is more in the Constitution of the United States, the Declaration of Independence and the American Bill of Rights worth fighting for than in any goal or set of goals ever proclaimed by all the war lords of history.

I believe Uncle Sam is all the more inspiring and all the more indestructible through his sudden awakening to the valor of the Chinese, the incredible toughness of the Russians, the fortitude of the British and the fine qualities of all those nations with which he is now linked in one crusade.

I believe Americans can "take it as well as dish it out."

I believe they are going to prove it in a way that will win a new respect all over the face of this earth.

I believe there are reversals, hard blows and great sufferings for Uncle Sam ahead.

I believe he will toughen up and show that he is the Uncle Sam of Breeds Hill, "the rude bridge that arched the flood," Valley Forge, Ticonderoga, Princeton, Gettysburg, San Juan Hill, Manila Bay, Belleau Wood and Soissons.

I believe in America!

JOE LOUIS AND THE ARMY EXAM

Q.—Have you done much fighting?

A.—No, but what I've done has been effective.

Q.—Have you done any flying?

A.—Not since the first Schmeling bout.

Q.—Any experience in tank work?

A.—No, that was two other champions.

There is a difference of opinion in the dress industry over the reported plan to shorten skirts by way of saving fabrics. Maurice Rentner of the Fashion Originators guild says they can't be made shorter without becoming police court matters. But we think he is wrong Skirts got so short around the time of the last war now and then a husband got mixed up and put one on as a wristlet.

* * *

The splendid work of the Dutch in the war brings back to mind an old song Dr Fred Beck used to sing at the Grays' outings back home:

"Those Dutch, they say, they ain't got no style—
They got style all the while, all the while!"

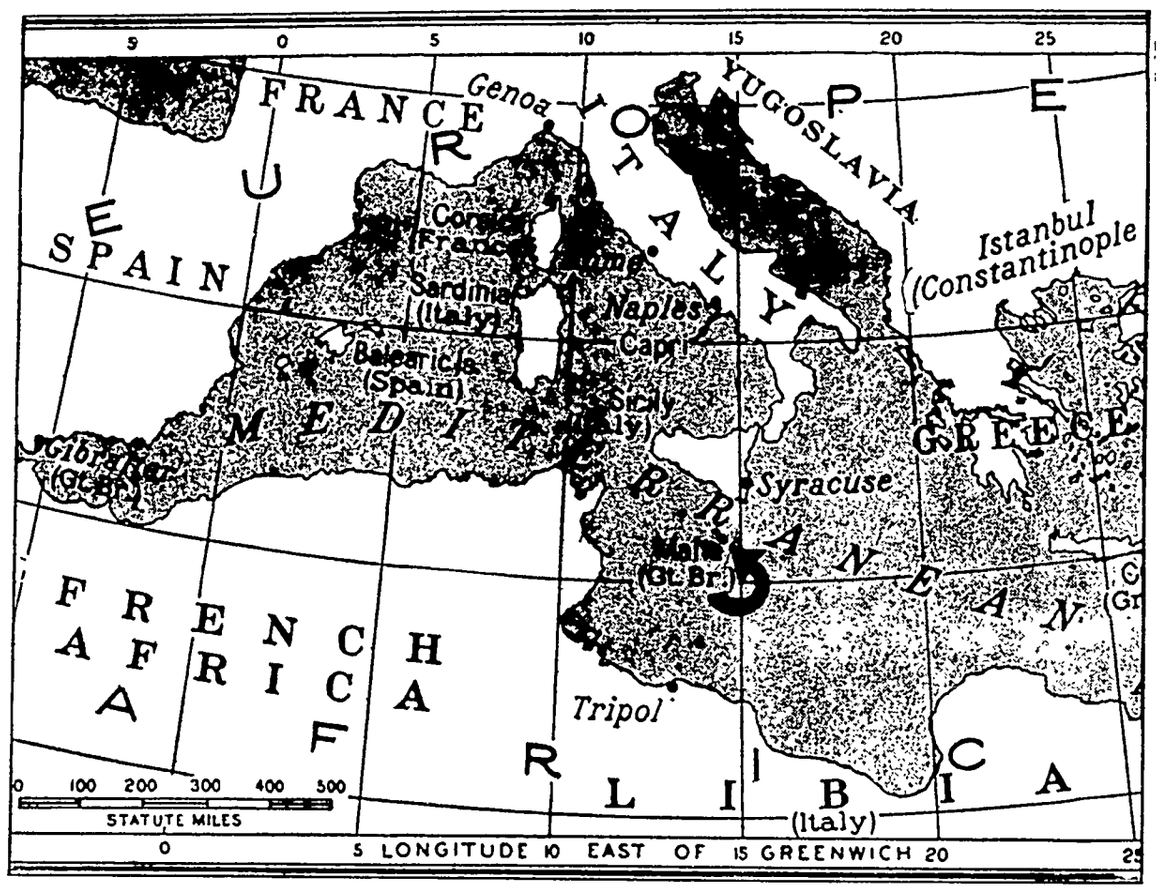
Malta, at Mediterranean 'Crossroad,' Still Remains Target for Nazi Bombs



Even though the United States army and navy fighting forces have been battling far to the other side of the world, and thereby shadowing the importance which Malta (see arrow above) has in its pivotal point in the Mediterranean, this regularly bombed spot is, like Singapore and Gibraltar (other very important British "life line links"), constantly on "alert" orders. This map also shows how almost all important sea-borne north and south and east and west sea traffic is within striking distance from this island. On the left edge of the map is shown Gibraltar. South of Malta, in North Africa Libya, is the territory where the Nazi and British have been thrusting and counter-thrusting.

Forming One of the World's Smallest Island Groups, About 150 Miles Southwest of Italy's 'Toe' And Attacked Over 200 Times.

Despite the continual pounding by the Nazi air force during the past six months, Malta still remains to fight back as one of Britain's important naval bases.

This "hot spot" of the Mediterranean ocean, lying athwart the criss-crossing sea lanes between Gibraltar and Suez, Europe and Africa, has been called the most bombed spot on earth.

News of United States' army and navy forces fighting on the other side of the world from Malta have dwarfed in significance the daily reports of bombing raids at this Mediterranean base. Military authorities, though, seem to think that Hitler will marshal all his military might for a "knock-out" blow here.

The Malta islands form one of the world's smallest island groups Made up of three islands, an islet, and a rock, it covers a total area of only about 122 square miles The "title" island of Malta itself, whose "Grand Harbor" of Valletta is big enough to accommodate the entire British fleet, is less than 100 square miles in extent

Geography Makes History.

Yet these Mediterranean stepping stones have figured in history and legend since before the Apostle Paul was shipwrecked on their shores. The Maltese say that Ulysses came this way Ancient sea-going Phoenicians founded on Malta's deeply indented coasts useful ports from which to base their trade and exploration activities in the western Mediterranean. The Carthaginians moved in six centuries before Christ, followed by the conquering Romans Greeks, Saracens, Normans, and Spaniards all had a hand in the rule of the strategic Mediterranean islands and left a share in its mixed heritage of blood and culture

It was under the Maltese Cross of the reigning Knights of St. John, however, that Malta saw its most colorful and romantic period For nearly 300 years this Crusading Order upheld its rich and feudal aristocracy of castle, church, and fortress In the famous battle against the Turks in 1565, the besieged Knights, with 10,000 followers, turned back some 50,000 would-be invaders.

On Napoleon's Path.

Napoleon was one of the conquerors of Malta. On his way to Egypt in 1798, he took the islands from the declining Knights as an easy prize Soon afterward, following an uprising against the French which was assisted by the British fleet, they were annexed by Great Britain, and finally were awarded that country in 1814 by the congress of Vienna.

During World War I, Malta again became an important place name in international annals. It was not only a leading base of Allied military operations but also a hospital and recuperation center.

The entry of Italy into the present war saw the island among the first enemy objectives. In six months the Maltese capital of Valletta suffered more than 200 air raids. It is only 58 miles south of Sicily, according to the National Geographic society.

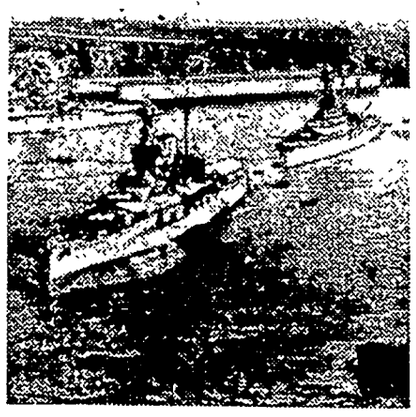
Gibraltarlike Defenses.

While the intricacies of the modern fortifications of Malta are closely guarded secrets, its general defensive strength long has been recognized. The old castles and fortresses were reported reinforced; and secret anchorages and submarine bases set up in outlying inlets. Like Gibraltar, Malta has innumerable coast and anti-aircraft batteries, bomb-proof shelters and rock-tunneled galleries where men, munitions, food, and water supplies may be stored. Beneath the island's surface, a network of ancient underground passages and catacombs also is reported now put into service as part of the defense and fortifications system.

Although its status as a vital British base carries the wartime penalty of enemy attack, Malta, in peace, enjoys the economic advantages of heavy payrolls there for workers and members of the armed forces

The islands (which must support a population of nearly 270,000 people) are themselves far from self-sufficient—even in normal times. Intensive cultivation of the thin but fertile soil provides crops of grain, vegetables, and fruits, but the supply is inadequate to meet domestic needs In one recent prewar year, Malta imported nearly $20,000,000 worth of goods, compared with exports which amounted to less than a million and a quarter dollars.

"As a result of the war, a number of women and children were evacuated from Malta. Many of its young men are serving with the British forces."



A scene in the harbor of Valletta, capital of England's island of Malta, showing a few of the vessels of the British Mediterranean fleet at anchor. Hidden in the hills in the background are important defense weapons which would make any attempt to take it suicide for any enemy fleet.

THE ARMY TRIES SUBSTITUTION

In its campaign to conserve materials classified as "critical" and "strategic," the army quartermaster corps has introduced substitutes for 800 articles in the past six months

Critical materials are defined as those available in this country but in insufficient quantities to meet our emergency needs, while strategic materials are those which must be imported.

In many instances where galvanizing has been the standard finish, zinc is being conserved by using paint, porcelain enamel, synthetic enamel, and black japan as the finish As a base material in a few quartermaster procurements, zinc is being replaced by galvanized iron or steel.

As a substitute for nickel plating, paint or synthetic enamel is being widely used and bronze or porcelain finishes are being used in place of monel metal, which contains much nickel.

Enough Vitamins For All in U. S.

Just Eat the Right Food And You Have Them.

MINNEAPOLIS. — The United States, unlike Europe and Japan, is richly supplied with all the vitamins necessary for health, vigor and morale; Americans need only eat the right foods in order to get them.

Japan, after an 18-year campaign for self-sufficiency in food production, is still a desperately undernourished nation. German research has been driven to the limit to improvise "ersatz" foods and to find new sources of necessary vitamins. Britain is importing vitamin concentrates and vitamin-rich foods from the United States. Reports filtering out of the occupied countries indicate that deficiency diseases there are already widespread.

But in the United States, vitamin-bearing foods are abundant and many are still cheap, a study by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company says. Americans can practically eliminate danger of vitamin deficiencies merely by eating enough of the simpler foods, and by getting enough sunshine.

Milk, and whole-wheat or other whole-grain breads and cereals, contain between them practically the entire list of needed vitamins and minerals, and in ample quantities except in the cases of vitamins A, C, G, and D. Inexpensive green and yellow vegetables furnish the extra A, C, and G. Sunshine will furnish the D, except in the case of growing children, who need a little extra in the form of fish liver oils or other D concentrates.

Prevent Eye Trouble Epidemics.

The expansion of our already vast dairy production is being pushed so as to take care of our armed forces, build reserve stocks for army and navy bases, and meet lease-lend requirements, without too great a reduction in the domestic supply. We have an enormous reserve of wheat in storage. Now available to the many who prefer white flour is the new "enriched" kind, which approximates many of the values of whole wheat or graham flour.

There has been some worry over the growing scarcity of vitamin A concentrates. Chief source is cod liver oil, and trade with Norway, our major source of supply, was cut off early in the present war. Butter is another important source of vitamin A; Denmark exported practically all her dairy products during the last World war and suffered epidemics of eye troubles and blindness as a result. Germany's "guns-before-butter" policy resulted in similar epidemics there during the years of preparation for the present conflict.

However, two carrots will deliver a whole day's supply of vitamin A for one person. So will half a cup of cooked kale, turnip tops, spinach or other greens. A small serving of liver (beef, pork, lamb, or poultry liver) deposits enough A to last two or three days Apricots and peaches, canned or fresh, are rich sources So are cantaloupes

Potato and Citrus Crops.

The German potato crop is the backbone of that nation's food supply, the Nazis have also caused the planting of great stretches of wild rose bushes along their railroad rights-of-way, not for spiritual beauty, but because the wild rose hips the seed part of the plant—have been found to be a rich source of C concentrate

In this country we have enormous citrus crops and vast production of other fruits and vegetables The daily grapefruit, orange or tomato juice is the most enjoyable source

WARY GRAVY-TRAINER

You can write it down that Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard is going to be very chary about using that gravy-train veto power the farm lobby voted him in the price control bill.

He knows that the White House is still sputtering over his unauthorized endorsement of this lobby scheme at a crucial moment in the senate fight over the legislation. Also, that if he attempts to exercise the power he is liable to be slapped down even harder than when he fronted for the lobby.

Actually, under cover, Wickard has promised in effect to be a good boy

It didn't leak out at the time, but during the secret deliberations of the joint senate-house conference committee on the bill, he wrote the committee a letter repudiating his previous endorsement and saying he didn't want the veto power over farm prices.

Wickard wrote this letter under White House pressure. He knew he was in bad and he tried to square himself.

But for the administration, the backdown was too late. The damage had been done, for the amendment was in the bill and the lobby's pals on the joint committee were in a powerful position to stand pat.

In this final bitter fight, two Alabama Democrats and a Michigan Republican were responsible for the retention of the gravy-train provision. They were Sen. John H. Bankhead and Rep. Henry B. Steagall of Alabama, and Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott of Michigan.

As the amendment originated in the senate, under the rules, it was necessary for the house conferees to propose deletion. Steagall, chairman of the house group, publicly makes a great show of being a red hot Administrationite. But behind closed doors of the committee room he adamantly refused to heed Roosevelt's pleas for elimination of the lobby amendment.

Backed by Wolcott, who fought the vital war bill from the start, and with Bankhead running interference in the senate group, Steagall forced the retention of the provision.

Note: The administration's fight was made by Sen. Prentiss Brown, Michigan Democrat, and Sen. John Danaher, Connecticut Republican.

Another Row.

Wickard's fronting for the farm lobby in the price control bill isn't the only row he's had on this score with inner administration leaders.

The papers are full of stories about a big crop expansion program this year to meet the food needs of U. S. war allies. Frequent press releases issue from the busy publicity staff of the agriculture department about grandiose plans.

The real inside is that Wickard didn't get busy on these plans until he was practically ordered to do so by Vice President Henry Wallace as head of the Economic Warfare board.

Wallace sent Wickard two sharp letters demanding prompt action to expand crop production and only then did Wickard bestir himself.

Certain farm elements are against crop expansion, on the ground that scarcity makes for better prices. Working through politically minded Triple A officials, who have a lot of influence with Wickard, the anti-expanders kept him on the fence until Wallace jarred him off.

Note: Secretly, the AAA politicos also had a lot to do with Wickard's endorsement of the gravy-train amendment in the price bill. The AAAers are jealous of Price Administrator Leon Henderson's authority, want to elbow their way into the war set-up as big shots.

F.D.R. AXES LEWIS

The inside reason why John L. Lewis was not named a member of the three-man C I.O. peace committee was because President Roosevelt personally blocked it.

When he and C.I O. President Phil Murray discussed the counter plan that scuttled Lewis' blitz scheme, Roosevelt advised that the new A.F.L. and C.I.O. peace committees be limited to three members each. That would avoid turning the joint committee into a "mass meeting," he explained, and also make it easier to keep hostile Lewis out of the picture.

"If you have too large a committee, Phil," the President added with a smile, "you may appoint Lewis."

"I guess you're right, Mr. President," laughed Murray.

Note: Lewis intimates say he would not have accepted appointment to the committee if it had been offered him.

GENERAL MARSHALL

You weren't seeing things if you saw the news picture of Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, attired in the uniform of an air corps officer.

It was him all right and he had on an air corps uniform.

Marshall is not a flier. He is an infantryman. But outside of the corps, he is the flyingest officer in the army. Whenever possible Marshall always travels by air and is an authority on planes and aerial tactics.

AUTO RATIONING

Q.—Why do you want a new car?

A.—It's the only way I can get five new tires.

Q.—Are you aware of the restrictions?

A.—No, but I knew something was all wrong. I called up several auto salesrooms yesterday and in no case did a salesman show up at my home inside of five minutes.

Q.—You already have a car?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What's wrong with it?

A.—Nothing.

Q.—Then why do you wish a new model?

A.—My wife thinks our next-door neighbor's car looks better.

Q.—The kind of car your neighbors have is of no importance.

A.—That's what YOU think!

Q.—Only certain classes of people are eligible for new cars. Are you a doctor?

A.—No, but my feet are just as tender.

Q.—Are you a farm veterinarian?

A.—Is this a car rationing bureau or an Information Please program?

Q.—Are you engaged in fire fighting?

A.—No; that's just an impression some people get from the way I drive.

Q.—Are you engaged in crime prevention?

A.—No, but if you'll let me have a new auto I'll give any cop a lift from now on.

Q.—Are you engaged in law enforcement?

A.—Yes. I'm a lawyer.

Q.—I said "enforcement," not "evasion."

A.—I didn't come here to be insulted.

Q.—That's all right; we don't mind doing it. Listen, do you regard a new car as a necessity?

A.—Positively.

Q.—Give three reasons.

A.—Well, first of all, I live four blocks from my office, and without a car I would have to negotiate the entire distance on foot. Second, we use the car to go to church.

Q.—How far is the church?

A.—It's almost an eighth of a mile!

Q.—What's your third reason for regarding a car as indispensable?

A.—My third reason is the most important of all.

Q.—What is it?

A.—If I didn't have an automobile where would I store all those outdated road maps and useless tools?

Moe Berg, Boston Red Sox ball player, has retired from the diamond to become a government good will ambassador to Pan America. This is most encouraging. We have long had a distinct impression that our team in that area was weak both in the field and at the bat.

Mr. Berg speaks nine languages. But the umpires were always able to defeat him in one.

olding Dutch East Indies Vital to United Nations

im Crescent of Islands Blocks Jap Aggression By Forming a Barrier Between Continents Of Asia and Australia.

By BAUKHAGE
National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

y the time these words are print- Singapore may have fallen. Jap- nese bombers may be raiding ustralia and Japanese ships may e in Australian waters. Even so, ccording to the sober prediction of hose in diplomatic and official cir- les who are able to look at the war hap without wishful thinking, the ide may still be turned against the apanese if one condition remains he same. That condition is that the Jnited Nations continue to hold key erritory in that slim crescent of is- ands, the Netherlands Indies which orm a barrier between the conti- nents of Asia and Australia.

There are two reasons why these experts believe this Malaysian bar- rier may be held in spite of Jap- anese gains north and south of it. First, as one military man put it, "by rule of thumb Japan has already stretched her supply lines so far from her home bases that they may be expected to snap in vital spots." Second, because of successful delay- ing actions now going on, time is fighting on the side of the United Nations, time for sufficient re- enforcements to arrive, especially from the United States, which will snatch air superiority away from the Japanese and thus affect the tide of battle.

Japan has so far extended her- self, experts agree, that a powerful blow might topple her over back- wards. General MacArthur has held a Japanese army of 200,000 men in the Philippines. Huge land, air and sea forces have been drawn into the siege of Singapore. Japanese troops are fighting in Burma, 3,000 miles from the Manchukuoan border. They are spread fan-wise from Sumatra in the west 4,000 miles along the equator to the Solomon islands be- yond New Guinea.

United Nations' Barrier

It is the barrier the United Na- tions have established from Sumatra to the Solomon islands, with Java as the key point, upon which Japan may break her curved scimitar of offense.

Japan has already penetrated scattered islands in some places— in Borneo, New Guinea, in the Cele- bes and in the Australian mandated islands in the Bismarck archipelago. But there are many dents in her sword already—more than 31 ships lost in the first few days of the bat- tle in the Macassar straits, which lie between Borneo and the Celebes. Many more such losses will be ir- reparable.

Successful, although scattered at- tacks by American and Dutch planes and submarines and surface ships are taking their toll. And even though Japanese units may secure some island bases near enough to bomb the Australian coast, and some ships are able to slip through to raid coastal towns, the sword hand will be badly strained. The tough, well-fortified, well-supplied island of Java can deaden her blows. And if enough other bases for allied bombers and subs remain from which the far-flung Nipponese invad- ers can be harassed, her course westward and southward can be checked.

For the United Nations fighting at the Malaysian barrier it is simply a problem of hanging on. For the United States it is a problem of pro- ducing and delivering the goods.

Against us is first our late start in war production; second, the great distance to the front—about six weeks from loading to unloading; and third, lack of ships.

Into High Gear

We cannot make up lost time but it is agreed that Donald (Battling) Nelson and his war production board will keep us in high gear from now on.

As for the ships, by June we will be producing them at the rate of two a day—cargo ships. As for the precious cargoes, fighting planes— which have to be shipped—they are being turned out in rapidly increas- ing numbers. The figures are secret. I have it on good authority that it would take only 2,000 more planes to give us superiority in the whole Pa- cific. But far less than that are needed to establish superiority in the present fighting area since Japan must keep a large air force at home for defense of her own cities.

As for the tanks and men, these needs are not so pressing, but tanks will soon be rolling to the tune of a thousand a month, and Garand rifles for next year's army of seven million men are being turned out a thousand a day at the Springfield arsenal alone.

Meanwhile, the men on the fight- ing front say this to America and England:

"Hurry. Cut red tape. Take risks. Don't wait until you have had what you think is enough. Send what you have, risk it. We'll risk our lives to use it."

If we are willing and able to an- swer this message, Japan may be toppled over on her heels. With Singa- pore in Japanese hands some Japa- nese elements would be able to filter through the island barricade toward Australia.

The fall of MacArthur will release thousands of Japanese soldiers, the fall of Singapore, thousands more. If the key defense of Java goes, the Japs can then flood south to Austra- lia and perhaps isolate that conti- nent of hardy fighters. The invad- ers can also swarm westward through the Straits of Malacca, take Rangoon, gateway of the Burma road. They can move submarines into the Persian gulf and the Red sea and threaten the life line to Brit- ain's middle east armies and Rus- sia.

Once China is cut off, Japan will offer her a very favorable peace. Chiang Kai-shek would not accept, but his followers might accept. That would mean thousands more of Japan's effectives could be released, and if Russia's supplies are cut off Hitler could take Moscow while the Japanese troops move on Siberia.

And so we can understand why the United Nations, fighting to hold their island defenses in the southern Pa- cific, are praying that in the next few weeks that we will risk what we have to bastion them. Even though it be little it need not be too late.

The Hermit Of Sharktooth Shoals

The Hermit of Sharktooth Shoals came to town the other day with the surprising news that instead of being an enemy of man, the man- eating shark is now to be regarded as one of man's best friends, and an especial friend of the farmer's.

The Hermit is a former newspa- per associate of mine who has re- nounced the noise and tumult of cities and now helps conduct a shark fishing establishment at Fort Pierce off the east coast of Florida. Along with most people, I had thought that the commercial use, if any, for sharks was limited to the hides, for belts and shoes. But now I learn from the hermit that shark liver oil is teeming with vitamins and is in great demand by pharmaceutical houses for those yellow pep pills that Americans are consuming in great numbers these days.

But that, it seems, in no way lim- its the usefulness of the lowly shark. After the hide has been stripped off and the liver extracted, the carcass can be ground up and made into a high potency fertilizer, rich in urea and nitrates. And that's where the shark's value to the farmer comes in.

Last year the Hermit and his sharking colleagues tossed over- board two million pounds of perfect- ly good carcasses, simply because they didn't have the machinery nec- essary to convert the defunct fish into fertilizer. This year, what with the announced shortage of nitrates and fertilizer, the Hermit feels that it is high time the government took an interest in the matter, and he is now in Washington for that purpose.

The more I hear about the shark profession the more colorful it sounds. The Hermit, for instance, tells me that the sharkery's presi- dent and founder is a prominent sci- entist, Dr. Alexander van Beyer, who has pioneered in the develop- ment of vitamin products from shark livers. The doctor has Chi- nese connections and is a member of the Hip Sing tong which is an aid in the marketing of another by- product, shark fins. The Chinese regard shark fins as a great deli- cacy.

More than this, I understand that shark meat—by any other name— is an excellent food. Instead of let- ting the sharks eat us we may turn the tables and eat the sharks! Who knows?

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

¶ Few people reading about the fighting in the Straits of Macassar between the Celebes and Borneo may remember the anti-macassars com- mon in our grandmother's day— doilies pinned on chair backs. I re- call learning the reason for that strange name many years ago. It seems that a certain very popular hair oil which the beaux of the good old days used came from Macassar.

¶ There are so many army officers in Washington that even generals get scant attention. Recently when a friendly American took the trouble to speak to a group of British whose uniforms differ little from ours they were highly pleased. They turned out to be a part of Prime Minister Churchill's entourage and felt dis- appointed that no one had noticed them.

FEEDING CHANGE NOW POSSIBLE

Increasing Demand for More Milk Is Cause.

By C. F. MONROE
(Ohio State Agricultural Dairy Experiment Station.)

At present there is a demand for an increased quantity of milk, and current prices justify attempts to meet this demand. In fact, dairy- men can afford to modify their feed- ing program to meet the emergency. The exact method for individual cases will, of course, be subject to the conditions prevailing in the par- ticular dairy.

Many cows do lack the ability to produce, but there are also many cows that would do much better if given the chance. Only by permit- ting the cows to have a fair trial can their producing ability be deter- mined.

An attempt should be made to have the cows freshen in good con- dition. In this sense, the lactation period really begins with the dry cow six or eight weeks previous to freshening. After the cow freshens the feeding should be increased gradually. The cow in heavy milk flow requires a concentrate mixture containing some high-protein sup- plements to insure a sufficient pro- tein intake. Hay should be fed lib- erally and the cow allowed to pick it over rather than be restricted to all she will clean up. If corn silage is available, it should be limited in amount to permit the heavy produc- ing cow to eat more hay. Such a procedure is recommended where the hay is of good quality and hence palatable to the cow; otherwise lim- iting the corn silage has no justifica- tion.

A large improvement in milk pro- duction cannot be expected to come from just one change, of course. The entire feeding and management program in summer and winter must be considered. Much of the low production can be traced to un- derfeeding on July and August pas- ture, to undue exposure and short pasture in the late fall, to the use of poor quality roughage and poor management in the winter. For best results there can be no weak places in the program, because the weak- nesses generally speed the decline in production to such an extent that many of the good points are made less effective.

Farm Terracing Aid

Under the new setup, farmers can terrace their land now and pay for it later, the AAA official said.

Machinery of the terracing pro- gram is simply operated, Vance said in explaining that county AAA committees set a reasonable price for terracing easier farms of the county through offers made by co-operating contractors. Once the fair price for a county is de- termined, farmers get bids for their farms from the contractors, take the offer they like best and get their terracing done.

It goes without saying that prices of terracing will vary by farms. Establishing a reasonable price for a county will serve as a yardstick for measuring costs of easier and more difficult jobs.

When terracing has been com- pleted and checked by county AAA officers for specified re- quirements under the farm pro- gram, contractors are paid by the AAA and charges later de- ducted from farmers' conserva- tion payments.

Needs of Soil

More food can be produced for immediate war-time needs and ag- riculture can be placed on a firmer footing for the future if farmers will follow a few basic soil building prin- ciples, according to an agricultural bulletin.

"One of the first essentials," says the bulletin, "is for the farmer to find out what are the nutritional require- ments of his soil. Since soils and crops vary in different geographical sections, the farmer's best proce- dure is to enlist the co-operation of agronomists of his state agricultur- al experiment station or of his coun- ty agent.

"By analyzing a sample of the farmer's soil and determining its needs for nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, these experts can provide valuable information to guide the farmer in selecting the correct analysis of fertilizer. They will like- wise suggest the amount to use."

More Eggs, Dairy Products

Uncle Sam is asking for increased production of eggs, dairy products, and pork products. Next year, for example, American hens are called on to lay 4,300,000,000 more eggs. Although poultry flocks are in- creased, production per layer will have to rise to new heights. Hen house lights step up production as much as four or five eggs a month during the winter.

Even the poultry are asked to pitch in and do their necessary bit.

JESUS APPOINTS AND TEACHES THE TWELVE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 6.12-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5:16.

God is sovereign and has all pow- er. He might, therefore, perform His works without the help of man, and on many an occasion He does just that.

That fact makes it all the more glorious that He ordinarily works through men, giving to them the privilege of companionship with Him in service. Sinful and weak though they may have been, they become strong and holy in Him, able to do valiant service in His name.

I. Appointed to Serve Christ (vv. 12-19).

It is the constant teaching of Scripture that those called to serve God are not self-appointed. They are:

1. Chosen by Him (vv. 12, 13). He chooses whom He will, gives them the gifts and the grace for ministry (and both are important!), and pro- vides them a place of service. It is vital to the servant of Christ that he know that he has been chosen and called of the Lord. Only with that assurance can he meet the problems and bear the burdens of the work.

Observe that it was after a night of prayer that Jesus appointed the twelve. How many churches give that much prayer to the choosing of its leaders? Do we not need it far more than did our Lord?

2. Called from Many Walks of Life (vv. 14-16). The apostles were men of widely differing gifts, tem- peraments, and personal character- istics. Some had unusual ability, others apparently were of ordinary qualifications. They were of many occupations, fishermen, a tax gath- erer, etc.; but not one was by pro- fession a preacher or priest.

Were men to choose for such of- fices they would look within the nar- row limits of a few learned profes- sions, with certain nationalities pre- ferred, and with position in life an important factor. God cuts across every man-made limitation and calls His workers as He sees fit.

3. Companions in Service (vv. 17-19). At once the twelve received their introduction to service to the great multitude diseased, demon possessed, in spiritual need. It was Jesus who healed them (and notice that "he healed them all," v. 19), but verse 17 tells us that the newly appointed apostles came and stood with Him. They had fellowship with the healing and serving Christ, just as we may have it in service for Him today.

II. Prepared to Live for Christ (vv. 20-26).

Service for Christ is as much (per- haps we should say, more) by life as by ministry. The twelve needed instruction that their spiritual per- spective might be right. He tells them:

1. How to Meet Difficulties (vv. 20-23). Poverty, hunger, weeping, being hated for Christ's sake, these were the things that Jesus knew His servants might expect, so He prepared them. They were told that these things need not disturb them, for there is a kingdom coming; there will be a time when every hunger will be satisfied, when weep- ing shall turn to laughter.

Hatred for Christ's sake is de- clared to be the occasion for an outburst of joy because of the re- ward which awaits in heaven. Scripture speaks much of rewards, and we do well to encourage our- selves and other Christians by the blessed prospect.

Meeting difficulties is a matter of having mental and spiritual eyes rightly focused. If we do, we can see right through them and see that on the other side there is blessing.

But there are temptations in an- other direction, so He tells them:

2. How to Avoid Dangers (vv. 24-26). Jesus is here speaking of those who, lacking true spiritual vision, revel in the satisfaction of worldly things without a thought of God. The passage, however, may well be ap- plied to the worker for Christ. Often he will be tempted to covet the wealth, the prosperity, the pleas- ures, and popularity of those round about him.

The question which comes to him is, Why should I and my family not share these pleasant things? There- in lies a temptation to become worldly-minded, centered in the tem- poralities of life. Let him learn that money in itself cannot bring last- ing joy; that the fullness of this world is soon exchanged for an eter- nal emptiness; that the shallow laughter of this world's fun rapidly gives way to weeping.

The praise of men—popularity with those who know not Christ—is a fickle thing. One day they will praise a man to the skies, and the next day no evil word or disgrace- ful treatment is spared to destroy and dishearten him.

HERE'S ANOTHER WRINKLE TO SAVE TIRES

Nearly every week brings out a flock of new hints for conserving tires Here's one from Donald K Struth extension agricultural at Iowa State College

Keeping grease and oil away from rubber tires on cars tractors and farm implements will do much to prolong their life he says

Struthers believes that allowing oil and grease to collect on tires causes more damage to them than any other factor

He also suggests that tires can be preserved by keeping them inflated properly and kept out of the sun when not in use

This writer has also been advised to change all of the tires every four or five thousand miles The proper procedure is as follows

In this way each tire gets a five thousand mile rest, or in other words your tires travel only 20,000 miles while your car travels 25 0000 miles

Some experts advise changing at least every four thousand miles as it seems to keep the rubber livlier and the spare is put in service oftener

DON'TS TO OBSERVE

The following clipping is quite timely and worthy of further publication:

You are violating the security of the United States and endangering the lives of your fellow-Americans if you fail to observe the following precautions:

1 DON'T discuss new military techniques or new weapons.

2. DON'T discuss defense plant production capacities

3 DON'T discuss movements of drafts of Naval Personnel.

4 DON'T discuss Naval shore construction projects

5. DON'T discuss reports of ships, Navy property, or Navy material until it has been officially announced by the Navy

HE REFEREES IN RIPPED PANTS

The ladies are letting "the cat out of the bag" this week and tell us funny things that happened to their husbands Here's another

A couple of weeks ago Albert Kingery refereed a basket ball game at Dows Everything went along smoothly until the second half when the crowd began to titter and snicker Kingery did not sense anything humorous.

After he got back to Klemme he noticed a long rip in the seat of the pants he had worn while officiating the game, and pondered on how it got there.

The following Sunday the Kingerys were driving near Dows and picked up a hitch-hiker In the conversation that followed the boy remarked that he felt he should know Mr Kingery and asked if he were not the official at a recent basket ball game at Dows Kingery assured him that he was the referee

A happy thought struck Kingery He would inquire about the ripped pants so asked the youth if there was anything unusual about the referee that evening

The young man hung his head and replied, "Yes, Sir! Your pants were badly ripped and everybody knew it but you!"

Providing a new foundation for better understanding of the upper atmosphere, "the most perfect reproduction" of the Aurora Borealis, or Northern Lights, ever produced by a scientist was claimed recently by a University of California at Los Angeles physicist.

Announcing results of months of research, Dr. Joseph Kaplan, a professor of physics, revealed that, with the assistance of Dr. Sidney Rubens, he has successfully completed experiments in which he was able to reproduce both the nitrogen and oxygen lines of the upper atmosphere on a single photographic plate.

Previously, he reported, one or the other element has been reproduced singly, "but never together to give a complete picture of the spectrum of the Aurora Borealis."

"Now we have a starting point for really understanding what goes on in the upper atmosphere," Dr. Kaplan said, "and it is hoped that many more problems of the upper air can be investigated."

Practical applications of his experiments may be three-fold, the physicist declared.

1. Knowledge of the upper atmosphere may help solve radio transmission problems.

2. It may provide a more extensive knowledge of radiation from the sun—which some scientists think may become an important source of power to the world.

3. Study of our own atmosphere may help astronomers to understand the atmosphere of distant stars.

Human Body Is Managed Better Than Democracy

The human body runs itself better than democracies, it was cited recently in a medical discussion at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, founded in 1848.

The reactions of the human body were cited as an example for democracies in meeting changing conditions such as the current world crisis, because it "runs itself better than the world." In its ability to meet emergency, the human body, it was pointed out, has evolved a self-regulated internal economy which keeps it in a fit state for action, and keeps it prepared for extra effort when confronted by critical situations.

The scientists suggested that the organization of the physiologic body might well be studied in connection with disturbances of the body politic in the interest of meeting disturbing forces in democracies, such as economic upheavals, financial panics and the general run of disturbing forces.

The current crisis with its rush to produce tools, buildings and machines was compared with the preparedness of the human body to provide defense reactions for emergency.

Quick-Frozen Foods

Foods have been quick-frozen so successfully, are so convenient for quick meal preparation, retain vitamin value so much better than foods preserved by other methods that the industry has grown by leaps and bounds!

New containers have been developed to provide the household with adequate storage space for frozen foods, enabling homemakers to buy large quantities of these foods at lower cost. Farmers have built quick-freezing units in their homes and community locker plants have been established in rural sections. Universities as well as commercial houses are working to promote better frozen products and more economical storage facilities.

Remember that no vegetable should ever be boiled rapidly Cover the pan used in cooking vegetables, bring to boil, then reduce heat to keep product simmering.

Mona Lisa, Mrs. Siddons

Mona Lisa and Mrs. Siddons are the subjects of two of the world's most famous portraits Mona Lisa was the third wife of a Florentine, Francesco Del Giocondo. She was painted by Leonardo da Vinci during a residence at Florence from 1503 to 1506 Though he worked on the portrait for four years he never considered that he had finished it. This Mona Lisa, or "La Joconde," is the pride of the Louvre. It was stolen from the gallery August 22, 1911, but was subsequently recovered.

Mrs. Sarah Siddons was a celebrated English actress, born of a famous stage family. She lived from 1755 to 1831, and for 30 years, until her retirement in 1812, she reigned in London as the greatest actress of her time. Her most famous role was as Lady Macbeth. "Mrs. Siddons as the Tragic Muse" is one of Sir Joshua Reynolds' best known pictures.

Why Nazi Planes Explode

A correspondent, recently returning from England, was asked to explain the fairly frequent reports that "another German plane exploded in the air almost above us." He replied that the current theory is that the Nazi planes blow up when their oxygen bottles are struck by British missiles. It is not believed that the explosion of the planes in midair is caused by the premature ignition of bombs by gunfire, the bomb fuses being well protected.

Furniture Store News

Some weeks ago dealers at Thompson, Forest City, and Klemme purchased a CAR-LOAD of FURNITURE together. The car arrived this week at Klemme, and we unloaded a lot of nice new merchandise which included:

5 LIVING ROOM SUITES

5 BED ROOM SUITES

6 BREAKFAST SUITES

Rockers, Chairs and other items.

During the Fall and early Winter, Studio Couches were slow in coming through, and it was hard to keep enough on hand to really make a display. So we nosed around among the different factories, bought a few here and a few there, thinking they would string along and get here about as we needed them. Imagine our surprise when 18 Studio Couches arrived in one week, and we still have a few more on order.

Moving Time is again upon us. March 1st is a busy time for many families, and is busy for the Furniture Dealer, too.

We are well stocked on Window Shades, Linoleums, Rugs, Beds and Bedding of all kinds

We take in Used Furniture every day in trade for new, but it does not sell as well as it should. Our people have money and would rather buy the new. Never the less our prices are low and our Used Department is filled with bargains which thrifty people are buying.

Our Business Policy

Due to war conditions and manufacturing regulations and restrictions, quantity purchases and special discounts seem to be no longer procurable.

Therefore our terms are now cash, or a limit of 30 days credit and all accounts become due and payable the 10th of the following month. This means all accounts must be settled monthly hereafter.

We hope this will meet with your approval as we are forced to do business this way under these present conditions.

NEW SYSTEM

The recent announcement of colleges for speeded-up graduation may have been the origin of Monticello Supt A B Grimes' idea of concluding the school year earlier to permit farmers to obtain workers and to give the students longer time for summer jobs. The classes are held 70 minutes rather than 60 minutes and school is started at 8 30 a m and dismissed at 4 30 p m. The plan met with almost unanimous favor with parents.

RECORD BROKEN

• EDITORIAL COMMENT

Spring is just around the corner the snow will melt away, the birds will arrive from the south, fish will play in the brook and the many other signs of spring will be here

When spring comes it makes people suffer from "spring fever" Students become restless and the farmers want to get out into the field to plant their crops

We must remember that when it is thawing to wear our rubbers to school to keep our fine building looking new We should take them off down stairs in the entry-way and carry them to our locker to keep the mud and sand off of the floors.

Let us not take a day off for fishing when it warms up Don't forget your school You'll regret it all some day Let us reward our parents for the opportunity they give us to obtain our education We must remember we are in a free country and can enjoy privileges many children cannot

FEBRUARY

Although February is the shortest month of the year it contains the birthdays of two great Americans

George Washington whose birthday is the 22nd of this month was one of the first great men of America He was the leader of the Colonial army for eight years during the Revolutionary War after which he would have liked to retire to his home at Mount Vernon No one else commanded the trust and reverance that he did in 1789 He became President of the United States and probably would have remained so until his death had not he refused after eight years

I don't think there is a child who can not tell the story of Geo Washington and the cherry tree He has been remembered through the ages and will remain so for years to come

Another man whose birthday is February 12th also has lived in our minds through the years, namely Abraham Lincoln Unlike Washington, Lincoln came from a poor family and had very little education. Yet we see he rose and became a great leader during the Civil War. He was not a great orator but what he said was in earnest and every word stayed in the minds of the people

Two great men have lived and died but their lives live on in the history books of our nation and in the minds of the people.

This Valentine Cake Goes Straight to Your Heart!
(See Recipes Below)

Cupid's Day

Hearts are king for a day and with these magic little symbols you can do up some magic tricks that will make small entertaining a triumph. You can have a party if you like in the Valentine theme, or you can work in the decorations of hearts, Cupids, red-and-white or pink-and-white color schemes in just serving refreshments.

The idea is to be festive and just gay enough to put you and your family in a good mood. So plan to be on speaking terms with Valentine's day with the star selections I'm including in today's recipes.

If you're really planning a party, any number of ideas offer themselves as a gracious part of the entertainment. For instance, if you're far enough north to have ice, an ice carnival is fun. A masquerade in which the guests come dressed as some of Cupid's famous victims goes over well. A card party featuring games such as "Hearts" or "Old Maid" might answer your needs, or perhaps a dance with heart and cupid decorations in crepe paper.

St. Valentine's Day Cake.

3 cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or other shortening
1½ cups sugar
1 cup milk
½ teaspoons lemon extract
4 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add flour alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add lemon extract. Fold in egg whites quickly and thoroughly. Bake in heart-shaped pan, 9 by 9 by 3¼ inches in a moderate (350-degree) oven 65 minutes or until done. Spread rose-tinted Seven Minute frosting on top of cake. Sprinkle moist sweetened coconut on sides of cake while frosting is still soft. Decorate top with cardboard arrow and a heart of coconut.

Seven Minute Frosting.

2 egg whites, unbeaten
1½ cups sugar
5 tablespoons water
1½ teaspoons light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
Rose vegetable coloring

Combine egg whites, sugar, water and corn syrup in top of double boiler, beating with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary beater and cook seven minutes or until frosting stands in peaks. Remove from boiling water; add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. Tint with vegetable coloring.

Valentine's Day Salad.
(Serves 6)

Pimiento
1¼ teaspoons gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1½ cups cottage cheese
½ cup finely chopped celery
Salt and pepper
Dash of cayenne pepper
Lettuce and other greens

Place a border of thin strips of pimiento around the bottom of heart-shaped molds. Place small hearts cut from pimiento in center. Dissolve gelatin in cold water and finish dissolving over hot water. Add cottage cheese, mix well, then celery and seasonings. Fill molds, chill, and when firm unmold on lettuce.

Extra special describes some dishes perfectly, and such is my verdict for this chicken loaf:

Chicken Loaf With Mushroom Sauce.
(Serves 10 to 12)

1 4-pound chicken, stewed, meat diced
1½ cups chicken broth
1 cup milk
3 eggs
Salt and pepper
½ cup bread crumbs
Pimiento
1 cup rice

Cook rice in boiling salted water until done. Do not rinse. Beat egg yolks slightly, add to rice. Then add chicken, bread crumbs, chicken broth, milk, stiffly beaten egg whites and seasonings. Butter a loaf pan and dredge with extra bread crumbs. Lay strips of pimiento all along bottom of pan diagonally. Add chicken mixture. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 1½ hours in a pan of hot water. Allow to stand ½ hour in pan after taking from oven before attempting to unmold.

For mushroom soup may be used. Flavor with the juice of a half lemon and a dash of nutmeg. If you desire to make a mushroom sauce, make 2 cups of medium white sauce, add 1 cup sauteed, chopped, canned or fresh cooked mushrooms. Season this with lemon juice and nutmeg.

Meringues, crisp and chewy, are unexcelled for desserts when main courses are on the hearty side. They lend themselves to all types of decorations and in this instance, you can serve them filled with strawberry ice cream or one of the red ices.

Meringues.
(Makes 10 shells)

6 egg whites
¾ cup granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vinegar
½ teaspoon vanilla

Add salt and vinegar to egg whites, then beat until foamy. Add vanilla, then add sugar, two tablespoonfuls at a time, beating steadily all the while until whites are very stiff. Spoon onto ungreased sheet and hollow out centers. Bake in a slow oven (250-degree) on an ungreased cookie sheet for 1 hour. Cool.

Heart-Shaped Sandwiches.

Use whichever kind of bread you prefer, and cut into heart shapes with a large heart cutter. Butter and fill with desired filling.

Two choice fillings which carry out the Valentine theme are these: Ham put through the grinder or chopped fine and mixed with finely chopped celery and pickle, moistened with mayonnaise. Jellies or jams in red blended with cream cheese are also attractive.

Lynn Says:

Valentine ideas are practical for the celebration of anniversaries even after St. Valentine's day is past.

Recently I saw an anniversary celebration at which a cranberry mold was used. Cranberry jelly cut in heart shapes was placed around the big mold The number of small hearts corresponded to the number of years the couple had been married.

The heart-shaped cakes and molds of ice cream are much in use for anniversary celebrations and carry out the idea effectively. Heart-shaped candies may also be used to decorate whipped cream or desserts.

Free Switzerland

The Swiss Confederation was formed August 1, 1291, when Valley Uri, the Valley of Schwyz and the lower Valley of Unterwald combined in an "Everlasting League." By 1499 the Swiss league had practically won its independence from the Hapsburg empire, and in 1648 that status was formally recognized.

Swiss custom is to celebrate the independence as dating from the formation of the confederation and on August 1, last, Swiss all over the world observed the 650th anniversary of their freedom.

armers Plan Meetings n Four-Mile Sections

GHBORHOOD GROUPS TO ET IN COUNTY DURING E NEXT MONTH

Farmers throughout Hancock nty will be holding neighbor- d meetings during the next few ks to discuss food production blems, according to County A- t Paul Henderson. One of these tings has been scheduled for h 4-square-mile areas in the nty At these informal get-to- hers, farmers will discuss their m activities with reference to r requirements and adjustments essary to meet production goals which they have pledged them- ves.

Cooperators will pass on inform- on which they received at a ser- of meetings held in this county ring the week There will be a neral discussion of war needs d their effect on Iowa farms and e agricultural outlook will be re- rted. Farmers will assist each ner in filling out a livestock and d budget for their own farm.

These feed budgets are simplified blanks which will enable farmers to analyze their farming activities. He will have a good idea of how much feed he will need to carry on his livestock program, whether he will have a surplus of feed or if he will need to purchase more. He will know approximately how much protein supplement he will need for his farm animals. He may find some changes in his cropping plans will be necessary.

Business as usual will not pro- uce the required amounts of hogs, oultry. eggs, dairy products or ybeans. Our national goals can e attained only by a maximum xpenditure of effort in the most fficient manner. Knowing how ur feed supplies and our livestock umbers compare, and doing a etter job of getting the feed and ivestock together will reach a rge percentage of the demand for ore meat, poultry, eggs and dairy roducts.

The cooperator isn't going to tell any producer how to run his business. He is merely going to suggest ways you can help yourself.

Every farmer in the county hould give his local educational ooperator his support by attending his meetings in his school district. "Let's Keep Em Eating" Our boys are giving everything on the battle field We should give everything on the food production front

As an aid in outlining production problems a new streamlined bulletin has just been published by extension specialist at Iowa State College. This publication called "Keep 'Em Eating," will give concise information on hogs, dairy cattle, poultry and the growing of soybeans and flax Each cooperator will have these for the farmers in his school district

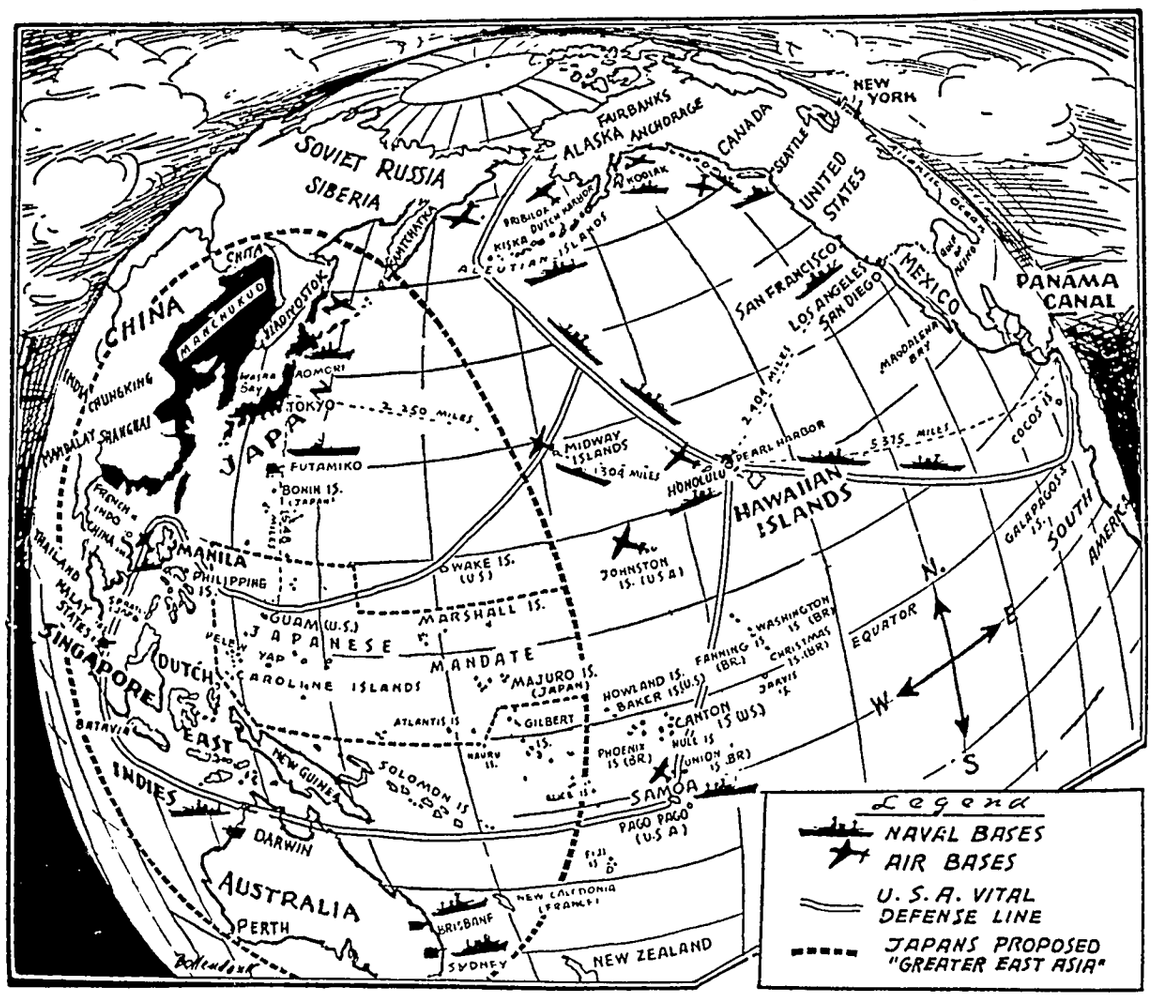
ICE HARVEST CREW CUTTING ICE ON CLEAR LAKE

The State Conservation Commission is charged with the responsibility of governing the removal of all ice, sand. gravel, stone or wood, and other natural material from all land or water under the jurisdiction of the Conservation Commission. Consequently, the annual ice harvest is a busy time, not only for the harvesters, but also for the State boat inspector under whose supervision the ice is removed. There are about thirty-five companies in the state that annually cut a total of approximaely 37,000 tons of ice. The Commission is paid a fee of three cents per ton, and the tonnage fee helps pay the supervision cost. The 1942 ice harvest, now completed, was about average in tonnage.

In Heart of Southwest Pacific Fight, Islands There Assume Strategic Role



Lands of Allies in Far-Flung War Zone.

As the Yanks, Aussies, Dutch and British colonial troops battle fiercely with the Japs in the Pacific area, any news coming out from those various zones is eagerly awaited, and read.

As a result, maps, atlases and almanacs having information on this Pacific war area, especially the southwest Pacific, are being well thumbed today.

The names and the locations of many of the places mentioned both in the newspapers and radio dispatches are unfamiliar, if not vague, to millions of Americans Many of the "hot spots" in the southwest Pacific are almost hidden on the maps They were formerly peaceful, slow moving little sections of the world where the weather was always warm and not inducive to hard work

Even radio commentators, and ace newsmen in the United States have been keeping their maps and reference books on the fighting area in the Pacific handy For formerly such names as the Sulu Archipelago the Shan States Sarawak Banda and Celebes seas Marshall and Caroline islands were names, and seemingly nothing else, to them, too

Almost everyone knows 'something" about one or two of the more well known important war centers down there in the fighting zone Such ones being Singapore, Manila, Darwin and Batavia But to get a comprehensive understanding — or as humanly possible workable "idea"—of the location of the Allies while thrusting and counter-thrusting with their enemy, those interested in the southwest Pacific news reports are attempting to know more about the important centers of war activity and their locations to other centers

First in Importance.

To U S. war news readers, first in importance are the Philippines. These islands, not one or two big ones as some suppose, are over 7,000 in number. The Philippines were ceded to the United States after the war of 1898 with Spain (It was "Remember the Maine" then, as it is now, "Remember Pearl Harbor.")

The importance of the Philippines in the war of the western and southwestern Pacific is seen in that the east coast of China is but a mere flying distance of only 600 miles. But Japan proper is northeast of these islands, 1,600 miles. To the southwest is Borneo and Sarawak. Directly south of the Philippines is Celebes. And New Guinea is to the southeast. These places are outlined on the map.

You can see, then, why the Japanese will have almost full control of that sector if the strategic Philippines is theirs. Sugar, hemp, minerals are the important exports from these islands. Mindanao and Luzon, the two largest, supply the most.

South of the Philippines is the Celebes sea now full of prowling subs, ships of war with crews alert, and transports of both the Allies and the Japanese.

Here in the Celebes sea zone are also thousands of islands as in the Philippines. On the west edge of the sea is the largest island of the group. It contains Borneo, North Borneo, and Sarawak Notice on the map how the westernmost tip of Borneo is on a direct east-west line with Singapore. The same sea that touches the western islands of the Philippines, the Sulu sea, touches the northern shores of North Borneo

Important Historic Strait.

A short time ago you read about the blasting the Dutch and the Americans gave the Japanese fleet when it moved southweard through the Strait of Macassar This strait is the one which separates the eastern coast of Borneo from the Celebes island's west coast. It is through this comparative very narrow neck of water that is afforded the most direct route from the Philippines in the north to the Java sea Dutch possessions in the south. It is the connecting link between the Celebes and the Java seas

Years ago the shrewd Dutch Netherlanders controlled trade between the Orient and Europe for over a century and a half by dominating shipping through the Macassar strait When the British took Malaya, which is tipped at its southern end by Singapore, this domination by the Dutch was ended Today, both of these nations are fighting side by side to stop the domination of another empire.

The Celebes? That's an island which you see on the map, located between Borneo and New Guinea. An interesting fact about this Celebes island is that it is bounded by four different seas. On its north is the Celebes sea, on the south is the Flores, on the west is the Java sea, and on the east, the Molucca. Like its companion islands down there, the exports from here are petroleum, copra, various minerals, hemp and spices.

Now look at the map again Note the island that is east by southeast from Celebes. This elongated east-and-west island is New Guinea. Like Borneo, Celebes, Sumatra, Java, and the thousands of other smaller islands in this district, New Guinea belongs to the Dutch—the Free Dutch.

The western half of New Guinea belongs to the Dutch, but the eastern half belongs to the hard pressed British Colonial empire. Incidentally, this group of the Dutch West Indies islands (also called the Netherlands Indies) is the largest in the world. Someone has said that there is no doubt that natives living on the many inaccessible islands still "Don't know there's a war going on."

Practically the same exports come from this island that come from the others already mentioned.

Now to move to another island, another Dutch possession. See on the map where it notes, "Dutch East Indies," in heavy black printing? Directly above the word "Indies" is the island of Java. Batavia is the capital.

Batavia, and a further eastern section of Java, will go down in the war history of the southwest Pacific as being sectors in the heart and heat of the battle Coffee has always been one of the important exports from this island. The expression, "Cup of java" is easily understandable, if not already fathomed, when Java's former export of excellent coffee bean is remembered Because of the war, Americans don't expect to have a cup of real "Java java" when the present warehouse supply is gone.

Across a short passage of water to the west of Java (another strait named Sunda) is the embattled island of the Dutch, called Sumatra. That's the island you see on the map just below the word "Singapore"

An Island on the Equator.

Sumatra itself is one of those "cozy" little islands 1,000 miles long, about 250 miles wide,. that sits astride the equator To get an idea of how far south this island would be below the United States, one should remember that the equator which runs through Sumatra, also pierces Peru, Ecuador, Colombia and Brazil in South America Of course, there is a difference in climate in the South American republics because of prevailing wind conditions, and ocean currents. In Sumatra the climate is hot and moist. Tropical diseases there are prevalent, and the eastern lowland is plagued by the often fatal malaria which strikes both the natives and Europeans.

An important fact about the Dutch West Indies concerns the world-wide hold it has on the quinine market For about 90 per cent of the world's quinine—obtained from the bark of the cinchona tree—comes from the islands around the equator When the United States saw trouble brewing in the Pacific, quinine was placed on the nation's list of strategic materials.

Back in the Seventeenth century a dose of the powdered bark of the tree (called quina-quina by the natives, from whence comes the word quinine) cured the countess of Chinchon, wife of the viceroy of Peru, of the malarial fever. Not so long after that, the tree from which the quinine bark was obtained was named the cinchona (chinchona) tree because an early scientist left out the first "h" in the word. It has been so spelled ever since.

Northeastward, across the Malacca strait, on the western side of Sumatra is Malaya. Reports of war activity in Malaya coming to America by newspaper and radio have placed this war-slashed land in a prominent spot, too.

Singapore is the base that whosoever controls it also controls all movements of ships in the Malacca strait between Malaya and Sumatra. Control also grants a very watchful eye on what goes on in the Dutch West Indies. Furthermore it gives a "view" of what is going on up in the land of India.

Whoever Has Singapore.

Singapore is at the southern tip, off the mainland of Malaya. North of Malaya is Thailand, now under the protection, so called, of Japan. The nation that fully controls both of these nations, also is well able to smash, or protect, India

Another angle which makes the control of these two nations important is that their control means either a protection or destruction of China's, Free China's, life line—the Burma road

Through this article you've gone over thousands of miles of water and land In fact, you've gone over the most farflung troubled section of the world at the present time (Despite Russia's vast battlefields it does not equal this in extent, but maybe so in ferocity) Troublesome area it is because the little Yellow Man of the Land of the Rising Sun decided that HE wants to run the show in his "neck of the woods What the Yellow Man wants to be nothing else but Japanese, with complete and absolute control, is marked on the map

Things I Never Knew 'Til Now

(About the Red Cross)

Back in 1923, Japan suffered the worst disaster in its history (next to the one they asked for on December 7) . . . An earthquake devastated an area of fifty square miles, taking a toll of more than 144,000 lives. (The city of Yokohama was totally destroyed by fire, as was most of Tokyo.) . . . President Coolidge promptly called on the American people to come to Japan's aid with five million dollars. The citizens of this country trampled over each other rushing to help the Japs, and the sum was subscribed in a mere ten days. But America didn't stop there—the dollars kept pouring in until the Red Cross had almost twelve million dollars for Japan, when that nation needed a friend . . . This, however, is the bitter irony: The Japs were so "appreciative" that they set aside three million dollars of the American Red Cross relief funds to build a "Memorial Fraternity Hospital" in the earthquake area—as a permanent testimonial of Japan's gratitude to the United States!

Red Cross nurses attached to the U. S. Army are officers with the rank of second lieutenant. (And privates are strictly prohibited by Army regulations from trying to date them or make passes at them.) . . . In the Navy, the nurses are ensigns . . . The Army requires its Red Cross nurses to carry helmets and gas masks just like the soldiers, and no wonder. In the last war, 296 American nurses lost their lives in the service of their country.

Contributors to the Red Cross have the best guarantee in the world that there won't be any hokus-pokus with the funds, because its books are audited annually by the War Department and reported to Congress . The Red Cross' operating expenses are the lowest of any organization in the country—less than four per cent of the money collected (You can check it in any public library in the Congressional Record.)

The women who are members of the Red Cross motor corps must furnish their own automobiles and gasoline, as well as foot their own parking bills During the current emergency, they're required to serve one shift of eight hours each week and be on call twenty-four hours a day . . The girls take a six-week training course, and one thing they're taught is how to repair a car themselves.

Airedale terriers play an important part in the work of the Red Cross in wartime. The dogs are sent out on the battlefields to locate wounded men. They carry containers of water, and after letting the soldier quench his thirst, they race back to the stretcher-bearers and lead them to the injured man . . In England the Red Cross dogs are furnished with gas masks.

The first war in which the American Red Cross took part was the Spanish-American fracas Clara Barton, founder of the American branch, had her hospital next to Major Leonard Wood's tent at Siboney. One day a fellow-officer of Major Wood's stamped into her hospital with a sack in his hand . "I have some sick men in my regiment," he bellowed, "and they want whatever delicacies you have here. I'll pay for them out of my own pocket Will you sell them to me?" . "Not for a million dollars," Clara replied . "I NEED that stuff!" protested the officer, shoving out his jaw I think a lot of my men. I'm proud of them" . "We're proud of them, too," retorted Clara. "But we can't sell hospital delicacies We give them" . . . Chuckling, the officer filled his sack and stamped out . . . Which is how Col Teddy Roosevelt became a Red Cross fan.

A red cross can be displayed only by the Red Cross Society, according to an act of Congress. (With the exception of Army, Navy and Marine Corps medical authorities, anyone else who uses a red cross is liable to a $500 fine and a year in jail.)

There are a million and a half Red Cross volunteers in the United States. Volunteers receive no pay and must buy their own uniforms (What's more, they must serve 100 hours before they're permitted to put on their uniforms) On the bulletin board of the Red Cross in L. A. is this reminder "Don't forget that 'Thumbs Up' can be done with one hand, while the other hand 'Digs' "

NEW TAX BATTLE

Biggest fight on Capitol Hill when it comes to writing new taxes is going to be over the sales tax. Wall Street forces already have laid pipe lines to certain congressmen for a sales tax instead of heavier corporation taxes, and it is going to be a knock-down-drag-out battle.

The man in the thick of this fight is now relatively obscure, but the public will hear a lot about him shortly. He is Randolph Paul, better known to Ford, Standard Oil, and big firms who hire the nation's best tax experts, than to the rest of the country. Paul has written a number of books on federal income taxes and gave up a $250,000 law practice to work for virtually nothing for the government.

Despite his background, however, big business will get no comfort from Randolph Paul when it comes to the sales tax. He is opposed to this levy primarily because it induces inflation.

"If you add four cents on the sales price of any commodity," Paul argues, "and a few more pennies on the price of a whole row of other commodities, labor has an excuse to ask for an increase in wages. Prices have gone up, and labor claims it is entitled to the increase. Then once the increase is granted, industry has an excuse for increasing prices, and the whole thing is started all over again. It can be the most vicious circle in our economic life."

Anti-Sales Tax.

Instead of a sales tax, Paul favors a series of very stiff taxes all along the line. Most drastic of his proposals is to tax lowest bracket incomes.

Paul points out that if you take 72 per cent from the big business executive making $50,000 a year he merely increases salaries to his associates, spends more money on institutional advertising, and decreases his net income. This in the end also leads to inflation. Paul is in favor of taxing the higher brackets very heavily, but warns that the $1,200,000,000 additional attainable from this source is peanuts compared with what the country has to raise to meet the war bill.

The real spending power of the nation is in the lower bracket incomes and Paul contends these will have to bear the big part of the war budget.

Other Paul proposals are:

(1) Heavy corporation taxes; (2) stiff excess profits taxes; (3) plugging all loopholes in the tax laws; (4) an excise tax on certain specific luxuries which would not increase the cost of living.

His recommendations are sure to be adopted in toto by Secretary Morgenthau and the White House. Whether congress will adopt them will be decided only after one of the toughest tax battles in history—especially over the sales tax.

HOW TO SEE HENDERSON

Leon Henderson is guarded by so many secretaries and functionaries that even members of congress have a hard time getting to him. Officials of Alaska, bothered by a serious price problem in the Territory, tried for days to get an audience with the price czar.

Finally, a little gray-haired lady found the answer.

Mrs. John McCormack, wife of Alaska's selective service head, attended a woman's club function in Washington, at which Henderson submitted to questioning.

Mrs. McCormack put the Alaskan price problem to Henderson on the floor of the club meeting, and he promptly invited her to call at his office next day for a detailed explanation.

"The people around the office," said Henderson, "will try to keep you out, but pay no attention to them. You just march straight into my office."

Mrs. McCormack followed instructions. She saw Henderson, and came away with a promise of action.

United Nations Are Forced Into Postponing Offensive

Axis Prepared for War Before Fighting Started While U. S. and Allies Must 'Prepare' As Battles Are Raging.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

It is an open secret that the high commands of the United Nations have agreed to postpone the hope of a general offensive for a year—possibly two.

Circumstances have forced the rewriting of the old military adage which says "The best defense is offense." The axis powers were prepared for war before they started fighting. The United Nations had to prepare after they started fighting. The axis powers choose their own time and place for battle. They have the initiative. For the United Nations, because they have no choice, the best offense is defense.

Besides preparation, the axis powers—Germany and Italy in Europe and Japan in Asia—have another advantage, geographical position. That is, their supply lines radiate out from their own or occupied territory, to the fronts on which they choose to fight.

Although the total naval power of the United Nations is greater than that of the axis, it is so widely spread that it cannot contact the enemy at any one point where the enemy is not superior. In places where the enemy lacks ships it more than makes up in air power.

When the United Nations have trained and equipped land forces and have constructed naval air forces superior in quantity to the axis they will have an even greater advantage than mere numbers of effective man power. Then they will be able to take the initiative and when the axis is placed on the defensive, the latter powers will have one of their advantages of today turned into a disadvantage, namely, their geographical positions. They will become prisoners to sea power. Sea power will cut them off from the resources necessary for the armies and navies to carry on war, and food and fuel for the civilian populations to carry on life.

Raw Materials Will Count

The United Nations can build superior land, air and naval forces because they control more raw materials.

So, military experts say, the task of the United Nations is to remain on the defensive, wasting down as much of the enemy's power as possible while building up their own. Holding as much ground as possible, but sacrificing territory which they do not need now in order to save manpower and supplies which they do need now. The territory can be won back by the United Nations. The manpower and supplies which the enemy loses cannot be replaced.

This is not a popular kind of warfare It is the kind that makes the people rise up and demand new leaders to bring them quick victories. It makes armies and navies restive. It is bad for morale. But it is the only kind of warfare that the United Nations can engage in now. More haste on the battlefield will make less speed toward final victory.

According to this plan, the defenders of the Philippines, of Singapore, of the Netherlands Indies, must fight as long as they can. But their comrades cannot risk too much to help them. At least they cannot risk offense which might temporarily distract the enemy.

So we must expect more enemy victories. While we make over our civilian way of life into a military way of life we must expect to hear the cries of the defeated and the dying. While we sacrifice the things which the axis civilians began sacrificing long ago, we must expect our soldiers and sailors to sacrifice their lives.

The longer the war lasts and the fewer men and supplies we risk until we have so many equipped men and supplies that we can afford to risk them, the sooner our victories will begin. The longer we make the war now, the shorter it will be in the end.

Business Man Gets A New Friend and Adviser

Back in the hectic summer of 1933 when the Blue Eagle was spreading its wings—the NRA, if you have forgotten—I had a strange experience.

I was standing in the corridor of the department of commerce where the NRA had its headquarters The place was seething with business men all trying to find out what they could and could not do under the Blue Eagle. There were offices of information and guides and deputies and building guards trying to direct each worried business man to the place where he could (try to) find out what he wanted to know.

On this particular day a little man came in. He looked confused. He was most humble. The guards eyed him suspiciously and treated his request with doubt if not scorn Finally he turned to me: "Sir," he said, "could you tell me—"

"What does your firm produce," I started to ask.

"Oh," he replied with a frightened look, "I'm just a consumer."

Today it is the producer and not the consumer who claims that he has been getting the run-around in Washington. Cognizant of this the President has turned to the man who established Washington's first national information bureau, as a result of needs of the NRA. His name is Lowell Mellett. He is one of those "anonymous advisors," one of the executive assistants to the President, a former newspaper man and friend of newspaper men. He runs the Office of Government Reports. His office sees all, knows all, that is happening in government. It publishes the United States Government Manual, one of the most comprehensive current guides to the government departments and agencies ever issued.

So now Lowell Mellett is going to head the clearing house of government information. When his Office of Government Reports is expanded, as it is to be under new orders from the President, this institution will be the guide, philosopher and friend of the wandering business man. No matter what your business with government is, you will come to Mr. Mellett's office and tell him your troubles. He will get hold of the man who knows the answer. That will save shoe-leather and patience, time and money.

Hereafter when you come to Washington you can tell your troubles to Mellett.

Curfew Law For Washington?

The department of justice has ordered a nine o'clock curfew law for alien enemies in the "vulnerable zone" which is a belt stretching from Oregon to Los Angeles and extending 150 miles inland. Strange lights flashing on the seacoast, weird stories of bombs that came near exploding under bridges and aqueducts, were the things that compelled this move.

But lights that go on and off late in the stilly night right here in Washington have been reported, too. But there are no alien enemies who are causing this temporary illumination in the witching hours, but hard-working girls employed by your Uncle Sam, according to Representative Wilson of Indiana.

Mr. Wilson says that all this must be stopped. He declares that these girls are promulgating the theory of "too little and too late"—too little sleep, too late hours. And so he has sponsored a plan for a curfew for government workers.

CATTLE RAISERS FACE PROBLEM

Danger Ahead if Beef Cattle Increase Continues.

By R. J. McKENNA

(Chairman, Montana USDA Defense Board.)

Dangers that face the livestock industry if cattle numbers continue to increase past a balance with normal feed supplies were pointed out by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R Wickard in a recent letter.

There is danger ahead for beef cattle producers if herds continue to increase, Wickard stated. This, together with the fact that abundant supplies of food are needed for national defense, indicates that increased marketings of beef cattle and calves in 1942 will benefit not only cattlemen but the National Defense program as well.

Secretary Wickard's statement pointed out to stockmen several things they could do to make their position more secure He advised increased marketing of cows and heifers which, because of the good demand and price, would mean more money to pay off indebtedness and get set for what may come in the future. This present demand also offers stockmen an opportunity to improve their breeding herds by culling out and selling undesirable animals at a good price.

Keep livestock numbers in balance with normal feed supplies, he urged Range conditions and feed supplies in the West have been unusually good this year. Drouth can cause a lot of loss if there is no feed reserve available.

In 1934, just before the disastrous drouth, there were 74,000,000 head of cattle in the United States and in another year, if the present rate of increase continues, there will be at least that many again.

Vitamins Important In Animal Breeding

The success with which farmers raise their pig, lamb, and calf crops to meet expanding national food needs may depend in a large part on the kind of rations they supply their breeding stock, says Earl H. Hostetler, professor of animal husbandry at North Carolina State college.

Rations well fortified with vitamins and minerals are required for normal reproduction, and vitamins A, E and C have received most attention in relation to reproduction.

Carotene, which is present in well-cured green hay, fresh green pasture, grass, well-made corn, grass and legume silage, and yellow varieties of carrots, squash, and sweet potatoes, is the principal source of vitamin A, highly essential in the reproduction of all farm animals.

However, Hostetler pointed out, carotene is rapidly destroyed in feeds, especially under conditions of poor storage, so precautions must be taken to provide adequate amounts particularly to pregnant animals.

As early as in 1922, the vitamin E factor was demonstrated to be necessary for reproduction of laboratory animals such as the rat, but the need for it in the diet of farm animals other than poultry is still questionable. Most good rations contain adequate amounts of this vitamin, and only in unusual cases is it likely that animals may be sterile because E is lacking.

Such feeds as wheat bran, shorts, linseed meal, hominy feed, white and yellow corn, cottonseed meal, and kafir are good sources of vitamin E, as are most of the common hay and pasture crops.

ELMER ON MORALE AND BALONEY

"I am for morale building," declared Elmer Twitchell, well-known philosopher, horseshoe pitcher and stamp collector, today. "Morale is important in any struggle. Three cheers for all we can get. But nothing is breaking my morale down just now like some of the baloney being spread by alleged morale builders."

* * *

Mr. Twitchell was more disturbed than usual. "The quicker we get the phony element out of this morale stuff the better," he resumed, pounding a table.

"At the moment it is the race track people who are pretty close to tops in overdoing this angle. I like racing. I hope the war won't stop it. But it gripes me to listen to a continuous stream of bunk about horse tracks being of primary importance to the war effort. You would think from some of this stuff that the war and the mutuel windows were linked in the all-out defense effort.

"I listened to a broadcast after a big race in Florida the other afternoon, and, immediately after giving the payoff prices, the broadcaster went into a spiel on the importance of the eight-race program to ultimate victory. It lacked only 'Hearts and Flowers' by a string orchestra.

"It was the crowning peak to a lot of similar flapdoodle that has been coming from the racing interests for months, and it is doing the morale-building business no good.

"Give me a day at the races when I have been working hard and am feeling blue I yield to no man in my love of the thoroughbred. I find a peculiar attraction in the mutuel window. I love the soft whispers about the good things coming up. I can even stand all those photo finishes. But don't give me that stuff about the ponies being of such vital importance that the American people will never be able to bear up through the war without them! There's a limit!"

It is now predicted that it may be necessary to ration men's socks. The center of minimum worry about this is in the Ozarks.

I paid my income tax today;
In acts like this I love to glory . . .
At least, my friend, that is my story!

A tax is quite a joy to me—
I paid it very cheerfully;
It made me anything but blue—
I love to come across, sez you!

When I'm feeling rather sad,
There's always something makes me glad:
I love to sing, tra la tra loo
The minute that my tax is due.

When I am feeling extra low
And down my spirits seem to go
I find relief, oh, many thanks,
In filling out some income blanks.

Should dark depression o'er me spread
Such feelings I know how to shed:
I ask an income tax to pay
And Morgenthau, he says "Okay."

Old Irv Berlin is happy, too
To pay each levy high and new,
And I'd be twice as gay, I know—
If I had all that fellow's dough.

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ONE day recently Marlene Dietrich was called back to Columbia studios for special scenes for "The Lady Is Willing," her new comedy with Fred MacMurray. One bit of action had her being besieged by autograph hunters in front of a theater. As one little girl thrust forward her book the star looked at her closely, saying, "Haven't I seen you before?" She had; "Before I became an actress," said the youngster, "I got your autograph in front of the studio." The "actress" is 11-year-old Carol Anne Lever.

Cecilia Parker, Mickey Rooney's sister in the Judge Hardy Family series, rejoins the family in "The Courtship of Andy Hardy." In private life Mrs. Dick Baldwin, Miss Parker retired temporarily some months ago to welcome the stork; in the two pictures that were subsequently made, she was referred to as "visiting in New York." The first day that she came back to work, she walked on the set with her baby girl in her arms; shooting couldn't start until every member of the cast had held the infant.

"Here Comes Mr. Jordan," which a lot of people thought was the best picture of 1941, is to have a sequel, known at the moment as "Hellbent for Mr. Jordan." Let's hope that it won't be as disappointing as sequels usually are.

"Abie's Irish Rose," heard coast-to-coast over the NBC network every Saturday, has been enacted in every country in the world. The late Will Rogers saw a full production of the play in China, with Chinese "Murphys" and "Levys."

Edward G. Robinson has sold his home studio, Warner Bros., the idea of starring him in "The Death of Jim Gower," which was presented on his "Big Town" radio program recently; it deals with an idealistic but drunken newspaper man.

A drop of water proved to be the most temperamental "actor" in the cast of Columbia's "The Adventures of Martin Eden," the Jack London classic. Representing a tear, the drop of water required seven "takes" to sizzle on a hot iron held by Claire Trevor, the most "takes" of any scene in the picture.

Ona Munson can't get rid of that jinx that's been pursuing her. Her nose was broken when a make-up mask was being fitted to her at Warner Bros.; then she showed up at the "Big Town" broadcast with bandages on four fingers and one leg, from injuries received while she was making a jungle picture at Universal.

Virginia Payne, star of radio's "Ma Perkins," declares that it's the programs with the family background that pay dividends. "Ma" has been on the air for more than 2,500 consecutive performances; "Amos 'n' Andy", "Bachelor's Children," "Pepper Young's Family"—they all go on forever, seemingly. They make stars, too; Don Ameche and Tyrone Power are just two who've graduated to film stardom from them.

When he finished work as "Mr. Cugat," Ray Milland left with Mrs. Milland for a vacation at Sun Valley. Veronica Lake and her husband also headed for Sun Valley, when she finished "This Gun for Hire"; two pairs of skis were fastened to the top of their car. But after a few days of winter sports they yearned for Florida; made the trip in such a rush that, when they reached Miami, the skis still rode the car top. Passers-by stared, thinking them slightly mad, or maybe just ignorant of the fact that they were headed the wrong way.

ODDS AND ENDS—Chester Morris spent two days in a laundry hamper for scenes in Columbia's "Confessions of Boston Blackie" . . . Joe E. Brown's costumes for "Shut My Big Mouth," in which he impersonates a woman, were designed by the creator of Rita Hayworth's screen wardrobes . . . Lew Ayres and Laraine Day, separated in the "Dr. Kildare" series, are to be reunited in a murder mystery film, "Fingers at the Window" . . . Thornton Edwards swears that he got a ticket for speeding when he was on his way to work in "Torpedo Boat," to make a scene in which, as a speed cop, he gives Richard Arlen a ticket for speeding!

HOW MANY BONDS SHOULD YOU BUY?

Many people are asking themselves "How many Defense Stamps and Bonds should I buy in order to do my share in winning the war?"

To most people that is a rather puzzling question and so far many people wonder what to do. But the treasury department, asking every income-earner to invest regularly in Defense Stamps and Defense Bond has proposed a general "yard-stick" for savings, as follows

Weekly Income	Suggested Savings
$5 to $10	25 cents
$10 to $15	50 cents
$20 to $30	$1 25
$30 to $40	$2.00
$40 to $50	$4 00
$50 to $60	$6 00
$70 to $80	$10 00
$80 to $100	$12 00
$100 to $150	$20 00
$150 to $200	$35 00

It was pointed out that earners without dependents could do better than this, while those having dependents might not be able to do quite as much

If we all adopt this schedule, we will not only be doing our part toward the nation's war effort, but we will also be building up a reserve to fall back on during the hard period of readjustment that is bound to follow the war

And it is well to remember you are loaning the government the money and doing yourself a good turn by saving part of what you earn You can't lose

The person who earns between $1,000 and $1,200 a year would be expected to purchase approximately $100 worth of bonds which would cost him $75 00

FEBRUARY RED LETTER MONTH AT THIS HOME

The month of February for the Arthur Wellemeyer family is indeed a red letter month in their household

Mr Wellemeyer observes Washington's birthday on February 22 by celebrating his own birthday

Mr and Mrs Wellemeyer both celebrate the 22nd as their wedding anniversary

Mrs Wellemeyer celebrates her birthday on the 27th.

Their daughter, Ruth, celebrated her birthday on the 7th Their son Andrew's birthday is the 9th

Taking out four Sundays, Lincoln's birthday, Washington's birthday, four birthdays in the Wellemeyer family and one wedding anniversary makes a total of eleven holidays, and with February only having 28 days, this leaves seventeen days to carry on business at the Wellemeyer store!

Or does it?

ASK LOCAL FARMERS TO BRING IN SCRAP IRON TO HELP WIN THE WAR

America's farms are being asked to come to the rescue in the nations critical need of scrap metal for war weapons, and the farmers in the Klemme territory will have a full opportunity to do their part.

To meet this challenge to the farmers of his community an important step has been taken by Ira Overholt, manager of the Northern Lumber Implement Co., who has announced that his firm will operate a scrap collection depot where farmers may bring all the scrap iron they can find on their farms. The metal brought to this depot will be sent as quickly as possible to foundries and factories turning out tanks, guns and other war supplies.

Mr. Overholt says that the scrap metal brought to this collection point will be sold through the established salvage channels, with remittance to each farmer for the full amount that his scrap brings. There will be no charge, no commission, or no profit in it for the Northern Lumber Implement Co Mr Overholt says he will give his services and that of his store as a "patriotic duty"

There is an enormous pile of scrap iron and steel on farms The estimates run from 1½ million to 3½ million tons, more than enough when combined with other metals to build twice as many battleships as there are in all the navies of the world today Unless this scrap starts to move at once, steel mills will reduce operations, the production of arms will slow down, and more lives, time, and money will be spent in fighting the war to a successful finish.

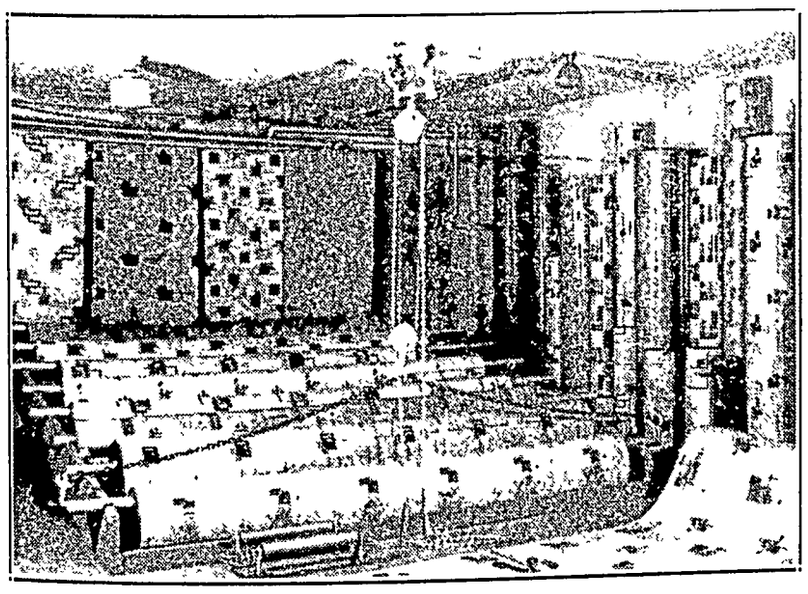
Linoleum Yard Goods



Quaker Rugs - Gold Seal Rugs

MARCH and APRIL are busy months for the Linoleum Merchant. One-third of the linoleum and hard rugs which we sell in a year go out during the two busy months of March and April.

The Linoleum Factories are making sand bags for the government by the train load, and as the demand gets heavy for linoleum they get behind in filling their orders to the dealers.

Never-the-less, we bought linoleum and rugs all winter and have a big stock piled up in our new linoleum department, which is the largest stock we have ever had.

So, when you are in need of Linoleum and Hard Rugs come to us. We have the merchandise on hand, and as yet it is selling at the same old price.

But, don't wait too long, as no man can tell what will happen next. Its war-time you know.

The Truth of It Is . . . This Cherry Torten Is Good!
(See Recipes Below)

Washington Day Ideas

It took Washington to make the cherry famous by telling the truth about cutting down that famous tree, but it takes only a sampling to make us appreciate the excellence of this luscious red-ripe berry.

If you're sensitive to color, and most of you are, I am sure, then you can make the most of the possibilities which the cherry offers for pepping up winter mealtime. With appetites riding high, but opportunities for decoration fairly low in these colder months, the Washington birthday and its synonym the cherry, come to the rescue. All of today's recipes have "Um-um" tacked onto them, so make your bids for fame by starting off with:

Cherry Torten.
(Serves 6 to 8)

Torten Layer:
1 cup sifted flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ cup butter
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten

Combine flour, salt and sugar. Cut in butter with knives or pastry blender. Add beaten egg yolk and mix thoroughly. Press this mixture into baking dish or pie tin. Cover with cherry topping and bake in a hot (425-degree) oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate (350 degree) for about 20 minutes. Serve hot or cold, with whipped or plain cream if desired.

Cherry Topping:
1 No. 2 can red, tart, pitted cherries
½ cup sugar
4 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon butter

Drain juice from cherries. Heat to boiling point. Combine sugar and cornstarch. Add enough cold water to make a smooth paste. Pour this gradually into the boiling cherry juice and cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from fire, add cherries and butter.

This upside down cake is as good as it looks because the cherries are interlaced with the delicious caramel mixture. You'll be extra clever for varying the dessert course with this newcomer to the upside down cake family for it's bound to carry off first honors:

Cherry Upside Down Cake.

2 eggs
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup boiling water
¾ cup cake flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon lemon or orange extract
1½ cups red, pitted cherries
¼ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar

Beat yolks until thick; add sugar gradually. Continue beating and add water. Mix well and add sifted dry ingredients. Beat in thoroughly and fold in flavoring and stiffly beaten egg whites. Melt butter in heavy skillet and add brown sugar. Over this spread cherries, then pour over cake batter. Bake 30 to 40 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven.

If you ever have cherries left over, you may thicken the juice with cornstarch mixed in water and heated to the boiling point. This is especially good on rice or cottage pudding or as a sauce over ice cream.

Cherries and peaches are an inspired combination, especially in pie. You'll be enthusiastic over this one:

Peach Cherry Pie.

1 recipe plain pastry
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup flour
1½ cups canned tart red cherries
1½ cups sliced peaches (canned)
¼ teaspoon almond extract
¼ cup juice from canned cherries
3 tablespoons butter

Drain fruit. Mix flour and sugar and sprinkle ⅓ of the mixture in a lined pastry tin. Add fruit and cherry juice to which has been added the almond extract. Sprinkle fruit with remaining flour-sugar mixture. Dot with butter. Make lattice top for pie and flute edges. Bake in a hot (425-degree) oven 10 minutes, then in a moderate (350-degree) oven 25 minutes.

Meat balls slim the budget and still remain a good main dish for dinners this season. They're nutritious and flavorful made with egg, milk and bread, and colorful with green peas riding in the rich brownish red gravy:

Meat Balls.
(Serves 6)

2 slices bread
¾ cup milk
1 beaten egg
¾ pound ground beef
¼ cup ground pork
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons chili sauce
1 small onion, grated
2 cups strained tomatoes
1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
1 cup peas, cooked

Soften bread in milk, add egg. Mix meats and add seasonings, salt, pepper, chili sauce and onion. Form into balls, roll in flour and brown in hot fat. Add tomato and worcestershire sauce and simmer for 35 minutes. Add peas and cook until they heat through.

Banana Muffins.
(Makes 10 muffins)

2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup sugar
½ cup chopped banana
1 egg
1 cup vitamin-enriched wheat flakes
⅔ cup milk
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder

Blend shortening and sugar, add chopped banana and egg and beat thoroughly. Stir in wheat flakes and milk. Sift dry ingredients and add to first mixture. Stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin tins until ⅔ full and bake in a moderately hot (400-degree) oven about 30 minutes.

Creamed Spinach.

Wash spinach leaves carefully under running water, being careful to remove all dirt. Boil without water 5 to 7 minutes or until tender. Drain and chop fine. Make a medium thick cream sauce, and blend into the chopped spinach until it becomes part of the leaves. Season to taste with salt, pepper and a little dash of nutmeg. As a garnish serve wedges or slices of hard-boiled egg around the spinach platter.

Lynn Says:

The cherry family is one with many branches. In addition to the red, tart pitted cherries which are abundant in the summer and which can easily be put up well in cans, there are two other types of cherries worthy of mention.

The first of these is a white type cherry commonly called Queen Anne. This lends itself well to salads and adds distinctive flavor especially when used in combination with other fruits such as pineapple, oranges, grapefruit and bananas. A little bit of the Queen Anne cheery goes a long way.

The other type, called Bing cherries, are deep, dark red, and quite sweet. For that reason they are at home in desserts. They can be made into sauces and served over ice creams and puddings.

THE PARABLES BY THE SEA

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4.26-32; Matthew 13 44-50.
GOLDEN TEXT—Never man spake like this man.—John 7:46.

Parables as a means of conveying truth reached perfection in the hands of the Master Teacher, Jesus. Taking short stories of well-known events or facts from daily life, He presented profound truth in the most simple and attractive form.

Except for the parable of the four kinds of seed which He interpreted (Matt. 13:18-23), He left it to His listeners to make their own application. This has led to some difference of opinion, but in general the parables are received as excellent and helpful portions of God's Word.

In the two passages of Scripture assigned for our lesson, we have five parables, each with a distinctive message, yet together pointing out that there is a time of growth leading to harvest and judgment, and that our gracious God has at great cost provided a way of redemption.

I. Normal Growth Is Blessed (Mark 4:26-29).

God is patient. He awaits the normal, healthy, steady growth of the seed. Man is so impatient he must have forced growth, artificial stimulation, and even artificial ripening of the fruit.

The same attitude enters into his care of his children. They must get ahead in school beyond their years. They must get out and make a living long years before they have learned to make a life. Why not let them mature in the orderly, God-given way?

The same is true in the work of the church. There must be immediate "tangible" results or he will not give his support. Anyone with judgment knows that spiritual life takes time to develop, and that spiritual results cannot be judged by physical or tangible standards.

Seedtime, growing time, normal ripening, then harvest — that is God's order and it is a good one.

II. Abnormal Growth Is Dangerous (Mark 4:30-32).

Normally the mustard tree is a small plant, and when it grew into a great tree something abnormal had taken place. Birds (which always denote something unclean in Scripture) came to lodge in its branches.

Just so, Christianity was never intended to be made up of a nominally Christian world empire in which ungodly men (the dark birds of the evil one, Matt. 13:19) should find comfortable lodgment. Unfortunately, that is just what happened to Christianity in the so-called conquest of the Roman empire at the time of Constantine. The results were disastrous The same principle is evident today in the control of much of the church by worldly men.

III. Redemption Is Costly (Matt. 13 44-46).

While it is true that our redemption is worth more than anything else in all the world and that the Christian would gladly set aside (or would he?) everything for Christ's sake, yet that does not fulfill the thought of this parable. After all, what has a sinner (whose own righteousness is described in Scripture as "filthy rags") to sell in order to obtain redemption? And is it for sale? (See Eph. 2:8.)

Obviously we here have the Saviour with His all-seeing eye and loving heart noting in fallen humanity the pearl of great price, His own Church. He then gives up all the glory He had with the Father, comes to the earth, and even becomes sin for us that He may bring us to God.

Salvation in Christ is no little thing, not something which was purchased with gold or silver, but with the precious blood of Christ. We ought to value it highly, and because we are bought with a price we ought always to glorify God (I Cor. 6:28).

IV. Judgment Is Certain (Matt. 13:47-50).

All kinds of fish were in the net, and until the cord was drawn and the net emptied they looked much alike and enjoyed much the same standing as "citizens" of the sea. But when they faced the fisherman there was a quick division, and a final judgment upon the bad ones.

It is true that in God's kingdom (as it is now manifested in "mystery" in the Church) there are many who have come in by false profession, through carelessness of pastors or church officials, etc They go through the motions, they look and act much like Christians (although even here they create questions in the minds of true followers of Christ). The day is coming, however, when they shall stand in judgment before the Christ whom they profess to love and follow. How terrible shall be their doom!

They need not wait in fear for that day. They may now, today, make right their relationship with God

Pots and pans do not have to be scoured if the gas flame is kept on only high enough to maintain the boiling point. After liquid is brought to a boil it cooks no faster with high heat.

BREDLOW MEN ARRESTED BY SHERIFF BROWER, SUNDAY

Claim To Be Members Of Religious Sect Opposed To War

Ellsworth Bredlow, 25 and his 22 year old brother, Merle, sons of Walter Bredlow, Liberty township, were held in the Britt jail Monday after refusing to report for induction into the United States army Saturday.

The Bredlow young men claimed they were members of the Jehovah Witnesses' religious sect, and as such they did not believe in contributing to warfare of any kind. FISHERMEN REMOVING LARGE CARP FROM GILL NET

Gill netting was one of several methods used by the State Conservation Commission in its rough fish removal program this past winter. During the winter the Commision employs some forty men in this work on Spirit Lake and the Okobojis. Fishermen, strictly supervised, pay the State a small per cent of the value of the catch taken to pay for supervision. All game species are returned immediately uninjured to the water.

Gill netting is one of the simplest of all methods of taking fish. The net is threaded under the ice and hangs in the water like a woven wire fence. The fish approaches the net and tries to force its way through. Nets have a bar-measure, or mesh, of three and a quarter inches and are large enough to permit the fish to get its head through, but no farther. When it backs up, the fine linen threads catch in the gill covers of the fish and hold it until the net is run. The nets are run once each day by being pulled up on the ice and the catch removed. During the winter of 1940-41, 172,-288 pounds of rough fish were removed from the Dickinson county lakes in this manner.

Price Control Affecting Millions

Preventing War-Time Inflation Is Reason

By CLIFF LANGE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CHICAGO, ILL.—Ever since the price control bill was signed by President Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public have been wondering how the family pocketbook will be effected.

They have been wondering about the possible increase in cost of foodstuffs. Will their rent go up? How much more will they have to pay for clothing for the family and themselves?

They've been doing a lot of thinking since that day in January when the price control bill became the law of the land. Never before have they run up against any such law which has such a far reaching effect, not only on themselves, but the United States and, gradually, the rest of the world.

But it is the "Missus"—Mrs John Q. Public—who has, as usual, been giving the matter the most consideration because she does most of the buying and family "worrying."

It is she who pays the most attention to prices when she goes to the stores and asks questions of the clerk. It is she who watches the ads and prices in the local newspapers. For the most part, Mrs. John Q Public constitutes the millions of housewives all over the United States who do the greater part of the purchasing for the household She knows as well as, or even better than some economists, that a definite income by the wage-earners of the family will buy a certain amount of food.

She knows only too well that if prices go up, incomes remaining the same, less can be purchased. When prices go down more can be purchased, or, possibly, a better grade or brand of product can be bought instead

Mrs. Public Is Realistic.

Mrs John Q Public isn't theoretical about costs, supply, demand—and all such similar, abstract terms. She, being a woman, is as realistic (and sometimes as tough, too!) as an army sergeant She knows that the family can't be fed, clothed, and provided for in general on theory.

But . .

When President Roosevelt signed the price control bill he was fully conscious of, and advised about it. The primary purpose of the bill was to prevent rising costs that lead to inflation. Inflation which would cause more hardship in Mr and Mrs John Q Public's home than any possible increase in price, or prices, of consumers' goods. Even at that, the President noted in a press conference, the fight to prevent inflation had not, as yet, been completely won

There are many provisions of this price control bill which are well worth remembering The first to remember is that the price administrator—Leon Henderson—has the authority to fix a maximum price on commodities, regardless of the number, that are needed for the successful carrying on, and completion, of the war; or for civilian use and consumption

Leon Henderson, administrator, Office of Price Administration (OPA), who has the responsibility of successfully carrying out the price control act, besides seeing that it is enforced. As the accompanying article points out, the price control bill is both a war time measure to prevent inflation, and then post war deflation.

What price is Leon Henderson, administrator of the Office of Price Administration, going to put as "tops" on commodities? Mrs J. Q. P asks. The answer to that is found in the bill itself It states that the prices between the first of October, and the 15th of October, 1941, are to serve as the basis for fixing of maximum prices Fishery and farm prices are the exceptions Before a maximum would be placed on commodities, prices could go to 110 per cent of what they were during the 15 days in October, 1941, before the "lid" would be put on by OPA boss, Henderson. If prices during the period mentioned were not "representative" prices, the nearest to representative two week period will be used.

If the "Missus" remembers what she paid for articles during the two weeks in October, '41, she will be able, generally speaking, to get an idea of what she will pay even if the prices are allowed to go to the 110 per cent level, which is 10 per cent above the full price charged. It should be remembered, though, that the ceilings placed on commodities will be mostly on raw, unfinished materials

Price Administrator Henderson, in a recent statement, said that the application of price ceilings all depended on just how all the Mrs. J. Q. Publics throughout the United States reacted to it. If they took the price control in an intelligent way (as he suspects they will) and didn't try to gobble up those commodities they thought were going to be scarce, there would be no need to put a top price on the article. Calm, cool and collected seems to be the attitude they should take.

The bill also has a provision in it that checks a too-great rise in rents. This provision applies only to areas designated by the OPA as being in "defense housing" sections of the country, where a "boom" could have taken place. If you are living in one of such designated sections, rents since April 1, 1941, will be the guide for OPA officials to put the top permissible price. Over 230 surveys have been conducted in such "defense" areas by officials under Henderson to get the rental prices in those areas so that there won't be any undue hardship on renters.

Despite this being war-time in the United States, there will be—as always—those who will try to circumvent and chisel on the price control plan. Mrs. Public might call them war profiteers To punish such who violate price ceilings the control bill carries some stiff provisions: imprisonment for two years and fines up to $5,000.

Purchasers Can Sue.

An individual who figures he or she has been charged more than what the price ceilings stipulated, can sue the person or persons from whom the purchases were made for either triple damages, or $50—depending on whatever might be larger.

A very important provision of the bill is that it exempts wages and salaries. No ceilings have been placed on them. It must be remembered though, that wages increase, to an extent, because the price of commodities rise. All who work for a salary, or a wage, want to be sure that what they earn will buy enough to live on according to a decent standard of living

Also exempted were insurance and professional fees, railroads and utilities, newspapers and periodicals, radio, motion pictures and theaters.

Even though nothing extraordinary will be done by price control officials in extending the price ceiling over other commodities besides the 80 or so now covered, the placing of ceilings will continue little by little, putting one here and there on various commodities whenever an inflationary trend is noted For example: Store owners selling typewriters or radios, or electric ironers, having very little chance of getting more for sale in their stores, will naturally boost the prices on those they have on hand. It is such cases that will bring about a price control "top price" to be charged on that commodity.

Eventually all businesses operating under a price ceiling will have to get a license to do business. OPA officials have not decided on what type of license machinery to put into operation, as permitted by the price control bill A seller of commodities, operating under such a license, can have his license revoked if he persists in defying the provisions of selling above permitted top prices. Of course, such a revoking of license comes through court procedure and only upon a second offense following a warning given upon a first offense.

As the list of commodities under the price control plan lengthens, your local newspapers, the radio, and periodicals will tell you what the recently added ones are.

The complexity of the world has been the cause of such a far reaching bill as that of the price control being passed. But it should always be remembered that a successful completion of the war we are now in requires there be no inflation. And after the successful American completion of the war, there must be a minimum of post-war deflation so as to win the peace that follows.

U. S. Family and Price Control

Courtesy, U S. Department of Agriculture

In May, 1939, the department of agriculture inaugurated the Federal Food Stamp plan to assist millions of families such as this one. Today, in '42, the federal government, through its price control bill, is again attempting to help this family and others by trying to prevent inflation during the war, and deflation when peace comes. Inflation, bringing about a skyrocketing of retail prices, invariably hits the working man (John Q. Public) and his family.

Mules and Horses Making Comeback

War-time auto restrictions plus present, and impending future rationings, are the cause of horses and mules making a comeback.

As gasoline becomes more restricted, and tires can't be replaced or retreaded; as the full force of industrial America gets behind its Uncle Sam's war machine, you'll see more and more horses and mules going through their daily chores.

Recent reports coming from both the South and the West show such a revival in breeding, and in the sale of available horse and mule stocks.

Decline Began in 1920.

It was in 1920 that the decline in the number of horses and mules began to take place. That year there were over 25 million. From 1920 to 1940, the latest data available, the decline was over 45 per cent to a figure of a little better than 13 million. The decline might have been greater, but for the work of the Horse and Mule Association of America which organized in 1920 to check the drop.

Traders, today, are beginning to benefit by the increased demand for the animals for prices are advancing. In 1941 owners of stables experienced their worst year as far as sales were concerned But since then both old and new customers have been coming around for a little first-class trading, swapping, or buying. So much so that many of the stable owners and auctioneers are planning on building new centers, or reopening old places.

Oldtimers, those who really know good horseflesh as far as being real workers, are getting interested once again.

But there is one difficulty which is handicapping horse breeders, and that is the lack of good breeding stock from Europe The possibility of a permanent stoppage of Belgian male horses because of the Nazi occupation of Belgium is certain.

One writer, discussing the situation in a veterinary journal brought out the fact of a lack of European stock very well It was noted, though, that all is not a dismal picture. For as many traders and breeders in the United States will tell—there are plenty of good stallions in this country

Henderson-Wickard Joint Price Control Statement

Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard and Leon Henderson, administrator of the Office of Price Administration, made public the following statement concerning the price control bill after it was signed by the President

"Families who hoarded in the past were simply misguided and unpatriotic, for such buying upsets markets and encourages inflationary price advances.

"The American people should realize that it will be the objective of their government to stabilize the cost of living. They, too, can do their part. There is no occasion for hoarding of food

Total supplies of most staple foods are at record or near record levels.

"It should be a point of pride with every good American NOT to hoard or to waste food

I cannot quote him directly because that is forbidden. He answered that the complacency charge was partly just—but that every day he people were becoming more realistic in their thinking. He said that they had begun to realize that this is a world-encircling war.

Machinery of Defense Must Be Built Up

And so we were told from the highest source that we had learned already from the military who do not mince words, who do not indulge in wishful thinking — that America must be content to accept reverses, must humbly accept the role of defense on all fronts until we have built the machinery of offense.

It so happened that on the very day on which I heard the President speak these words I visited a tiny room in a cheap apartment house made over into offices. A busy beehive, the lobby was crowded with men with brief cases. I was reminded of the hectic days of 1933 when the Blue Eagle was spreading its wings, when American business was getting its first taste of regulation at the hands of the NRA. Then the emergency had forced even the most individualistic to toss aside the demands of rugged individualism.

Today in the face of another emergency, business was once more facing strict regulation 'The men I saw in the lobby of this shabby building were exporters seeking licenses from the Board of Economic Warfare—for not a dollar's worth of goods can leave this country now if the BEW doesn't want it to.

But this is only one small function of the board. It has a hundred facets. And unlike our armies and our navy today it is waging offensive warfare.

It has launched a great offensive on the economic front.

To look over the board's activities in a single day you might see listed projects to build a railroad in a foreign country, to weigh to the last ounce some strategic material that a foreign country produces, to survey in accurate figures just how much of a certain product may be spared from America's own supply to turn over to another country in return for some valuable commodity or service that we need to further our war effort. Or, again, there might be a project to block the sources from which one of the enemy powers is replenishing its own supply.

Argentina— An Example

For example: The United States needs the co-operation of Argentina, a country upon which the Nazis have lavished every favor possible, upon which they have used to the limit the persuasive power and dire threats of Herr Goebbels. The purpose is to keep a close relationship between the man who pulls the strings in Buenos Aires and the men who direct the destinies of the Reich.

Before war made an omelet of the world's trade, Argentina bought from America 6 per cent of all the steel she imported. Much of the other 94 per cent came from the Axis. Now virtually all of the supply of this essential material is cut off except what the United States can spare from the terrific demands our shipyards and arsenals are making.

But without steel, Argentina's wheels would cease to run, public utilities would disintegrate, the country would be an easy prey to any subversive influence. And so, with a finely sharpened pencil, the experts in the BEW find some steel, recommend to the War Production board that it be spared for the Argentine.

Another example: We need rubber. There are plenty of rubber trees in South America. We can make some synthetic rubber in our laboratories, but we need natural rubber to mix with it. It takes more than money to get rubber out of those trees deep in the jungles of the Amazon.

And imagination has been used Imagination to realize that in order to get the labor to harvest the rubber, the half-starved, sickly Indians who provide this labor must be given better food, healthier surroundings, conditions which will make them and others want to work to earn the money The things which they can buy with the wages they earn must be made available.

And so, hundreds of mosquito chasers are already working to remove the malarial mosquito that makes life hazardous in the rubber jungles. Experts to help start dairy farms to provide vitamin-giving milk to build up the weakened bodies, are being dispatched to South America.

'Social' Conditions In Washington

The war has created many serious social conditions in Washington.

But one situation which few have noticed and which threatened for a time a minor revolution, I think I can predict, will shortly be greatly ameliorated. This is the tale (and it's a bushy one).

War required certain building operations on the White House grounds Among other things—the only one which I can discuss freely because of the censorship—was the construction of a little building which looked like a soft drink stand where the shivering detectives who help the extra police who guard the great iron gate to the presidential grounds, can warm themselves But there were other more expansive undertakings. This construction considerably hampered the activities of White House visitors. Also White House residents.

One of the oldest retainers on this ancient estate is a trusted friend of mine, head of a rather flighty clan, but himself a very responsible patriarch who has given me many an important story.

He is the Old Gray Squirrel who lives in the Elm.

He, with most of his clan was virtually dispossessed while the construction work I mentioned (or rather I am not allowed to mention) went on. Another old resident who lives or rather pursues his business just outside the White House fence and with whom the Old Gray Squirrel has a very close working arrangement, had to move too. He is Steve. Steve runs a peanut stand. You may see the connection.

Steve moved across Pennsylvania avenue to Lafayette park. The Old Gray Squirrel and his family followed.

Then trouble began. For the Old Gray Squirrel is a snob. He doesn't mix with common squirrels and Lafayette park is full of them. They don't understand White House protocol. They would push up to the head of the line and try to steal peanuts from the donor's hand right out of the Old Gray Squirrel's mouth. This made trouble.

For some days I thought murder would be committed. Mayhem was. In fact, one of the Lafayette crowds has lost his brush, a clean but undignified operation although too close for comfort or beauty.

But fortunately the workmen on the White House lawn have gone now. Soon Steve will take up his ancient post. Already the Old Gray Squirrel is scurrying back and forth across Pennsylvania avenue removing the nuts he had carefully interred in the park to a safer and more exclusive burial place. Revolution has been averted.

¶ In 1940 there were 950,000 women describing themselves as experienced workers who, according to the 1940 census, were seeking work. These women will be the nucleus which the labor division of the War Production board expects to call upon to fill the labor shortage expected when we are all tooled up for all-out war production.

CHOLERA REMEDY NOW PERFECTED

Disease Costs Hog Raisers Twenty Millions Annually.

By W. H. BOYNTON
(Professor of Veterinary Science, University of California.)

Hog cholera is admittedly one of the most destructive of all animal diseases. The yearly cost of this disease has been estimated at between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000 in the United States alone. Within the past few years the author has developed at the University of California college of agriculture a new tissue vaccine which is expected to cut this annual cholera "tax" very substantially.

This vaccine is known as BTV and is now available from commercial companies It has been used on more than 100,000 hogs on the Pacific coast and in the Middle West. BTV is composed of finely ground glandular tissues from hogs infected with cholera. These tissues are taken from the hogs at the height of the disease and then treated with eucalyptol. The result is a vaccine which cannot produce cholera in a hog but does produce an active immunity to the disease.

When BTV is used, vaccinated pigs can mingle with unvaccinated pigs without transmitting cholera to them. Furthermore, pigs harboring latent infections, such as pneumonia or enteritis, at the time of vaccination are not subject to the danger of flare-ups of these infections due to the lowering of body resistance. This danger of lowered resistance followed by death from some secondary infection has been one of the major drawbacks of the serum-virus method of vaccination for cholera.

The vaccine is not intended for pigs that already have cholera. It should be given only to swine that do not have the disease. Since a period of at least three weeks is required to build up a satisfactory immunity in the animals, pigs which have been exposed to cholera or are suspected of having it should be treated first with anti-cholera serum to make sure that the infection is checked. Later they can be given the tissue vaccine.

At present this vaccine is not recommended for garbage-fed pigs, although successful experimental results have been obtained by administering the vaccine before and after weaning.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By Florence C. Weed

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Research on Hemp

As soon as science can produce a hemp plant free from a narcotic drug, this crop will offer a good market for farmers. Unfortunately the plant, in its present form, produces the narcotic, marihuana. The misuse of this drug has caused the passage of the federal marihuana act which forbids the growing of hemp except under federal supervision.

Because of the restrictions, less than 1,000 tons annually are grown in this country although in former years the growing of hemp fiber was a flourishing industry. In 1859, Kentucky alone produced 75,000 tons.

The word "hemp" is sometimes applied to about three different fiber plants including manila hemp and sisal hemp. The common variety grows well in the United States, attaining a height of 3 to 20 feet and sometimes yielding 800 to 1,000 pounds of fiber per acre. The plant is cut by machine and allowed to dew-ret on the ground. Then it is collected in stacks and sold to the hemp mill. The mill dries the stalk and removes the fiber in a "hemp brake."

Cordage, which can be made from hemp fiber, is one of the urgent needs of the defense program. Hemp can also be used in making cigarette paper and this commercial outlet has already been opened. From the seed a useful oil can be extracted and when mixed with other seeds the hemp can be utilized as bird food.

Research is already under way to find a variety of hemp that will contain only a small amount of marihuana. This work appears promising since some plants have been found to produce only small quantities of the resin.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

HOODOOED NORMANDIE

There is not much consolation to be had in connection with the virtual sinking of the S. S. Normandie—except for one thing.

The French had gone to a lot of expense to build the giant vessel so that she could be converted to an airplane carrier in wartime. To this end, special funnels were arranged on the side of the deck, to give space for runways; especially large elevators were installed at each end of the ship; and the top deck consisted of the biggest "sports" deck in the world.

However, U. S. naval engineers decided that despite all the French preparations, the Normandie's upper decks were not strong enough to hold a flock of planes. The French had sacrificed reinforcements below, for the purpose of beauty in the passenger salons.

As a troop ship the Normandie was considered useful, but not nearly so useful proportionately as a medium-sized vessel, such as the Manhattan. Reason: big ships draw so much water that they could not efficiently carry troops to Dakar or West African ports. Small boats would be necessary to take soldiers and cargo ashore.

Also the Normandie was too big to get through the Suez canal.

SINKING U. S. TANKERS

The navy is being more hush-hush than usual regarding the sinkings of oil tankers off the Atlantic coast. However, here are a few important facts about the situation which are not military secrets.

First fact is encouraging. The tankers sunk were old, small and slow. All of them were 20 years old or over, and the largest, Standard Oil's India Arrow, was 8,327 tons.

On the surface, this would indicate that oil and gasoline losses on the East coast would not be heavy. However, this is not the case. For all of the big, new American tankers have been taken over by the navy. This was under an arrangement whereby the maritime commission had lent the oil companies around $800,000 per vessel to build fast modern tankers making 19 knots. This is so fast that they can avoid submarines and also keep up with the fleet.

However, these new tankers, built in co-operation with the navy, are now with the fleet.

—Buy Defense Bonds—

HEAVY LOSSES

Two other factors indicate the importance of the sinkings on the Atlantic coast. One is an announcement made by the British last week that sinkings for the entire Atlantic, including the East Coast of the United States, has been heavier in January than ever before. The other is the fact that comprehensive rationing of oil and gasoline for the East coast is now a certainty. In other words, oil and tanker losses have been very heavy.

Reason for these losses is easy to understand. It requires no official explanation. As everyone knows, especially the enemy, we had to rush various kinds of shipping to the Pacific to replace the damage done at Pearl Harbor. Also we had a large number of warships busy convoying vessels across the North Atlantic.

Hence we have been caught shorthanded on the East coast.

Note: Most people don't realize it, but the oil shortage along the Atlantic could be relieved considerably by a curtailment of tank car rates on gasoline and fuel oil. Last fall the rail rates were reduced on crude oil but not on gasoline or fuel oil.

POLITICAL-GO-ROUND

Democratic insiders are predicting that Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York will be persuaded to run for a fourth term this year. Lehman has told party chiefs he doesn't want another term, but they urge him to be a candidate again on the ground of wartime duty . . . Meanwhile, former District Attorney Tom Dewey is busy behind-the-scenes organizing his political fences for another try at the governorship. This will be the springboard for a second shot at the G.O.P. presidential nomination in 1944.

Wisconsin's Gov. Julius Heil will run for a third term this year to get himself in position to take on isolationist Sen. Alex Wiley when he comes up for re-election in 1944. Both are Republicans, but privately no love is lost between them.

Fiorello LaGuardia's ambition always has been to become a U. S. senator after he steps out as mayor of New York city.

Yank—Nix on that. I read that news from Russia.

Adolf—Russia, phooey! I'm not finished with her yet.

Adolf—That was all newspaper talk. I have no nervous breakdown.

Yank—I'll see that you get one now! Are you still wearing that uniform you were never going to take off until you had licked the world?

Adolf—Ja! Ja!

Yank—I didn't know cooties could stay so long in one place. Say, why don't you get wise and sue for peace?

Adolf—Me sue for peace! I've got the world under my heel.

Yank—All I got from that sentence was your name.

Adolf—What name?

Yank—Heel.

Adolf—I'm itching to get a crack at you.

Yank—You're a poor judge of what causes those itches, Adolf. And, lissen, I've got a proposition for a partner of yours. It's an offer for Mussolini. Hollywood wants him in Keystone comedy revivals.

A BOY TURNS 21

We "lifted" the following poem from Earl Hall's "Eye Observing" in the Globe Gazette as it seems to express our own thoughts which ran through our own mind a few short months ago when our son turned twenty-one The poem was written by a Mason City mother to her son at Iowa State college on the occasion of his 21st birthday

Here's to our boy our only son;
A toast of Freedom he's twenty one—
We've made mistakes, his dad and I
In those short years gone by,
But always behind every thought and deed
Was the love for our son and what was his need
We've finished our work, still love him so,
Was far more joy than sorrow
He'll carry the torch from here, and we know
We'll be proud of that son tomorrow
So here's to our boy, our only son,
A toast of Freedom he's twenty one

WHAT CAN I DO TO WIN THE WAR?

Speaking before Chicago Better Business Bureau recently, Leon Henderson director of OPA, offered a suggestion that may help you answer the above question He proposed a new civilian slogan of "A War Deed a Day" and included among these "war deeds" the following, all of which are within the power of every civilian and all of which can contribute to the ultimate victory

1 Buy a defense stamp or bond every day

2 Conserve waste paper, scrap metals and other materials which are needed for the manufacture of war goods

3 Walk to work or use public transportation facilities to save tires, gasoline, oil and wear on autos

4 Conserve food.

5 Carry packages home when we go shopping to save strain on already limited delivery facilities

6 Assert your faith in final victory and avoid pessimism.

This pretty well fits our own community, except 3 and 5 Most everyone walks to work here, so we can disregard No 3 And in the case of No 5 we do not have store deliveries here so we can all help by taking a shopping bag to the store to have groceries placed in, that saves large paper bags.

HIS WINDOWS ALWAYS SPARKLE

If we were handing out awards for the shiniest, cleanest and most sparkling store windows in Klemme, Conrad Quandt would win the first prize It is indeed very bad weather if "Coonie's" windows are not spotlessly clean All it takes is a little water and elbow grease, says "Coonie."

And, talking about store windows, "Stub" Lewis is out gunning for the scoundrel who spits tobacco juice all over his windows all too frequently

The heighth of the juice on the window would indicate the culprit is low in stature and much lower in mentality.

MARCH CAME IN LIKE A LAMB, SO WHAT?

The amateur weather predicters say we will get a variety of bad weather the latter part of March because this month "came in like a lamb and will go out like a lion" or something to that effect.

Personally we have never taken any stock in these old fashioned weather predictions

The groundhog was supposed to have seen his shadow February 2, if you haven't forgotten, and we were to have six weeks of cold wintry weather. Nice, wasn't it?

We shall see what March will dish up in the way of weather

Education by Phone for Sick Pupils in Iowa

Limbs withered by infantile paralysis, hearts with a flickering beat, bones broken in accidents—these and other afflictions have failed to keep 28 Iowa pupils from "going to school"

A dozen Iowa districts are using a so-called "two way teaching device" over a leased wire hookup, according to Jessie W Parker, Iowa superintendent of public instruction Actually, the mechanism is similar to the inter-office communication arrangement used by a boss when he talks to his secretary in another office

Placed in the pupil's room at home is a box-like instrument resembling a small radio set. On the teacher's desk at school is another just like it.

The child not only hears everything that goes on in the classroom—he also "recites" when called upon The state of Iowa provides the devices and the school district pays the telephone tolls.

"The child feels he still is part of his class," Miss Parker said. "The teacher says good morning to him each day and so do all his classmates"

The voices of whole classes and the teachers have benefited by use of the devices, the state superintendent said.

The hookups are used only when the child is feeling well but is unable to leave his home, she said. The method is especially valuable in keeping up the morale of a child who is confined to bed for weeks or months with a heart ailment.

Something New—Candy Aids in Weight Reducing

Sounds too good to be true, but there is a new and very special kind of candy now available which not only satisfies the overweight person's sweet tooth, but which also actually aids in weight reduction.

"Ayds" is the appropriate name of this new candy, which is said to reduce weight without the aid of cathartics, glandular products or harmful drugs of any kind.

Its manufacturers state that their product contains only vitamins A, B and D, plus food factors from milk, egg yolk, maltose and plants.

Analysis shows the following ingredients: Vitamins A, B and D; dicalcium phosphate, powdered carrots, powdered egg yolks, whole milk, soy bean flour, coconut oil, salt, corn syrup and sugar.

Here's a typical day's diet, each meal to be preceded by one or two pieces of Ayds candy 15 minutes previously:

Breakfast—1 orange, 1 boiled or poached egg, 2 slices crisp bacon, ½ slice thin toast, 1 square butter, 2 tablespoons thin cream.

Lunch — 4 tablespoons cottage cheese, 2 slices crisp bacon, ¼ head lettuce, 6 radishes, ½ slice bread, 1 square butter, 1 glass skimmed milk, 1 fresh peach.

Dinner — 1 medium serving (1¾ ounces) pot roast of beef, ⅓ medium head cauliflower, ½ medium size tomato, ½ slice bread, 1 square butter, 1 glass skimmed milk, ¾ cup fresh raspberries, 2 tablespoons thin cream.

Julius Caesar Made Jan. Beginning of New Year

January, the first month of the year, was named in honor of Janus, the Roman god of gates and doors, hence, of all beginnings. He is represented with two faces, looking in opposite directions One looks behind, reflecting upon the past, and the other looks forward to the future This is the version of Dr. C. H. Cleminshaw of the Griffith observatory and University of California.

That January is the beginning of the year is an accident, Dr. Cleminshaw declared For it was a result of Julius Caesar's decision to change the beginning of the year from the time when days and nights are equal to the time when the days are shortest. He intended to start the year with the shortest day, when the sun is at the winter solstice, about December 22.

However, he delayed the beginning of the year out of regard for the customs and superstitions of the people, who had always begun the year with a new moon The new moon nearest to the winter solstice that year fell on January 1, and so the Julian calendar was started on that date in the year 45 B. C. Only occasionally does a new moon happen to fall on January 1. Thus we see that our New Year's day is not related to any astronomical fact or logical reason.

Shortage in Seed Supply

With Holland, Denmark, Belgium, and France completely out at this time as sources of seed supply, the shortage already is worse than that of 1914-18, according to David Burpee, head of the W Atlee Burpee company, world-famous Philadelphia seed growers "England now buys all the vegetable seed we can spare," he said, "and importing of flower seeds into England is no longer permitted"

Our country in general needs a summer flower that can stand severe summer heat, according to Burpee Marigolds are best but some people can't stand their smell. C. D. Holton, an American missionary, discovered an odorless marigold growing wild in northwestern China The sweet pea used to be America's garden favorite, but a disease has weakened its resistance to summer heat.

Economic Condition in Japan

Only one side of Japan is seen by the Americans, and that is the bad side, according to the Rev A P. Hassell, Presbyterian missionary to Japan "As individuals Japanese are a good people," he said, "I have eaten in their homes and eaten with them, and in 31 years found no lack of hospitality" He is on his fourth furlough to America

Dr Hassell said that it was remarkable how the Japanese manage to live on the little they have and it is very difficult for Americans to understand the real conditions. Their economic condition is acute There is very little sugar and the rice is rationed strictly Coffee is out, bread is hard to get, cotton goods are scarce and milk is only for babies who are a year old or less and in need.

Slave Labor Expensive

Many people believe that slave-owning was very profitable for the plantation owners of the Southern states in America prior to the civil war, but this is not generally true. Actually slave labor was more expensive than free-man's labor. Benjamin Franklin even pointed out that if the original cost of a slave were added to the keep, insurance, doctor bills and other costs of the slaves, that it would be more expensive than hiring workingmen for labor. Slavery was definitely waning in the South even before the Civil war—for the simple reason that it was becoming less and less profitable.

It's "chick-time." Two rules for profitable chick-raising are: get them early, and keep them segregated from the laying flock as long as possible.

Manure is "waste" from the standpoint of the livestockman, but for the crop producer, it is additional plant food for more-profitable production and is valued at about $2.00 per ton.

The most satisfactory rat control is obtained by thoroughly rat-proofing all farm buildings. This method will pay big dividends over a period of years as the cost is not great for most buildings.

Rats menace not only our food and our farm animals, from the standpoint of health they threaten both humans and domestic animals and act a reservoirs of infectious jaundice, endemic typhus and bubonic plague in man and trichinosis of hogs.

Statisticians have estimated that under ideal conditions one pair of rats might produce 350 million progeny in 3 years. Even if rats increase by only a very small fraction of this rate, it is easy to understand why poisoning must be done frequently in order to keep rat populations within limits

Eggs Next to Milk

If we had to do without milk, eggs would be the next most valuable single food Not that eggs take the place of milk or vice versa but they are both very complete foods. Eggs are an important source of protein, fat phosphorus, iron, and vitamins A B D G

WONDERING

The librarian at Harlan would like to know the cause of so much questioning regarding "Keys of the Kingdom" by Cronin Two men inquired about the book, asking if it would be possible for anyone to read it without having their name registered Mrs Valborg Lux reported having seen a strange woman reading it in the library on two different days. Questions were then asked about the description of the woman, and a close examination of the book followed However, if they found anything, they did not report it to he Harlan Library staff.

Watch Your Kidneys

Help Them Cleanse Your System of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in this work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that such treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have won new friends for more than 50 years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

HOLLYWOOD may not see Katharine Hepburn working before its cameras again for some time; she left when she finished "Woman of the Year" with no plans for making more pictures, but with plenty for doing that new play; if it runs as long as "Philadelphia Story" did she won't be ready for pictures again for more than two years.

Incidentally, Spencer Tracy—who also wants to do a play, if he can find the right one—had his hair cut for that new Hepburn picture, the first time he's done that since 1935, when he had a haircut for "Murder Man," which he made with Myrna Loy; think back and you'll remember that he's been doing "unshaven and unshorn" roles, a long string of them.

Case investigators on the air's "Are You a Missing Heir" program travel thousands of miles and spend hundreds of dollars in search of those heirs — so imagine their surprise when a legatee turned up practically under their noses; she's Agatha Friederick, and is a script-writer for the agency handling the Heirs program.

We know only that "the studio has made some concessions" in that difference of opinion between Deanna Durbin and Universal that's kept her off the screen all this time. Last October it was reported that she was demanding the right to choose her vehicles and approve her leading men and directors—when a star takes things into her own hands that way she's usually on the skids that lead to oblivion. Now she's set to make pictures again. Her husband, Vaughn Paul, will not change his mind about his resignation as a Universal producer.

John Payne replaces Victor Mature in 20th Century Fox's "White Collar Girl," in which he plays opposite Betty Grable. The picture is scheduled to get under way soon, with John Brahm directing.

It seems to be children's day at the Columbia studios. Baby Davy James, the infant Marlene Dietrich didn't drop in "The Lady Is Willing," has a new contract with options that cover a total of 21 years, now a year old, he's known professionally as "Wonder Baby Corey," his name in that picture. And 15-day-old Norma Jean Wayne is working in "Blondie's Blessed Event."

That bartender whom you'll see with Richard Arlen and Arline Judge in "Wildcat" once had his day as a famous man. He is Tom Kennedy, and once upon a time he fought Jack Johnson for the world's heavyweight championship.

Speaking of war pictures—Paramount bought a story called "Channel Port" way back last April, and now is going to do something about it. It will be filmed in England, and executives are hoping to get Laurence Olivier or David Niven for the lead. It's a Commando story; the hero's a long-distance swimmer, who swims the channel from France to England with important information.

Columbia grabbed the title, "The Commandos," first, however, their story deals with an American boy who becomes one of that daring band, and a girl in Norway who heads an underground movement against the invaders—one more "boy meets girl" plot, in a new setting.

"Bedtime Story" has a parallel in real life, Helen Hayes' announcement that she would retire for two years was contradicted by her husband, Charles MacArthur who has a new play for her. Same plot as the picture!

ODDS AND ENDS—Band bookers are optimistic, despite the war—Sammy Kaye, for example, has been booked through January, 1943 A pre-view audience liked Donna Reed so much in "The Courtship of Andy Hardy" that the picture was given a new ending, a happy one for her In Universal's "Wake Up and Dream" bandleader Woody Herman not only makes his film bow but dances a bit for the customers Joan Crawford' salary fo the role that was to have been Carole Lombard's in "He Kissed the Bride"—$112,500—will all go to charitable organizations "Sullivan's Travels" is not only very funny; it has a message as well.

DISCOVERING WHY PEOPLE DRINK BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 43 34, Psalm 104 14, 15, Proverbs 31 4-7, Ecclesiastes 2 1-3, 10, 11, Isaiah 56 12, I Corinthians 10 6, 7

GOLDEN TEXT—Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise —Proverbs 20 1

The alcohol problem receives attention in four lessons of each year. This is the first one for 1942 and brings before us a number of scriptures not often used, in order to suggest the drinker's reasons for drinking. Other matters appear, but we shall limit ourselves to presenting these reasons, together with the Christian answer to each one.

Why do men drink?

I. To Be Sociable (Gen. 43.34).

At the banquet prepared by Joseph the allowance for Benjamin was greatly increased, and they "drank and were merry." How often that has been the plea which has led into drinking and into drunkenness. The "social glass" has often led to the drunkard's grave.

Well, surely God wants us to be sociable. Yes, He does, and the perfect provision for man's social nature is found in Christian fellowship.

II. To Be Happy (Ps. 104.14, 15).

Wine is supposed to bring happiness, and we may admit that it does bring a temporary lift which some call happiness. But who is satisfied with happiness? It depends entirely on what "happens." If the wrong thing happens we are unhappy. We need a deep abiding joy, and only a right relationship to God can give that

III. To Evade Responsibility (Prov. 31 4, 5).

When life's burdens become too much for him the weakling seeks relief and evades his responsibilities in the deadening power of alcohol. But that doesn't solve the problem It is still there when sobriety returns, and usually more serious than ever What can a man do? The answer is, turn to God He gives wisdom, grace and strength.

IV. To Forget Sorrow (Prov. 31: 6).

"Drown your sorrows" is the deceptive promise of liquor; but they stand right there beside man, and when his poor befuddled head begins to clear they present themselves more persistently than ever. What's the answer? The God of all comfort is ready to bear man's sorrows or to give him grace to bear them and to lead him out into a place of peace and victory.

V. To Forget Poverty (Prov. 31: 7).

Heavy is the affliction of poverty in a world of plenty. Sometimes it is the result of carelessness or of sin, but often it is the lot of those who are innocently caught in its grip. Men have tried to forget, to "drown" even this problem in drink, and have only made their poverty worse and more unbearable

VI. To Find Satisfaction (Eccl. 2. 1-3, 10, 11).

The book of Ecclesiastes gives the account of a man "under the sun," that is, apart from God's guidance and blessing, seeking to satisfy the cravings of his heart in many ways All of them prove vain, including the effort to find it in wine and in pleasure.

Frustrated souls often seek release through intoxicants. They gain a measure of liberty and a sense of masterful power, but it is all as delusive as the dreams of grandeur of the insane It is even worse, for it is a false condition, deliberately created and soon lost, together with lost character and decency of life. The morning after brings only the deepened despair of greater dissatisfaction.

VII. To Stimulate Hope (Isa. 56: 12).

A certain fearful looking forward to the time of judgment tends to dampen the drinker's enthusiasm So he drinks more to reawaken in his heart the "hope" that tomorrow will not bring reckoning, but will be another "good" day. The world has no real hope, in fact, the word itself has lost its true meaning and indicates only a sort of wishful thinking. Is there any real hope? Oh, yes, and the Christian has it, hope that is a confident expectation of the fulfillment of God's every promise. That kind of hope takes care of tomorrow—and all the tomorrows.

VIII. To Encourage Play (I Cor. 10·6, 7).

Paul warns against the folly of the "eat, drink, and be merry" philosophy That road ends in disaster

Does not God want us to play? Indeed He does. He gave us the instinct for recreation. We need pleasant relaxation, and He has provided for us all the beauties of nature, all the pleasures of wholesome play, and all in the finest of fellowship with His people and with Himself. Thus we find real recreation—not just fun that leaves us empty and dissatisfied

WE WISH TO EXTEND a hearty welcome to the many new families who have moved into our Community this week.

Even though the weather was mild and nice, it is a hard task to move, and I am sure you feel tired, and perhaps a bit homesick for your old friends and neighbors.

But, cheer up, most of the land in this trade territory is good. Most of the people who live here are good neighbors, and the Merchants and Professional people of Klemme try to be honest and helpful to their customers.

You will feel a little strange in our town at first, but soon you will get acquainted, and we will all help you to get acquainted here.

He says that the food is excellent. In his letter he also sent a few clippings from Irish newspapers showing pictures of the U S troops landing and telling of the Nazis giving them a reception by shelling, but the invaders were quickly driven off

The tone of Otho's letter was cheerful and bright and that he is enjoying the experience abroad

HANCOCK TEACHERS CONTRIBUTE TO RED CROSS

Mr A L. Kingery announces that the teachers of Iowa are contributing to a teachers defense fund, the money to be used by the Red Cross for the ambulance fund.

To date the teachers of Hancock county have contributed $62, with the drive just started. Mr. Kingery states that all teachers, both town and rural are expected to contribute one dollar to the fund.

Those who have not contributed may send their money to Mr. A. L. Kingery, Klemme, who is in charge of the drive for this county.

Soybeans Needed To Help Win The War, Increase Crop

WAR BOARD ASKS HANCOCK COUNTY FARMERS FOR BIG INCREASE IN SOY BEANS

An eighty-four per cent increase in soybean acreage over 1941, that is the challenge hurled at the farmers of Iowa in the revised 1942 production goals released recently by the Department of Agriculture and the Hancock County USDA War Board this week.

Although the revised national goals announced by Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard call for only a fifty-four percent increase over 1941 soybean production, the topography of the land makes Iowa one of the most suited sections of the country for soybean producion explaining the wide divergence in state and national goals.

Before the war in the Pacific, Secretary Wickard asked for an increase in soybean production of only fifteen percent, but after December 7, the picture changed completely. One of our greatest sources of the fats and oils so vital to our war industries was cut off completely as a result of the invasion of the southern Pacific by the Japanese.

In previous years we have imported over a billion pounds of various oils from the Pacific area annually, an import trade almost completely lost to us for the duration of the war. In 1940, we imported 758 million pounds of coconut oil from the Phillipines and Netherlands Indies; 227 million pounds of palm oil and 13 million pounds of palm kernel oil from the Netherlands Indies and British Malaya; 97 million pounds of tung oil from China and Honkong; and 12 million pounds of rapeseed oil and 11 million pounds of perialla oil from Japan. All these imports have been cut off and must be made up by pumping oil from the soil in the form of increased soybean production.

Iowa farmers are being asked to almost double their 1941 soybean acreage in 1942 because fats and oils are vital to our war effort. Every extra acre of soybeans a farmer plants this spring will be just another step toward our ultimate victory over the Axis powers

In 1940 America consumed more than nine billion pounds of fats and oils. Of this amount, about 67 percent was eaten as food, 20 percent was used in the manufacture of soap. and the remainder in paints, varnishes and other miscellany.

This year the demand for fats and oils has risen to over ten billion pounds and next year, as a result of the war effort, we'll need over eleven billion pounds, the War Board pointed out

In order to meet the Food for Freedom demands Iowa farmers will have to plant almost 37 acres of soybeans for every 20 acres harvested last year However, the demand for increased production has been accompanied by a warning to farmers not to plant the beans on hilly or rolling fields because of danger of erosion

As a means of encouraging the production of soybeans Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has announced a minimum of $1 60 a bu. for number two yellow beans of recognized high oil content varieties.

BLUE GOOSE FLIGHT NOW ON

The most spectacular concentration of migratory waterfowl left in the United States is the flight of blue and snow geese that occurs in Monona County each spring. The geese, after leaving their southern wintering grounds in Louisiana and Texas, stop briefly in small bunches at various points south of Iowa, but beginning the first week in March, they pile into the Missouri River bottoms along the west Iowa boundary in tremendous numbers. The principal concentrations are in Monona County, where they spend some thirty days feeding on waste corn and browsing in the large winter wheat fields. The peak of the concentration is generally between March 15 and 25. After that date they begin to move north, ultimately landing on Baffin Island in the Arctic, where they nest. Although spring shooting is not as serious a problem as it has been in the past, both Federal and State officers follow the goose flight through the United States.

Honey in New Role With Housewife As War Brings on Sugar Rationing

By CHARLES A. SINGLER
(Released by Western Newspaper Union)

"Every household in the nation should get itself into the sugar rationing habit now, before the government's rationing plan goes into effect," says Dan A. West, Director of the Consumer Division of the Office of Price Administration. Mr. West also urges consumers who have hoarded large supplies of sugar to "divvy up" with their friends and neighbors.

"Rationing means share and share alike," Mr. West said, "and if we're really serious about sharing the burdens of this war fairly, here's a good chance for us to begin doing it in our communities."

Consumers will have to certify the amount of sugar they have on hand when they register for war ration book No. 1. For all sugar in excess of two pounds per person, stamps will be torn out of the ration books, preventing further purchase of sugar until the hoards are used up. False certification will be punishable under the United States criminal code. Under the rationing plan, sales of sugar will be restricted to something less than a pound of sugar per person per week.

Main Sources of Sugar.

Prior to our entrance into the war our main sources of sugar have been the Philippines (16 per cent); Hawaii (14 per cent); domestic beet (23 per cent); domestic cane, (6 per cent); Puerto Rico, (12 per cent); Cuba, (29 per cent) Thus we see at a glance that sugar has come to us from far places, that it is by no means an exclusively U S. product, and that war in the seven seas is bound to lay a heavy hand upon the free supplies which have hitherto come to the American table. To help offset this, it is quite likely that beet and cane sugar acreages in the United States will be greatly increased this year

In any event, the sugar rationing program is a certainty, and, face to face with it, many people with a sweet tooth are going to be thinking in terms of honey as a substitute for sugar very soon Honey, a strictly made-in-America product, is even now crowding up front for its place in the spotlight Bee culture is not confined to any particular section of the country, but is common to all sections. Honey is a logical, and perhaps the only, substitute for sugar, and should meet with no difficulty whatever in fitting into the wartime program.

After all, what is better than waffles and honey, or honey on toast? Pastries made with honey instead of with sugar are extra delicious, and honey adds extra zest to the cereals we eat for breakfast.

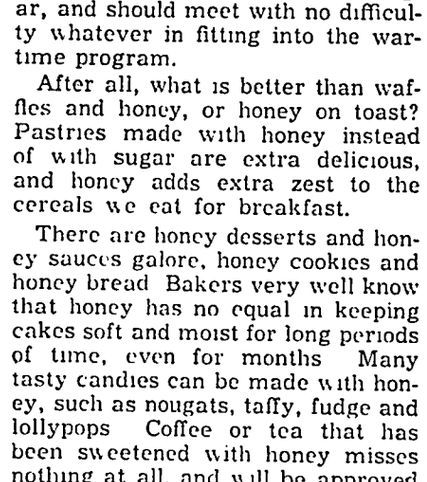
There are honey desserts and honey sauces galore, honey cookies and honey bread Bakers very well know that honey has no equal in keeping cakes soft and moist for long periods of time, even for months Many tasty candies can be made with honey, such as nougats, taffy, fudge and lollypops Coffee or tea that has been sweetened with honey misses nothing at all, and will be approved by all lovers of these beverages. Try it some time.

Quick Service of Energy.

The fact that honey is a quick source of energy is well known. Many athletes use honey just before and during their work because of its ability to supply quick energy Not only is honey prized as a quick source of energy, but it is an A-1 blood builder, too

Honey will also come to the aid of housewives during the canning season Fruits canned with honey instead of sugar lack nothing at all in the way of deliciousness or keeping qualities.

In caloric value a tablespoonful of honey is equal to 1½ tablespoonfuls



Honey frames with bees working.

A trap devised to collect pollen for experiments on the growth-regulating powers of different kinds of pollen. It consists of square meshed hardware cloth placed parallel and about one-half inch apart at entrance to bee hive. of maple syrup. The average honey contains about 40 per cent levulose, 34 per cent dextrose, and between 1 and 2 per cent sucrose. As a food it is predominantly alkaline; therefore, very wholesome.

Honey is sold in small square boxes, in the comb, and strained honey is sold in glass jars or in pails, usually of five pounds net weight.

The price of honey is in the neighborhood of 15 cents a pound, but lower prices prevail on honey sold in larger containers For instance, a five-pound pail of honey will cost anywhere from 45 to 65 cents, depending on the quality and the value-giving reputation of the store where the purchase is made. Nearly every grocery store carries honey, and it can also be obtained at many stands along the highway Beekeepers located on highways do not often overlook this opportunity to dispose of their product first hand.

What Bee Keepers Wear.

A bee farm is called an apiary, and the tenants of a hive are called a colony. The bee hive is usually made of wood, with a cover which the bee keeper can take off. The keeper usually wears a "bee veil" over his hat and pulled down over his face. However, many bee men prefer wire cloth head protectors to screen themselves away from the little insects, which do not sting as readily as generally supposed, but whose sting is something to be avoided. As bees are sensitive to cold and dampness, the hives are usually placed on boxes or stands to keep them off the ground.

Honey as a food product rises measurably in our estimation when we take a little time out to consider how it is made. And as the honey bee has now been enlisted in the Food-for-Victory program "for the duration" it may be well right here to consider a few of the outstanding facts in the life of the bee—our smallest patriot—which, only a half inch long and a quarter of an inch high, is going to do the big job of taking up the slack in the matter of sweets because of the sugar rationing program.

No attempt will be made here to go into the details of the bees' complex civilization — a civilization which has inspired awe in the minds of thinkers since the days of early Rome, for even the Elder Pliny wrote about them—but to review some of the facts that may give us a closer understanding of the busy little worker who has now been aligned on the Allied side.

There are more believe-it-or-nots in the life of the bee than any other insect. In fact, the bee is unique among insects, for it is the only insect that man has succeeded in domesticating

Where Bees Get Nectar.

The source of honey is the purest that one can imagine—the nectar which nature has stowed away in red and white clover, in apple and orange blossoms, in buckwheat, wild aster, goldenrod and many other flowers, and even in the lowly sage. In other words, honey is not factory-made, but comes to us via the bee-line route fresh from nature's gardens Who could ask for anything purer or better?

If people only knew what a pound of honey represents in bee travel, they would have a keener appreciation of the bee's liquid gold, which is destined to pinch hit for the "white gold," known as sugar, in many roles

A spoonful of honey means many foraging trips for a great many bees. It is estimated that every pound of honey represents a combined flight mileage of approximately 50,000 miles—or two circuits of the globe at the equator. In fact, one bee could not produce one pound of honey in a lifetime, and, incidentally, a bee's lifetime during the honey season is only about six weeks. This is, in itself, an indication of how vigorously they put in their time.

Honey bees do not mix their drinks. In other words, bees that start their day with clover blossoms will continue with clover blossoms throughout the day, or until the yield of nectar from clover blossoms becomes too thin. This disposition to "stay with it" makes possible definite brands of honey, such as buckwheat honey, which would not be on the market if the bees were indiscriminate in the selection of the flowers they visit. Ordinary honey is pale yellow, while buckwheat honey is much deeper in color, and much stronger in taste. There is much less of it on the market, of course, and some people do not like it. On the other hand, once a buckwheat" taste has been acquired, the preference is usually for that brand of honey.

The bee speeds from flower to flower at about a 15 m.p.h. rate, and its cruising range is about one or two miles from the hive. Bees have an unerring directional instinct that invariably brings them back to their own hive. The nectar it carries is approximately one-half its weight

Honey Bee An Engineer.

The comb built by the honey bee is a masterpiece of engineering, consisting of hexagonal cells that are amazingly uniform, and tilted at just the right angle to prevent the honey from running out. The geometrical accuracy of the comb has been the marvel of the ages, and has captured the full attention of master-minds such as Fabre and Maeterlinck and Huber, to whom we are so heavily indebted for what knowledge we have of the bee and its crowded city.

One of the most interesting chapters in the life of the bee occurs in the autumn, when they eject the males from the hive. All summer long, when nectar has been plentiful and easy to get, the males, or drones, have gotten along well enough with the workers, sharing the same hive, but they have been permitted to stay on sufferance only. They never were really wanted, but their presence was essential to the continued life and expansion of the bee city When the first crisp days of fall come along there is a marked change in the attitude of the worker bees towards the males. The drones are no longer wanted in the hive, for they have not been producers. Taking the hint, some of the drones take to their wings and go off on their own, but certain doom faces them, for winter is ahead, and they have made no provision against it, nor can they stand the cold

Bee Needs Company.

The honey bee, it should be understood, is not and cannot be a "loner." It is part and parcel of an insect city, the most highly organized society in the world, and once deprived of its citizenship certain death soon follows

Some of the drones return to the hive for a handout, but are barred by the bees that guard the honey vaults. Eventually they are driven out

The swarm is the Roman holiday of the bee—and the only time in its brief and busy life when it has a bit of fun On this occasion half the hive may follow the queen bee on a great new adventure. The queen, having alighted on some branch or other object, the worker bees cluster around her in a great, seething, buzzing ball When bees swarm in this manner they will not return to their old home However, the alert bee keeper is all ready for just such emergencies. He has prepared a new hive where a new city of wax will soon be started.

United States Looks Southward for War Rubber Supplies

Rubber supplies must stretch like rubber itself This was forcibly brought home to American motorists with the recent rationing regulations for automobile tires The United States is the greatest consumer of rubber in the world.

"British Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies long have been the United States' chief source of rubber, with large shipments also from the island of Ceylon, French Indo-China and other eastern sources," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

The department of agriculture has estimated that rubber can be produced in tropical America at half the cost of synthetic rubber, guayule rubber, goldenrod rubber or other substitutes, even with large scale production of the latter To promote rubber production, legislation now pending provides for the planting of 45,000 acres of guayule and for establishing extracting facilities.

NO SOVIET-NAZI PEACE

Those who are on the inside regarding the report which Ambassador William C. Bullitt gave President Roosevelt regarding the Near East say there is only one slight ray of sunshine in it. Bullitt told his chief that there was absolutely no chance of Russia making peace with Germany.

Coming from Bullitt, who served as ambassador to Russia and who spent considerable time there in the early days of the revolution in 1917, this means a lot. Bullitt has been vigorously critical of the Soviet regime in recent years and probably would lean over backwards against any overly optimistic appraisal. However, after his special tour of the Near and Middle East on special assignment from the President, he reported that the Russians were so irate against the Nazis that there would be no surrender or compromise.

Bullitt is not so optimistic about the Russian army, which he thinks may fail badly when the Germans are able to get their airplanes in the air again, which they cannot do in sub-zero weather and with snow on the air fields. Politically, however, Bullitt is convinced that Russia will stand with the United Nations to the last ditch.

Against this, Bullitt goes further than anyone else around the President regarding Allied losses. Not only does he believe that Japan will take India, but he feels that Australia will be lost to the British Empire.

If he is right, this will be the worst blow which the United Nations can suffer, especially inasmuch as American troops are now stationed in Australia and New Zealand.

Not all war observers agree with Bullitt on this latter point. They point out that Australia is chiefly a desert country, and it would take weeks and months for a conquering army to envelop these vast areas.

PATRIOTIC INDIANS

As in the last war, thousands of American Indians again are demonstrating their patriotism.

The desk of John Collier, able chief of the Office of Indian Affairs, is stacked with letters from every tribe in the country, pledging aid and offering to make fresh sacrifices for the war effort. Here are a few examples:

Immediately after the declaration of war, the Crow Indians of Montana voted $10,000 of tribal funds to President Roosevelt to "use as you see fit." They also voted to place in the President's hands the entire resources of their 2,000,000-acre reservation, including mineral, oil and coal deposits, plus all available manpower for combat service.

The Creeks of Oklahoma have set aside $400,000 of tribal funds for the purchase of defense bonds. Other tribes voting large sums for the same purpose include the Jicarilla Apaches and Pueblos of New Mexico, the Euchee and Seminole Indians of Oklahoma, and the Navajos.

Not to be outdone, the Colvilles of Washington state, the Cheyennes and Arapahos of the Plains and the Nez Perce Indians have announced they will not press for settlement of tribal claims against the government while the war lasts.

Following the Jap attack there was a big rush among Indian youth at every reservation to enlist, especially at the Sioux reservation in South Dakota. Only three of the 46 North Carolina Cherokees in the army were drafted. The rest volunteered.

The patriotic response of Indians may surprise the average American, but not Collier. He says: "The Indians know more than any of us what freedom means. They knew it in other years when they fought against overwhelming odds to save their lands from the white man."

WE WILL WIN

Due to initial Axis advantage of having great organized military machines, the war will be long, difficult and costly. But if the Allied peoples will stick it out they can't lose. All the major basic economic advantages are on our side. Here are a few:

The Axis powers plus their occupied territories have 29 per cent of the world's coal, 18 per cent of the iron ore, 3 per cent of the oil, 21 per cent of the wheat, 23 per cent of the sugar. Total population under their flags, 474,000,000; of which 168,000,000 are conquered peoples secretly trying to throw off their terroristic yokes.

On the Allied side of the ledger is 67 per cent of the world's coal, 63 per cent of the iron, 78 per cent of the oil, 64 per cent of the wheat, and 51 per cent of the sugar.

ECONOMIC WAR FRONT

Don't start getting jittery about reports of a soap shortage. There is absolutely nothing to them. You will always be able to get plenty of soap—of some kind. Shutting off of imported oils, chiefly from the embattled Pacific, probably will affect the quality of soap, but not the quantity. Ample domestic, Brazilian and Central American oils will provide satisfactory substitutes.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

Now is the winter of our discontent and a still more discontented spring may not be far behind. Washington at Valley Forge, Lincoln holding with knotted hands a nation split asunder may well look down on us with deep concern.

Not that this great nation is even near the danger which hovered so close to the battered armies of Washington's Colonials, or threatened the century-young Republic. We have just passed a $26,000,000,000 appropriation, the largest in history. We are preparing to arm 7,000,000 men, training an air force of 2,000,000. When the planes which our factories can turn out are ready to spread their wings they can darken the skies over Berlin and Tokyo.

But as the mists of spring spread out over the oceans, they touch the brows of new masters, rulers who never dared lay claim to rule the seven seas.

Gradually the American people realize that the world they looked upon from their comfortable windows is a different world from the one which their peaceful mind's eyes saw before Pearl Harbor and Singapore It is a world that all but a very few would have scoffed at if it had been described to them before the crushing defeats which the English speaking peoples have suffered in the scant weeks since December 7, 1941.

It was a soft February day when we strolled up to the White House gate, showed our photographic passes to the policemen, filed into the Executive Wing and finally found ourselves in the President's office as the newsmen do twice each week.

President Rebukes Rumor Mongers

There were no quips as we waited until the last man was in. And the President's easy smile was absent. Some of the answers were sharp. There was rebuke for repeating a rumor, condemnation of Washington's Clivenden set, as the President called them—defeatists.

Then when a reporter asked if the President would comment on the visit of the British ambassador, there was an effort to lighten the gloom and the President who had no intention of revealing the ambassador's mission answered that they had had a good lunch. Then one of the reporters who had buttonholed the ambassador on his way out and gotten no comment, remarked: "The ambassador didn't look like a man who had had a good lunch when he came out."

And that remark expressed the mood of the city

Why? Not because officials did not recognize what might be ahead after the first reverses But because they knew that all they could do, all that the United Nations could do, was to mark time while a tiny nation, Japan, with a population of 70,000,000, putting out $3,000,000,000 worth of arms annually, was holding at bay a coalition of 200,000,000 people with a monthly, not yearly, output of arms worth 3½ billion dollars.

But we are marking time from a military standpoint only. Our production is mounting. Already we have supplies enough for the demand in Russia if we had the ships to carry them Soon we will be turning out two ships a day.

And we are preparing an army. And that is the point. At first we thought that America had one task, to be the arsenal of the democracies. Simply the job of production. Then we saw that we must help get those supplies to their destination. And to protect the supply lines we needed to man bases. All this was before we actually were at war.

Supply Lines Threatened

Then war came and now, suddenly, we realize that the supply lines are threatened. Threatened at Rangoon, gateway of the Burma road. Threatened in the Red sea and the Persian gulf if Hitler breaks through the Middle East. Threatened with Japan's far-flung, base-studded archipelagoes which have now spread eastward from the Marshall islands to Borneo and the Celebes and perhaps, before this is written, within bombing distance of Australia itself

And so we learned that we might not be able to arm our allies but that we would have to arm ourselves and carry those arms in the hands and on the ships and planes of our own fighting men.

And so, for the first time in its history America looks out upon hostile nations in three continents which it must hunt out in their own lairs. The greatest military expeditions in the history of the world are now in the making. Soon the snows of the winter of our discontent will melt unnoticed. America will go forth without thought of wind or rain or snow or sun.

Meanwhile we have a long, hard lesson of restraint and sacrifice.

Uncle Sam Again in Life Insurance Business

Uncle Sam is in the life insurance business again

In World War I the government issued insurance of more than 4,000,000 policies to members of the armed services with a total face value of nearly $40,000,000,000. The idea when these policies were issued, the government paying the extra premium demanded of a person stepping up in the direction of machine guns, was that this was all that could be expected of a grateful republic. After struggling with the burden of Civil war pensions it was believed that the insurance would take their place.

The men themselves, as ex-soldiers and as citizens, would probably have been entirely satisfied. But the politicians couldn't let a good thing like that get away.

The first sweetener was the bonus. Then came the other bonuses one after the other and the various benefits which needn't be related here. The insurance policies were not a heavy burden. They cost the government only $1,714,000 which was the difference between what the government paid out and the premiums paid in. For you see it was a business proposition. The premiums were taken out of the soldier's pay while he was in the army. When he was discharged he either kept up the premiums or dropped the policy.

As of February 14, 1942, 1,308,500 applications for insurance policies have been received by the veterans administration with a total face value of $4,955,000,000.

The policies are in multiples of $500 and $10,000 is the limit. The premiums amount to only 67 cents a month per thousand dollars for a man 25 years of age. No man who has any sense at all will miss the 67 cents when he scoops his money into his hat, signs the pay-roll and salutes once a month.

There is no red-tape, no physical examination. Any man who can stand up and get shot at is healthy enough to be insured.

Other Raw Materials In South America

The thing the German and Japanese respect most and fear most, is the American factory. The Board of Economic Warfare is the board of strategy which directs this powerful weapon of offense.

Some countries on the borderline of Axis influence have things we want and want things we have. Let us say "Belgravia" has ordered certain foodstuffs she requires for her starving people. The deal is arranged. At the same time, we have been trying to get a certain chemical that "Belgravia" is shipping to the Axis. So the order to release the foodstuff finds its way to a certain desk in the BEW. The food is not delivered. The minister of Belgravia calls at the state department to ask the cause of the delay. He is referred to a little office in the shabby apartment building The talk soon turns to the chemical that we want. An understanding is reached.

As I sat in this building listening to the almost all-encircling enterprises the BEW is undertaking, the President's phrases came back to me—"an all-encircling war"—"an overwhelming superiority." I realized that this encirclement, which the enemy is attempting to achieve with a line of flesh and blood and steel, America is gradually accomplishing with a wall that will keep out the vital supplies that make the sinews of war of the Axis. And I realized, too, that "overwhelming superiority," when it is established, will be established by the power of America's economic machinery.

¶ The attack on the Office of Civilian Defense was probably an excellent thing because it would have shaken the faith of a lot of people in the government if they thought we were trying to dance our way out of our troubles. As a matter of fact, the entertainment features were based on similar activities which had been tried out and found practical in England.

¶ Federal Security Administrator McNutt asked all state governors, in view of mounting manpower requirements for defense production goals, to give every consideration to the vocational rehabilitation and employment of physically handicapped persons, including all discharged, wounded or injured members of the armed forces.

HOG PRODUCTION AND FARM PLAN

Plenty of Grain Is Seen as Necessary for Success.

By E. M. Regenbrecht
(Swine Husbandman, Texas A. & M. College.)

Hog production, a basic item in the Food for Victory program, easily can be made successful if properly fitted into a profitable farming plan.

Especially suited as a small enterprise, hog production primarily is dependent for success upon the availability of an abundance of grain feed. Hogs always pay more for corn, barley, or grain sorghums than does the grain market. About four pounds of feed produces a pound of pork, but the feed must be properly balanced. Feeds used to balance the farm grain usually are higher in price than the latter but the quantity is small.

Farmers who keep from one to three sows almost always make a success, Regenbrecht says. Hogs do not do well when run in large groups because sanitation and disease prevention become serious problems with large herds The principal item of expense in hog production is the grain feed, but if this is grown on the farm, or obtainable locally at reasonable prices, the enterprise easily can be established on a profitable basis

While a sandy, well-drained soil is the most suitable, hogs can be successfully raised on a heavy black soil, but in such case concrete feeding floors are almost a necessity. Hog pastures are necessary, with small grain for winter, and sudan for summer the best. Native grasses such as bermuda are good for a short time in the spring, but soon get hard and tough, and become of little value. A good pasture will furnish 50 per cent of the needed protein and otherwise reduce the cost of production.

Suitable equipment — a movable hog house, a few troughs and a self-feeder—can be built at small cost. A concrete wallow can be classed as almost a necessity. If hogs are kept comfortable they make rapid and economical gains and losses from overeating are avoided. It is likewise true that hogs which do not have a dry, warm place in which to bed during the winter will not make as much profit as those properly sheltered.

Save Money by Making Own 'Homemade' Soap

With the fats and oil situation giving this country considerable worry, rural families with cooking fats available can save by making homemade soap.

Enameled or granite ware is suitable for small batches of soap, but for larger batches an iron kettle is recommended. A large granite or wooden spoon is best for stirring.

The four ingredients of soap are lye, water, fat and perfume. Lye should be pure and uniform, and if possible soft water should be used since it will improve the quality of soap.

Fat used should be clean and light-colored and it should be clarified as it accumulates. Clean tin cans, well covered, are best for storing the fat until a sufficient amount has been collected for soap making. Both fats and oils must be washed free from salt. Rancid greases may be purified by boiling with a solution of one part of vinegar and five parts of water.

Scents such as oil of citronella, bergamot, oil of lavender, geranium or sassafras may be added to perfume the soap. This will help destroy the odor of the fat.

Killing Cattle Lice

A dairy herd infested with lice causing severe cow discomfort cannot provide top milk production. Powdered sabadilla dusted on the infested parts is a popular louse killer. It may be used alone or mixed with equal quantities of powdered tobacco and flowers of sulphur. Work the powder well into the hide during dusting Blanket the animal for a few hours after treatment and thoroughly brush the skin, preferably out of doors.

It is well to repeat this treatment in 15 days in order to get lice that hatch from the nits. Use care when applying the sabadilla powder not to get it up the nose and mouth. A handkerchief or doubled cheesecloth placed over the nose and mouth will prevent irritation.

What Next??

A writer with a flair for "looking up" information tells that honey isn't merely a jar of liquid amber to give zest to the breakfast toast and flapjacks. During the past few years packing firms have bought honey in large lots for curing hams, and many carloads of it have been bought by brewers. Hydromel (honey and water) is one of the oldest drinks known in Europe, and honey brandy and honey champagne still are considered delicacies.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE!

If you are among those American adults who hesitantly applaud the flag at the movies and remain strangely unemotional when view of the fleet or of our fighting men are shown, you should attend a children's movie matinee. We did so the other day, and the way the kiddies stamped, clapped and shrieked at every view of Old Glory, an American warship or an American fighter appeared on the screen was good for the soul.

THE MIGHTY WORKS OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 8:23-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him!—Matthew 8:27

The mighty works of Jesus declared Him to be the Son of God—yes, very God Himself. Unbelieving men who would discredit the Word of God and deny the Godhood of the Son are at much labor and trouble to explain away the miracles, but without any success.

In our lesson for today we have Christ showing His divine power over the forces of nature, and over the demons of the evil spirit world. We find the disciples in the storm—

I. Fearful—but Not in Danger (vv. 23-27).

The Son of God—who had become Son of man—showed His true humanity by that weariness which made Him sleep through a tempestuous storm such as often came upon Lake Galilee. "Like a general in time of war Jesus slept when He could."

As He calmly slept, fear of destruction laid its deadly grip upon the hearts of the disciples. For the moment they saw only the angry waves, the smallness of their craft, the hopelessness of their situation, apparently forgetting that with Christ in the boat they were in no danger, in spite of the fearfulness of their surroundings and circumstances.

Is this not clearly a lesson for us in this day so full of alarms and fears? If we think of circumstances and conditions round about us we shall be overcome with fear—and well we may, if we do not have Christ with us in the boat of life. But if He is there—if we are His in the kinship of regenerating grace—we are in no danger. Shall we not accept the tender rebuke, "Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith?" (v. 26).

The majestic scene of Christ stilling the tempest, reminds us not only that He can control any force of nature, but also that there is no storm of heart or mind or life to which He cannot authoritatively say, "Peace, be still" (Mark 4:39). Will you trust Him with your problem?

On the other side of the lake Christ met another kind of need—and cared for it. He there delivered two men who were—

II. Demon-dominated, but Not Hopeless (vv. 28-34).

There is only one devil, but he has many demons who do his bidding. The evidence is clear that these demons were able to enter into the personality of a human being and take control of the life. This was not insanity or a sickness of the body, but devil domination.

These two men (Mark and Luke speak only of one—perhaps the more violent of the two) were so strong and wicked because of the demon in them, that their relatives and friends had given them up as hopeless and had sent them out to live in the wilderness.

How horrible is the power of the devil in the life of any man or woman. But let us never forget that while no man can control such a situation (Mark 5:4), God is able. "With God all things are possible" (Matt. 19:26). We have not done all we can for our devil dominated friends and relatives until we have brought them to Jesus.

Notice that the demons recognized Christ as the Son of God (v. 29). They knew that He had the power to control them and that the day was to come when He would judge them.

The men were completely cured (Mark 5:15) as the demons were permitted to enter the herd of swine. Those poor beasts, apparently not content to harbor the evil spirits, cast themselves into the sea.

When the people of the land heard what had taken place they asked Jesus to leave. They evidently weighed the relative value of two men in their right mind over against a herd of swine and decided that they could not afford to have men delivered from the devil at such expense.

Unfortunately the "descendants" of those people seem to be in some of our churches today. They can afford anything in the way of luxury for themselves, but they are sure it costs too much to keep the church open — or to provide a preacher—or suitable equipment for the Lord's work. How unspeakably sad!

Perseverance

Soldiers must break step in marching over a bridge, for the vibration caused by their marching in step would shake down the most solid structure. And so it is with the spiritual obstacle you may meet: steady tramping, the plodding doing of your duty day after day, will in time tumbie it over. In any task to which God sets you perseverance is all the power you need.

SEVERAL SURE SIGNS

OF SPRING

Spring is around the corner, or is it?

A few signs that point toward spring have been noted here the past few days

Several people have reported seeing robins

One farmer says he has seen a number of meadowlarks the past few days

The Editor's wife saw a flock of ducks flying north Tuesday noon, and when she sees ducks— well anything can happen

But the surest sign of spring is when the kids start flying their kites, and that is just what they are doing— so spring must be at hand

The following article is from Enoch Norem's column "Straws" in the Mason City Globe Gazette·

"Lieut John A van der Linden formerly military editor on this newspaper and now postal officer for his division in Los Angeles. is provided with a chauffeur and a car

"One day this week he was assigned a new driver As they drove down a strange street the driver said—half to himself

"Well, if I were back in Mason City, I'd know my way around"

"Where?" asked John.

"Mason City."

"Mason City, what?"

"Mason City, Iowa," answered the driver

"And so two Mason Cityans, who had never met at home came together under the strange contingencies of war.

"The driver was Ted Kaduce, son of Mr and Mrs. John Kaduce of Klemme, who was working out of Mason City on REA at the time he was drafted five months ago

"And so you're John van der Linden who used to work for the Globe" commented Kaduce. "My folks take the Globe, and my girl friend is Laurene Van Hoosen, who works just around the corner from you at Klipto"

With that he pulled out of his pocket a clipping from the Globe-Gazette sports section, a picture of the Mason City high school basketball team with cutlines about how it was going to play Ames

"Ames," said John "That's my home town"

They had a good laugh They were no longer officer and private, but buddies from home"

Personally, we think news commentator H V Kaltenborn is going a bit two far in his radio broadcasts lambasting everyone in the government from the President on down

Some of his statements are far fetched and untruthful.

In his broadcast Sunday he went so far as to state that our fighting planes were inferior to those used by the enemy

It's just two bad some of our flyers in China, flying American-made planes, couldn't get their hands on Kaltenborn for just one minute — Kaltenborn would eat those words and like it!

Our flyers have proved time and again that our fighter planes are alright The American boys are certainly knocking the Japs out of the sky as fast as they come—doing it with those "inferior" planes that Kaltenborn talks about

It's about time some of these so-called "news commentators" are taken off the air.

Kaltenborn smells like bad medicine from here—and don't forget his full name is H. VON Kaltenborn. Very nice name or is it?

Weighted, Loaded Silk

Natural silk in its raw state is covered with a gummy substance which gives it a harsh feeling and a yellow, unsightly appearance When this material is removed by washing the skeins of silk. about four ounces are lost per pound of silk. The fiber is then brought back to its original weight by the deposition of tin phosphate. The tin used for this purpose is obtained by detinning tin cans and other waste tin scrap Silk fiber may be so loaded with this tin that the original pound of fiber may become almost double that weight Such silk feels heavy but does not wear well This excessive loading must be considered adulteration Rayon, on the other hand, is not subjected to loading.

NOTICE

No Restrictions On Home And Farm Buildings

Regardless of rumors, radio broadcasts, and other grapevine information, there are NO Government restrictions on home and farm building, according to William H Badeaux, Chairman of the Iowa Homes and Farm Buildings Foundation.

People desirous of building anything, can proceed providing all of the materials necessary for the project are definitely on hand. There are no government restrictions on lumber, cement, wallboards, plywood, clay products, roofing, millowrk, etc. Critical materials necessary for the nation's war effort are becoming scarce, such as copper wiring, conduits, metal goods, etc., but many substitutes have come into the market to replace critical materials.

Therefore, the one important thing for those contemplating building to keep in mind, is that there are NO RESTRICTIONS on building, and you can build if you have all materials to complete the project.

In defense areas, priorities can be secured on critical materials, not so in non-defense areas. Therefore, no project which will require a great amount of critical materials in non-defense areas should be started unless the builder is sure he can secure all of the materials necessary to complete thejob.

We Have A Good Stock Of Building Materials On Hand For Spring Building Projects

What Should You Save To Help?

ASHINGTON, D. C.—The following table issued by the Treasury rtment is intended as a savings yardstick for the average income-earner. It suggests how everyone of the 48,000,000 employed persons in the United States may participate in the war effort through the systematic purchase of Defense Savings Bonds.

"The job ahead of us is far bigger than most of us realize," Secretary Morgenthau declared in making the table public. "I know that the American people are ready to do their part to win the war. One of the ways we can do much more is by intensifying our effort in the purchase of Defense Bonds."

While persons without dependents may be able to set aside more than the suggested figures, persons with several dependents, or with other heavy family obligations, may be unable to save at the suggested rate, the Treasury Department pointed out.

Society is no comfort to one not sociable. Shakespeare

• EDITORIAL COMMENT

READING

Can you talk intelligently to anyone you may meet? Many of us cannot One good way of broadening one's knowledge is to read a great number of articles and a variety of subjects. By reading one can almost travel without leaving home Not only is reading a great help in educating oneself but also a recreation Especially for those whose work is physical, reading is very restful After one is through school his education does not stop We go right on learning for the rest of our lives, and one good source of this is reading.

• SPORTS FLASHES

FAREWELL TO THE SENIORS

The Shamrocks finished the regular season with a Seven Eagles Conference victory over a fast improving Goodell team 36 to 25

Altogether this year the Shamrocks have won 18 games and lost 2, those being to Britt and Swaledale The Shamrocks are the '42 Hancock County Champs, beating class A schools, and are also the Seven Eagles Conference Champs winning all of the conference games

Brinkman, one of the finest guards in the county, played his last scheduled game He has been the spark plug of getting rebounds from the opponents basket. He also made baskets when they were needed For instance, at Crystal Lake when everyone was "cold" Brinkman hit the hoop for fourteen points and did a nice defensive game too

Other Seniors who are reserves are Bock, Coobs. and Schulz. Charlie helped when needed He saved one game for us. That was the Crystal Lake game here The chips were down and Klemme was behind 1 point with only a few seconds to go Charlie came in and dropped in a basket from center and put the Shamrocks in the lead Coobs played quite a few games at the end of the season. He is a fine defensive man and when we needed a basket Coobs usually came through by dropping one in from out in the front court. Schulz knew nothing about basket ball when he came to K. H S, but developed into a nice guard and was the spark plug in the Little Shamrock games. He played some on the varsity squad and did a good job of it If he had another year the team would have a hard time keeping their positions with this opposition.

F. SUBMARINES were not actually torpedoing Allied ships just off the Atlantic coast I'd suspect that the newspaper headlines and stories announcing their presence were the work of a very smart press agent for Columbia Pictures. For their new picture, "The Invaders," tells of the attempted invasion of Canada, through the Gulf of St. Lawrence, by the crew of a German sub. Made in England, it stars Raymond Massey, Laurence Olivier and Leslie Howard, before ever a hostile periscope approached our coastline.

When Director Michael Powell was casting "The Invaders" he remembered a child actress, Glynis Johns, whom he'd seen four years ago in an English picture, "South Riding." He told her then that if he ever needed a child actress the job would be hers. He needed a young lady for "The Invaders," remembered that she might be one by now—and 18-year-old Glynis got the role.

Paramount reminds us that it's just about a year since Veronica Lake was introduced to the public; reminds us also that 1941 brought us other promising young actresses, notably Gene Tierney, Alexis Smith,

VERONICA LAKE

Maria Montez, Jane Russell and Kathryn Grayson, but that Veronica practically became a national institution, thanks to the one-eyed hair-do that made her famous.

—*—

"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" put two new words into common usage "pixilated" and "doodling." Long before that everybody was saying "Yez you," after they'd seen "What Price Glory?" Paramount very much hopes that their wacky domestic comedy, "Mr. and Mrs. Cugat," will do the same for "whiffle," meaning to exaggerate flagrantly; Betty Field does it in the picture.

—*—

Pat O'Brien's contract with 20th Century-Fox has been "amicably terminated," and he's going to co-star with George Raft in Universal's "Broadway." He signed with Fox a year ago to make two pictures; the first was abandoned, but he was paid, and he objected to the second one. So Fox let him go to Universal on loan-out, to wind up his contract.

Francia White, soprano star of the radio phone hour, would hardly have time to accept an honorary title, what's that busy these days; is on a touring tour of 65 army camps, has 65 concert dates in as many cities—and still does her regular broadcasts.

Tay Garnett, for years one of the best motion picture producers and directors, has entered the radio field; the Tay Garnett Radio Productions give you "Three Sheets to the Wind" Sunday evenings on the NBC-Red network. John Wayne of movie stars, Helga Moray, English stage and screen actress, plays opposite him. The series deals with Atlantic adventure against a world of wise background.

Rudy Vallee saw service in the last war as a third class seaman on a destroyer; had to add a couple of years to his real age to get in. But he has the satisfaction of knowing that he got into the navy the first time the hard way.

This Golden, Fluffy Omelet Captures Interest
(See Recipes Below)

Lenten Meals

Eggs, cheese, fish and vegetables—these are the foods that will be popular with the market basket during the next few weeks. If you are going to form the bases for your menu from these dishes cook them just as carefully as you do the meat that you use year 'round, for you can't take chances and let mealtime become dull or unattractive.

Point up fish and vegetables with lemon or other attractive sauces and flavorings. Serve your egg and macaroni dishes in attractive settings, with some carefully thought out garnish. Play up fruit and dessert numbers to lend interest to meals. If you heed these simple rules, I'm sure they'll make Lent especially attractive for you and your family.

Now, for some concrete help, I've chosen foods to fit the season. They're vitamin, mineral and interest-laden.

Macaroni Cheese Custard.
(Serves 6 to 8)

1 package macaroni, cooked
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups grated cheese
2 tablespoons onion, chopped
2 tablespoons parsley, chopped
1 pimiento, chopped
Salt and pepper
2 cups evaporated milk

Combine ingredients and pour into a buttered baking dish. Set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven for 45 minutes.

An appetite-satisfying omelet? You can't believe it? Well, this one is, because it's made with a cream cheese and chive mixture that makes the omelet heartier, and also keeps it from shrinking discouragingly the moment it comes from the oven. A slow oven is essential to a fluffy, orange-gold omelet:

Cream Cheese Omelet.
(Serves 6)

¼ pound cream cheese with chives
3 eggs
2 tablespoons milk
Salt and pepper

Soften the chive cream cheese, blend in egg yolks one at a time. Add milk and seasonings. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a well-buttered, heavy frying pan and cook over low heat until bottom begins to brown. Then place in a moderate (325-degree) oven until the top is dry and the mixture firm. Fold and serve.

The name is goldenrod because the dish bears a close resemblance to a flower of that name. Just combine the goldenrod eggs with a tempting green spinach ring and you have a real Lenten treat:

Spinach Ring With Goldenrod Eggs.
(Serves 8)

4 pounds spinach
½ cup salad oil
1 tablespoon salt
¼ cup lemon juice

Wash and pick over spinach carefully. Place in kettle without adding water. Pour oil over spinach and mix thoroughly. Add salt and cook 8 to 10 minutes. Stir occasionally. Drain and chop. Add lemon juice and pack into an oiled 9-inch ring mold. Unmold on serving platter and fill with:

Goldenrod Eggs.
¼ cup melted butter
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste
2 cups milk
4 hard-cooked eggs

Blend butter and flour, salt and pepper. Heat mixture and add milk gradually. Stir after each addition of milk to make a smooth sauce. Separate egg yolks and whites. Slice whites and add to prepared sauce. Pour sauce into unmolded spinach ring. Press yolks through a sieve to top sauce. Garnish with paprika, parsley and lemon quarters.

Carrot, Pineapple, Raisin Salad.

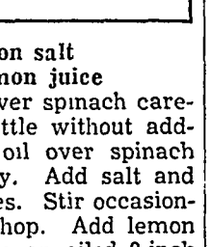
Wash, scrape, and grate carrots finely, allow 2 carrots per person. Add cut pineapple, and either white or muscatel raisins and enough mayonnaise to hold mixture together.

A souffle is a properly dramatic Lenten dish, but one which must be baked carefully if it is to come to the dining room at the peak of goodness. Select a cheese that will cook readily and smoothly, a dish that is in good proportion to the souffle, and cook the mixture at a very low temperature so it can rise to its height slowly.



Cheese Souffle.
(Serves 6)

4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of cayenne
½ pound processed cheddar cheese
6 eggs

Make a sauce of the butter, flour, milk and seasonings. When thick and smooth, remove from fire and add sliced cheese. Stir until cheese is melted. Add beaten egg yolks and mix well. Cool mixture, fold in stiffly beaten whites. Pour into a 2-quart casserole, bake 1¼ hours in a slow (300-degree) oven. Serve at once.

Cookies spell cheer to menus, especially if there's fruit to go with them. Made in two layers, these are a delightful variation of drop and "cut-in-squares" cookies:

Cornflake Dream Bars.
(Makes 40 bars)

First part:
¼ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar
1 cup flour

Second part:
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup shredded coconut
1 cup cornflakes
1 cup chopped nutmeats

Blend butter and sugar thoroughly. Add flour and blend with fork or dough blender. Press mixture evenly and firmly into bottom of a shallow pan (9 by 13-inch pan). Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven about 15 minutes or until delicately browned.

Beat eggs well, add sugar gradually and beat until light and fluffy. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Drop by spoonfuls on top of previously baked crust and spread evenly. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven about 25 minutes. Cut into squares while still warm.

Lynn Says:

Sauces that accent the best flavor in foods include these:

Lemon Butter: 2 parts butter to 1 part lemon juice. This is good on the leafy vegetables, cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts and artichokes.

Vinegar Butter: Melt ½ cup butter, add 2 tablespoons vinegar and heat thoroughly. This is good on green beans.

Mustard Butter: Add just a bit of dry mustard to melted butter before pouring on vegetables. With this, onions, greens or broccoli are indicated.

Parsley Butter: Chop 3 to 4 tablespoons parsley fine, add to ½ cup melted butter.

Tart Sauce: (also good on fish) Put in double boiler 2 egg yolks, ¼ cup cream, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, flick of nutmeg. Cook until thick and creamy, stirring constantly about 2 minutes. Be careful not to overcook. Stir in slowly, 2 tablespoons butter and serve at once.

PATTERNS
SEWING CIRCLE

DOESN'T this picture of our two attractive aprons inspire you to start a sewing bee at once? Both are so pleasing in style and so easy to make! And either of them will add decided charm to your home attire.

One pattern, No. 1538-B gives complete directions, for making both styles. You'll like the pinafore for day-long duty. Slip it on over your head, tie it in back—and there it is, firmly adjusted, neatly in place no matter how active you may be. The wide gracefully shaped belt actually slims your figure at the waistline. The full skirt is generously cut to give your dress complete protection.

You'll certainly want several versions of the smaller apron! They can be so decorative in bright checked ginghams, striped chambrays and plain broadcloth.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1538-B is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) pinafore apron requires 2½ yards 35-inch material, 4½ yards ric rac. Small apron, size 16, 2 yards 32-inch material. Send order to:

Feeding Sows...

Before and After Farrowing

Authorities agree that self-feeding protein supplements and at the same time, self-feeding grain is the best method of hog feeding, but we know that BROOD SOWS cannot be fed that way and some feeders want to know how much grain should either be mixed with, or in case of hand-feeding, fed with protein supplements such as

Felco 40 Percent Hog Balancer

We do not think SOWS should be self-fed BEFORE FARROWING even though the supplement is mixed with grain It is better to hand feed according to the needs and general conditions but to give an idea about what the percentage should be, we made inquiry and the following is information we received from good authority

"I do not think it good financial procedure to mix supplement with grain and self-feed sows before farrowing but it can be done and I would mix about as follows:

For Sows in Dry Lot:
First half of period, 72 pounds or corn, 20 oats and 8 supplement For last half of period, 68 corn, 20 oats and 12 supplement I would keep alfalfa hay and a simple mineral before them.

For Sows on Green Pasture:
First half of period, 85 corn, 10 oats, and 5 supplement Last half of period, 80 corn, 10 oats and 10 supplement Also self-feed simple mineral.

For Sows Suckling Litter:
After sow is gradually brought to full feed, about ten days after farrowing, either in pasture or in dry lot, I would use 75 corn, 10 oats and 15 supplement Also mineral self-fed and if in dry lot, alfalfa hay self-fed."

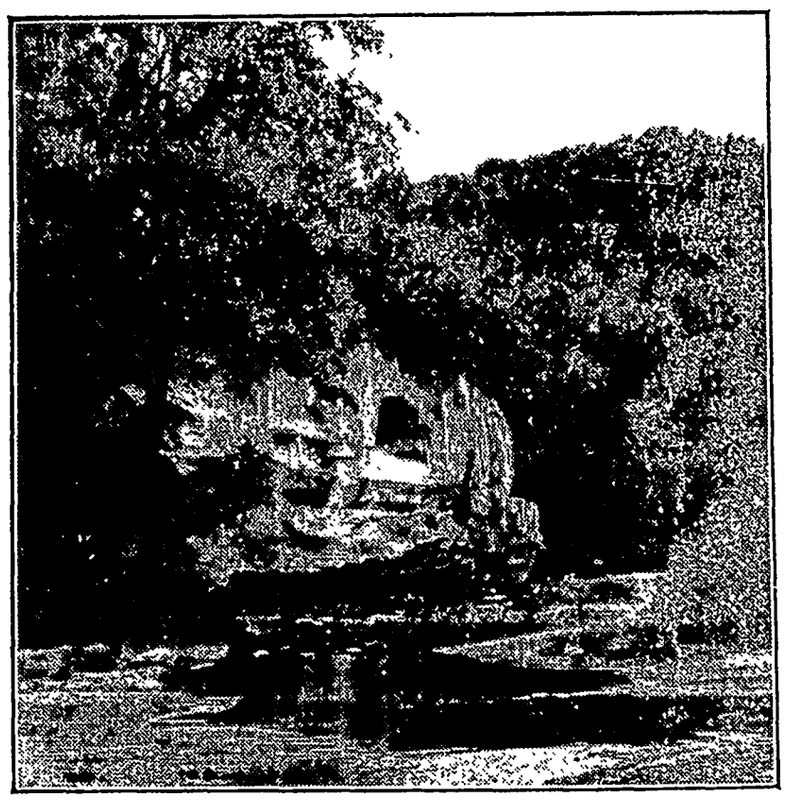
CONSERVATION COMMISSION TO ERECT MEMORIAL TO M. L. HUTTON



View In The Beautiful Ledges State Park. Near Boone, Iowa

The State Conservation Commission last week authorized the erection of a memorial to its first director, the late Murray L. Hutton. Mr. Hutton, an engineer by profession, was employed by the State Board of Conservation from 1929 until its consolidation with the Fish and Game Department in 1935, to form the present Conservation Commission. At that time he was appointed director of the new Commission, a position which he held until his death in 1941. Under Hutton's direction, leadership, and inspiration, the Iowa recreation system reached its present high state of development.

The memorial is to be located at The Ledges, one of Mr. Hutton's favorite parks, and on Sunset Point overlook, one of his favorite views in the park. Definite plans for design and construction of the monument are being made.

Women Are Not Only Behind America's Defense Program—They Are Part of It

Bridge and Fancy Hats Are Discarded in Favor Of Hard Work.

By JANET CUPLER
(Released by Western Newspaper Union)

You have probably heard it said with great enthusiasm that the American women are doing their part in the nation's war effort. And, by way of explanation, you have probably heard it said that "morale is a woman's business" and that there is something called the "home front" on which women are best qualified to wage their own particular kind of battle. But there seems to be some doubt as to just what part women are actually playing in this war. There is doubt, too, as to what "morale" and the "home front" have to do with it.

Most of us are aware that the "home front" involves battles of production, of food, clothing and housing, of protection from attack, of the constructive and determined courage we refer to as "morale." Morale is, of course, not exclusively a woman's business any more than the opportunity to fire a gun at the enemy is a man's exclusive right But behind every shot fired on the battlefield lies a series of duties that make that shot possible. And it is those duties that women have been performing, willingly and with admirable skill.

Without the proper food a nation, as well as its armed forces, cannot survive Therefore, a large part of the national defense program and the work of women's organizations is being devoted to food The Office of Civilian Defense offers consumers' information and classes in nutrition, and all who can are urged to plant gardens The "Victory Program" of the 4-H clubs helps members to grow and preserve food and teaches them how to prepare foods having a high vitamin content.

Learn to Repair Clothes.

The Senior Service Scouts, Girl Scouts of high school age, are learning the principles of nutrition, emergency outdoor cooking and gardening The Camp Fire Girls' defense project, called "Fortifying the Family," is a three-part program of which the most important part is "family food" The girls prepare a "dinner for a dollar" which serves four

On the "home front" clothing and housing are next in importance to food Shortage of materials makes it increasingly necessary to care for what we already have In the "family service" program of "Fortifying the Family" Camp Fire Girls are urged to repair furniture and other articles and help keep the house clean The senior Girl Scouts are learning to clean, repair and remodel clothing for emergency distribution and to assist at housing information centers and air raid shelters The Red Cross "home service" helps families of enlisted men and is prepared to care for the victims of disaster. The 4-H "Victory Program" also includes helping to make and repair clothing And the OCD has an "emergency food and housing" division

This has at various times been called a "war of production" and a "war of nerves" It is certainly at all times a war of production On the farm and in the factory, women are taking the place of men called into the service. Schools and colleges are offering many types of defense study. The University of Chicago, for example, is training women in business administration. At Stevens college, in Missouri, the girls are studying mechanics. And the NYA is training young women for work in defense factories.

The 4-H clubs' "Food for Freedom" program is designed to train girls as well as boys to assume a larger responsibility for the management of farms where there is a shortage of labor. Both the Camp Fire Girls and the Girl Scouts are learning to care for younger children and to do routine household work to leave their mothers and older sisters free to work in factories or at other defense tasks

If we have not yet had to face the test of a real "war of nerves," we have at least had ample proof of the need for maintaining a high national morale. Health, recreation, congenial working conditions and a courageous outlook all contribute to the maintenance of a high morale.

Health and Recreation.

The OCD offers a national health and recreation program for women The Red Cross voluntary services for women include recreation work with convalescents. The Camp Fire Girls' "Fortify the Family" project offers a plan for "family fun," and the Girl Scouts and the 4-H clubs also emphasize the importance to national defense of health and recreation

Such organizations as the U S O. and Bundles for Bluejackets are concerned chiefly with the comfort and recreation of service men The U S O. operates canteens in railroad stations, furnishes recreation centers, and acts as co-ordinator between private families and the service men invited to their homes for dinner or entertainment. The Red Cross also operates canteens wherever and whenever needed.

The Camp Fire Girls have been sending cookies, cake and candy to service men through their public relations officers. The Service Scouts work in canteens operated by such recognized agencies as the U S.O. And Bundles for Bluejackets is planning a recreation program for men in the naval services.

When the United States entered the war, the Bundles for Britain organization "adopted" the navy, the marines and the coast guard under the name "Bundles for Bluejackets." As such it provides comfort kits (containing razors, pencils and other small items) and knitted garments for men in those branches of the service and was probably the first organization to do knitting planned especially for the navy.

One of the major problems of the national defense program has been that of fitting the right person to a job. Recognizing that need, another women's organization, the American Association of University Women, is devoting its efforts to helping its members find the kind of defense work for which they are best suited. Since many members of the A A.U. W are teachers, they have been successfully furnishing libraries for service men, who are apparently more interested in text books—especially in mathematics, history and Spanish—than in fiction.

Finally, there is the splendid work being done in overseas, hospital, ambulance and other special services, the importance of which cannot be overestimated The Red Cross volunteer services include the motor, nurse's aide and recreation corps, all prepared to serve either at home or in the field, and throughout the country hundreds of thousands of women are rolling bandages, sewing and knitting for the Red Cross. Army nurses have already been sent overseas with our armed forces, and Red Cross nurses and staff workers are stationed in many parts of the world.

While not exclusively a woman's organization, the British American Ambulance corps has many women volunteers. The work of the corps has, until the present emergency, been largely overseas, but New York city, Philadelphia and San Francisco have already been provided with ambulances, and units will be sent to other cities as they are needed.

The activities of the American Women's Voluntary Services group is chiefly localized in the eastern states, although the work of the A.W.V.S. is similar to that being done by other volunteer organizations in teaching air raid precautions and other defense activities.

Above all, each of these organizations is doing its part in the national defense program, and each is helping the others. The Camp Fire Girls have been knitting for the Red Cross, and at Christmas they filled hundreds of comfort kits for Bundles for Bluejackets. The Girl Scouts' senior service program includes training in defense activities and in aiding the U.S O. and the Red Cross. The Red Cross first aid courses are offered as a defense measure And the 4-H "Victory Program" stresses the practice of democratic principles as well as the need for giving assistance to the Red Cross and the U S O.

There is some duplication, of effort, of course, especially by the various motor corps. But on the whole the effort of all groups is directed to the same end—national defense.

A discussion as brief as this cannot possibly include all the work being done by women in their homes, local communities, churches and clubs. But the work of the organizations already discussed is representative. Whether they knit, serve overseas, work in factories, drive ambulances or just do their everyday jobs cheerfully and well, the American women are not only behind the war effort but definitely a tangible, efficient and indispensable part of it.

Bridge, fancy hats and even petty squabbles have been discarded in favor of hard work. Those who still look upon the war as an inconvenient interruption of their otherwise comfortable complacency are the exception rather than the rule.

Dried Products Help Solve Food Rationing Problem

WASHINGTON. — The next few months will undoubtedly bring some changes in our menus, but government experts agree there is no cause for alarm.

Whether or not we will be able to obtain the same kinds of food is a question that is not so easy to answer, but the bureau of home economics of the U. S. department of agriculture has several suggestions to offer. One of them is the use of dried or dehydrated products.

In addition to the fact that dried soup, fruits, vegetables, eggs and other products are a comparatively satisfactory substitute for those bought fresh from the market, they have the additional advantage of being compact and light in weight

If tightening of transportation facilities continues, and if tin cans are scarce or unavailable, that will be an important factor in determining the commercial use of such products.

Going to Washington? Then Read This First

So you're going to Washington? Good girl! You probably have a job, or you wouldn't have that determined look in your eye that says so clearly "I'm going, and nothing you can say will stop me."

Not for anything would anyone (not even the oldest and wisest of us!) want to stop you, but there are a few minor details you might like to know about before you step blithely off the train, run up against them yourself, and then wish when it's too late that someone had told you.

To begin with, 80 per cent of the new arrivals in Washington are girls, and 70 per cent of the available rooming space is listed "for men only" And then, there are the lines—you'll find them everywhere, at the movies, at the theaters, at the cafeterias, at the employment bureaus—blocks and blocks of them.

And there's the question of dates. You may like to stay at home night after night But if you have a sneaking suspicion that you will inevitably meet an admiral or a general who will, of course, take you to the Mayflower every night, better bring along a good supply of mystery stories, because the answer is "no"

Of course, Washington has its brighter side. You will, if you're lucky, make a little more money than you made back home. You may meet some very interesting people. And, because you are working for the government, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you are doing your small part for victory But you'll enjoy it all much more if you agree before you go to take all the inconveniences in your stride

And salaries and wages are not as high as all that! Some girls start at $1,260, most at $1,440.

U. S. MOUNTAIN WARFARE

The army is buying pitons, karabiners, ice axes, skis, sleeping bags and parkas, to be used not in an expedition to the North pole but in preparation for warfare on snow-clad mountain sides.

If you ask what mountain sides the reply is: "We are preparing for any emergency." Army chiefs have carefully noted what has been done in Europe in mountain and winter warfare, and they intend that U. S. troops be trained in the same tactics.

Today, in the Railroad Retirement building (headquarters of the quartermaster corps) you can find a group of men known as "the Cold Climate Clothing and Equipment unit" They are ski experts and mountain climbers, who know by rigorous experience what is needed for life in the cold latitudes and high altitudes.

They are Bestor Robinson of the National Ski association; Robert H. Bates, editor of "Five Miles High"; and William House, a famed climber and explorer Working indoors ten hours a day, they are preparing specifications for the best military skis, the best goggles, boots, and high-pressure stoves that can be carried in a knapsack.

Note: Germany's expert in mountain warfare, Paul Bauer, carried out his last peacetime mountain climbing exploit in the Nanga Parbat expedition in India in 1938—with the consent and co-operation of the British government.

MRS. WOODROW WILSON

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson sewed for soldiers 25 years ago, and now she's doing it again.

Every Wednesday morning, she meets at the swank Sulgrave Club for Red Cross sewing with Mrs. Jesse Jones, and Mrs. D. Buchanan Merriman, better known as the duchess of Windsor's "Aunt Bessie"

After the sewing, they lunch at the club, then adjourn to Mrs. Jesse Jones' apartment at the Shoreham hotel, or to Mrs. Wilson's home on S street, for bridge.

The lady who, as "the beautiful widow Galt," set all the town talking during World War I, still sets the town talking wherever she appears today She gives her name freely to Democratic party and patriotic causes, but her most regular activity is providing floral decorations for the Wilson shrine at the National Cathedral She has made a study of floral arrangements, personally supervises the decoration every few days.

Measured by the code of the cave dwellers, Mrs Woodrow Wilson is an active woman, but she stares in amazement at the activity of the First Lady of World War II.

SUGAR SHORTAGE

If there is an investigation of the sugar shortage, certain agriculture department masterminds will have to do a lot of explaining.

Few know that these masterminds, over the protests of domestic beet - sugar producers, last year forced a reduction of sugar-beet acreage of from 17 to 20 per cent; also that cane which would have yielded 300,000 tons of sugar was left to rot in Puerto Rican fields because processing was prohibited.

Sugar producers on the other hand, vigorously urged that domestic quotas be lifted to permit maximum output. But the agriculture moguls refused to heed these warnings. Led by Secretary Claude Wickard, they insisted the United States had ample sugar supplies for all needs—and they kept on chorusing this refrain right up to a few weeks ago when Wickard, as a guest speaker on Mrs. Roosevelt's Sunday night radio program, completely changed his tune and broke the news that sugar would have to be rationed.

Wickard bases the shortage on two grounds: (1) heavy demands from our Allies, particularly Russia, whose sugar producing region has been devastated by the Nazis; (2) greatly reduced imports from the Philippines and Hawaii.

The Philippines are out, but not Hawaii. Large munitions shipments are constantly going to these islands, and sugar is coming back.

Agriculture department tycoons are making a big ado about how essential their activities are to the war effort. One essential might be less bungling in unrestricting farm production.

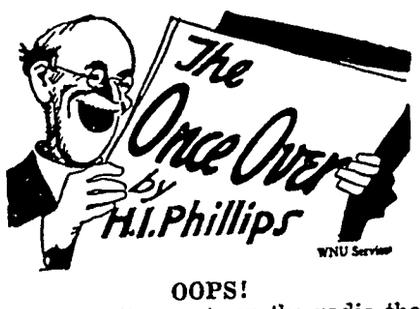
Note: Puerto Rico now has on hand, and waiting to be ground, more sugar-cane than it is allowed to process under the production quota set by the agriculture department

NAZI RAIL SHORTAGE

The United States government has difficulty getting accurate reports of conditions in Germany these days. But from a neutral listening post comes the following:

Germany is suffering an acute shortage of rail equipment. Civilians have been instructed not to travel anywhere on the railroads, except on the most urgent business. Penalties for violation of this rule are severe.

About 130,000 freight cars are believed to be in use in Russia or in the Russian campaign.



OOPS!

Believe it or not, on the radio the other night a commentator had spent most of his time discussing the rubber crisis, and had ended with the words "Rubber is one of our greatest needs," when the announcer went into his eulogy of a cigar.

A.—About two years.
Q.—You're older than that!
A.—Oh, I thought you meant the age of my old tires.

Q.—What kind of car is it?
A.—Pretty good except for the rubber.
Q.—I mean what make?
A.—It's a flivver.
Q.—Are you a doctor, nurse, military officer or veterinarian?
A.—No, but in this emergency anything can happen to me.
Q.—Do you use your car exclusively for delivering ice, coal, wood or oil?
A.—No, it only LOOKS that way!

Q.—Is it used to transport farm products?
A.—No; those apples have been on the floor for three months.
Q.—Do you use it in garbage collection?
A.—No; the kids mess it up that way.
Q.—How many people in your family?
A.—Six.
Q.—What is your wife's maiden name?
A.—Jennie.
Q.—Where are you employed?
A.—Say, am I here to get a new tire or some new life insurance!

Q.—We've got to be careful to conserve rubber. It's important to be sure you are the sort of person who would get the most out of a tire. Got to know your background
A.—I'm a special case. My wife's relatives live with me and they all demand transportation in my car.
Q.—It's not a bus!
A.—That's what you think!

Q.—From all the facts, I do not think we can classify you for a certificate above the rate of D-12.
A.—What's the top class?
Q.—A-3.
A.—Never mind a new tire. I'll settle for a tire patch and a used inner tube!

Essay on Cow Leaves Little to the Imagination

The cow is a mammal. It has six sides, right, left, an upper and below. At the end it has a tail on which hangs a brush With which it sends the flies away so that they do not fall into the milk

The head is for the purpose of growing horns and so that the mouth can be somewhere.

Under the cow hangs the milk. It is arranged for milking.

The cow has a fine sense of smell, one can smell it far away. This is the reason for the fresh air in the country.

The cow does not eat much, but what it eats it eats twice so that it gets enough. When it is hungry it moos, and when it says nothing it is because all its inside is full up.—Schoolboy's essay on a cow.

Toast for St. Patrick's Day . . . Pineapple Frosties!
(See Recipes Below)

Shamrock Fare

Take your cue from good luck day and let your menu wear green!

Bring out your best Pat and Mike jokes and touch up your food for the day with a dash of imagination by applying a green brush stroke, for these are the things which put a halo on your head.

There's a hint of spring in the green touches and in the lightness of this season's menus, so whisk these two elements into your food to give it exciting personality.

With simplicity your keynote and economy your guide, here are some menus for small entertaining on St. Patrick's day.

Menu I.
Afternoon or Evening Snack
Pineapple Frosties
Finger Sandwiches
Pop Corn Nougat

Menu II.
Bridge Refreshments
Shamrock Salad
Prune Bread With Cream Cheese Spread
Coffee or Tea Cornflake Chews

A drink with plenty of tang and vitamins is this one called a Pineapple Frosty. Its vitamins B1 and C will boost your energy quota and at the same time give your teeth and bones and gums a new lease for spring.

Pineapple Frosties.

For each serving use a six-ounce glass of unsweetened pineapple juice and a generous scoop of sherbet. Chill a large beating bowl, add well-chilled pineapple juice. When the sherbet begins to soften, beat the ingredients until they are well-blended and frothy. A jar or shaker or automatic beater may be used to blend these together.

Pop Corn Nougat.

1½ cups corn syrup
1½ cups sugar
½ cup warm water
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons honey
2 egg whites
1 cup chopped pop corn
2 tablespoons candied cherries, cut fine

Cook syrup, sugar, water and salt until brittle when tried in cold water Put honey in a large bowl, place over pan containing hot water to keep honey warm. While candy is cooking, beat egg whites stiff and fold through honey. When syrup is cooked to the proper stage, pour it slowly over the honey and egg, beating hard with wooden spoon. Beat until the surface has a satiny appearance Fold in pop corn and cherries, press into buttered pan.

Ever so good, ever so simple, and very pretty describes this light green salad in today's column. The grapefruit and lime flavored gelatin are a spirited combination that work the right kind of magic.

This Week's Menu:

Baked Haddock *Tartar Sauce
Lyonnaise Potatoes
*Orange Squash
*Shamrock Salad
*Prune Bread Butter and Honey
Chilled Pears Cornflake Chews
*Recipes Given

Shamrock Salad.
(Serves 6)

1 package lime flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
¾ cup cold water
¼ cup grapefruit juice
1¾ cups grapefruit sections
¼ cup finely chopped celery
Pimientos

Pour hot water over gelatin. Add cold water and grapefruit juice. Chill until mixture thickens, add grapefruit and celery. Arrange pimientos cut into shamrock shapes around sides of a mold or at the bottom. Pour mixture into mold, chill until firm, unmold and garnish with grapefruit sections and greens.

A favorite breakfast cereal and prunes are a healthy merger for this home-made bread. The fruit and cereal are food affinities. The result, an excellent bread that stays moist for days, is good sliced when fresh or when toasted:

Prune Bread.
(Makes 1 loaf)

2 cups bran cereal
⅔ cup juice from cooked prunes
⅔ cup chopped, cooked prunes
⅔ cup buttermilk
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon shortening
1 egg
1¼ cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons soda
⅓ cup chopped nutmeats, if desired

Soak cereal in prune juice. Add buttermilk. Cream sugar and shortening thoroughly, add egg and beat well. Add bran cereal mixture. Sift dry ingredients, add to prunes and nutmeats. Add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Bake in a greased loaf pan in a moderate (325-degree) oven, 1 hour and 20 minutes.

The orange flavoring gives a delightful touch to the squash which is colorful served in orange cups.

Orange Squash.
(Serves 6)

3 cups cooked Hubbard squash
⅓ cup orange juice
3 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper
¼ cup chopped almonds

Bake or steam squash until tender (1½ to 2 hours). Mash or rice. Add orange juice, butter, salt and pepper. Fill 6 orange shells with squash mixture, piling it in lightly. Top with chopped almonds. Bake until lightly browned in a hot (450-degree) oven. For best results use oranges that have clean, smooth skins which separate from the orange easily.

Tartar Sauce.

Popular and fitting accompaniment to fish is this sauce: Combine 1 cup mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon onion juice or 1 tablespoon chopped chives, 2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickle or green relish, lemon juice to thin to desired consistency.

While you're busy this season rolling bandages for the Red Cross, knitting for the soldiers, or baking for the boys at camp, you'll want to plan menus and dishes that take little time for preparation. With this in mind, I'm including a recipe for an excellent casserole that fills these requirements:

Shrimp Vegetable Casserole.
(Serves 6)

2 medium onions, sliced
1 green pepper, cut in rings
1 cup cooked peas
1 cup coarsely broken, wide noodles, uncooked
3 cups canned tomatoes
2 No. 1 cans shrimp, cleaned
3 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper

Place alternate layers of ingredients in greased casserole. Dot with butter and season with salt and pepper. Cover and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 1 hour.

Lynn Says:

As fish gains prominence in menus, are you wondering how you can make it appetite-tempting? Here is a guide:

Nice to dip in egg and bread crumbs and fry in shallow fat: perch, pike, haddock, halibut, cod, sole, lake trout, salmon, in steak or fillet form.

Good for baking with or without a stuffing the large fish, like whitefish, haddock, halibut, wall-eyed pike, salmon steaks, lake trout.

First class for deep-fat frying: oysters, shrimp, scallops. Dip these in beaten egg and crumbs and fry in deep, hot fat.

Baked in loaves or timbales: haddock, salmon, tuna, cod.

Stuffings that go well with baked fish: bread stuffing (the same kind you make for your fowl!); celery stuffing, or rice stuffing (try this with pike!). For rice stuffing, combine 1 cup cooked rice with ½ pound sauteed mushrooms, 2 tablespoons of chopped onion, 2 beaten eggs, ¼ cup celery, all cooked with ⅓ cup butter. This makes enough for a 3 to 4-pound fish.

JESUS THE MESSIAH FORETELLS HIS DEATH

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8 27-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—For whosoever will save his life shall lose it, but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.—Mark 8:35

Jesus came into the world as the Redeemer of men—and that means He came to die. The prophets who wrote centuries before His coming presented Him as both the suffering and the reigning Messiah However, to the minds of the Jewish people only the idea of His glory and kingship was acceptable, not of His suffering and death.

Apparently His own disciples had this same impression and it therefore became necessary for Jesus as He came to the last months of His earthly ministry to speak plainly to them about these matters.

I. Recognition of Christ by Faith (vv. 27-30)

As a foundation for right thinking on any spiritual question there must be recognition of Christ's deity. He drew forth such a confession from the disciples by asking who men said that He was Notice that while there was difference of opinion, all had a high opinion of Him, calling Him John the Baptist, Elijah, or one of the prophets. They knew that a great man was in their midst, and had to admit it, even though they hated and opposed Him But it is not enough to accept Christ as a great man, as a teacher, a prophet, or an example. Nor is it enough to tell what others think of Him. The question quickly becomes: "Whom say ye that I am?" Have you answered that question? What will you do with Jesus Christ?

Peter responded with a straightforward, heaven-born confession of Christ as the Son of the living God (cf. Matt. 16:16-18) upon which Christ established His church.

II. Rejection and Crucifixion Prophesied (vv. 31, 32).

The foundation of faith in Him having been laid, Christ plainly laid before the disciples the fact of His coming rejection and death. Notice the word "must" in verse 31. "There was an imperative necessity for these things. But why must He die? This question is fully answered elsewhere in the Bible (John 3:14; Heb. 9 22, Isa. 53:4-6; II Cor. 5:21; Gal. 3:13; I Pet. 2:24). There could have been no salvation for any sinner if He had not died (Gal. 3:10, 13; II Cor. 5:21; Rom. 3:20-26)" (John W. Bradbury).

Note also that He "must rise again" (v. 31). He died for our sins, but "was raised again for our justification" (Rom. 4:25).

III. Rebuke of Unbelief (vv. 32, 33).

Peter, quick to accept Jesus as the Son of God, permitted Satan to blind his mind to the necessity of the cross, and thus became a stumbling block of unbelief, calling forth a severe rebuke from Jesus.

It is a striking and humbling thought that the very one who a moment before spoke such acceptable words of recognition of Christ's deity could by unbelief so quickly become the tool of Satan "My soul, be on thy guard" lest such temptation overtake thee!

May we also learn from this incident that we do well to weigh the words of even good men lest in a moment of weakness or unbelief they say that which may lead us astray God's Word alone is sure!

IV. Requirements of Discipleship (vv. 34-37).

Following the Christ of Calvary calls for a willingness to say "no" to self (literally, to deny any connection with self-life) and to follow through with Him on the path of shame and crucifixion. No self-will and no compromise are permissible to Christ's disciples.

Foolishly to attempt to hold one's life for self is to lose it. That painful loss has left brokenhearted, wrecked lives all along the path of man's history. But why should any one do it? Equally foolish is the one who supposes that this world has anything to satisfy the human soul. Assuming the possibility of the impossible—that is, attaining the whole world as one's own possession—to do so at the cost of one's soul would be an indescribably poor bargain.

What then shall we say of those who barter their eternal souls for a mess of pottage, a moment of sensual satisfaction, or for a few paltry dollars? "What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" It is the unanswerable question.

Right Endures

When Christ preached the Sermon on the Mount he was mocked and later crucified; but the inspired truths that he uttered continue to live through the ages, defying crucifixion. We may doubt the divinity of the Christ, for the proof lies in the hereafter; but only by stultifying ourselves can we doubt the wisdom of the moral precepts he uttered.

FORTY MILE AN HOUR SPEED LIMIT

President Roosevelt has written the forty-eight state governors seeking a forty mile national speed limit to save tires Most motorists will no doubt voluntarily impose their own limit to save cars as well as tires

Iowa motorists, as a whole, are already driving at a lower speed

Not only will a forty-mile-an-hour speed save rubber, but it should also save a lot of lives and prevent many highway accidents

We will watch with interest in the months to come to see how it will affect the death rate compared with the same period a year ago We believe we will be happy over the result in Iowa

THE WAR BRINGS ON A NEW RACKET

A ghoulish legal racket upon relatives of war victims has been reported to authorities and is being investigated

Racketeers are supposed to be sending letters to "the next of kin" of those killed in action, and promising (for a fee) to represent them legally in their claims against the government

No one needs legal representation in this kind of claim against the government The law is quite clear and the War Department will promptly settle any claim that may arise Any "next of kin" would be very foolish indeed to throw money away in this apparent legal graft

War time breeds racketeering of all kinds so be on your guard

SPRING'S AROUND THE CORNER

Spring's just around the corner We know all the symptom Rooms are here stores are already displaying seeds nurseries are taking orders and the mister is showing signs of uneasiness notices that windows need washing, makes remarks about how bad the lawn looks now But, oh me, she brought home a variety of garden seeds Monday, and we are allergic to anything concerning a garden!

Spring is just around the corner and the scribe will be even around the corner further come time to take the lawn, burn old leaves take off the storm window put on the screen windows reluctantly dig in the garden and help plant the seeds what a gloomy picture!

By deep thought we may cook up a scheme to evade the coming drudgery, but it will be harder to to do than to sell a boat to the Swiss navy

We are out guning for the guy who invented garden

MY KINGDOM FOR A HORSE

Old Dobbin is really making a comeback if harness repair shops are used as a barometer

Our local harness shop, Kimball's Leather Store, has been unusually busy this winter repairing and oiling harness The past few years Mr Kimball was able to easily take care of the work, but this winter he has had to hire two men to help him and frequently all three had to work past midnight to get the work done

The other day Walt was asked by two different parties if he knew of anyone who had a buggy they would sell, while another man was looking for a spring wagon!

Someone once said, "A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse" And anytime now we may hear that cry for help by some motorist who has just had a tire blow out!

Yep, Dobbin is on his way back.

The Iowa State College seed testing labratory has received 12,000 samples for testing since Jan 1 This is more than half the entire number tested in 1940.

American Cheese Will Stand 'Aging' Long Time

A Welsh rabbit made with good, old cheese will not give anybody a nightmare

"Old" is a relative term in cheese. Some of the soft cheeses ripen in a month, some of the hard cheeses are at their best only after years in storage The United States government, in its purchases of American, or Cheddar-type, cheese for distribution to relief clients, set 14 weeks as the minimum time which this cheese should age to be fit for human consumption. But this cheese will stand aging indefinitely.

The cooking schools have taught women to appraise food with the eye, and green cheese does have nice, clean, bright-looking rind, whereas aged cheese is rather dingy-looking.

Then, too, the average American appears to prefer mild flavors; and green cheese hasn't had time to develop flavor.

Here, however, is a discovery about an age-old food: ripe cheese is mild in flavor if kept in a temperature of 45 or below. This is possible in the modern refrigerator, and it wasn't possible until the modern refrigerator was invented.

In a few hours out of the chill, it begins to pick up flavor; in a couple of days out, it is ready to go places; and after 72 hours in a warm room it may take the plate with it.

If you make a mistake and leave it out too long to suit your taste, no harm is done: pop it back in the cold and the strength will subside.

All cheeses respond more or less by varying their flavor with various lengths of exposure to warmth, but the American responds more reliably.

U. S. Cheese Consumption Among World's Lowest

The average American housewife appears to regard cheese as a flavoring. But basically cheese is a food, one of the best we have, being highly concentrated milk. Diet experts call it a good source of the calcium and phosphorus we should all get more of, a good source of vitamin A, a fair source of vitamin D, and containing appreciable quantities of the vitamin B complex and of vitamin C.

Americans use less cheese per capita than almost any nation; the Swiss the most. The average Sweitzer will get away with more than 23 pounds a year, the average Netherlander, Frenchman or Dane between 13 and 14 pounds; the average German or Englishman between 9 and 9½ pounds, and the average American or Canadian 4 to 4½ pounds. The figures are prewar.

They indicate clearly that Americans are not getting their share.

Belief in the indigestibility of cheese appears to be based on consumption of green or unripe cheese, which is more commonly sold in America than in most countries. Properly ripened cheese is easily digested, easily assimilated, and very nourishing, to those with normal digestive equipment.

Cancer Kills 100 Daily

Stomach cancer is killing nearly 100 persons in the United States every day, yet most of them could be saved if they would go to their physicians at the first signs of gastric trouble, Dr. T. F Mullen, San Francisco surgeon, asserted

Making a survey, Dr. Mullen found records of only 3,000 operations for the removal of stomach ulcer in the last 50 years in the United States During that time 1,500,000 deaths have been listed as due to that particular kind of malignancy His reports appeared in Surgery, Obstetrics and Gynecology, a medical journal. He is a clinical surgeon in the University of California medical school.

At any given time, Dr. Mullen said, there are 27,000 persons in the United States with curable cases of stomach cancer.

One Song Was Enough

He wrote one song and then slipped back into oblivion .. But today it is on everybody's tongue.

It starts, "O say, can you see . ?"

After a night-long bombardment of Ft. McHenry and Baltimore, finding the flag still flying, an American prisoner on a British warship scratched his emotions on an old envelope.

The music and meter of the "Anacreon in Heaven," a popular drinking song in both Europe and America, were doubtless running through the poet's mind. His name does not appear in the Patriot, nor did his verses get a title for several months. However, it was sung in Baltimore in about a week after it was written, one time when a hymn redeemed a tune from drunken barroom brawls.

Excessive Variety Monotony

Designing homes so that they will be in harmony with other houses in the neighborhood is sometimes a serious problem The federal housing administration urges developers to avoid both monotony and excessive variety of architectural effect. When a developer uses only a limited number of house plans, variety and interest may be secured by having sometimes the end elevation and sometimes the side elevation toward the street by placing the garages and by varying the setback line and the planting so interesting groupings are secured.

• THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY

We always have time enough, if we will but use it right —Goethe

A face that cannot smile is never.—Martial.

• EDITORIAL COMMENT

Friday morning an assembly was held in the gymnasium for the high school students and the Junior High students.

W C Keraus, the Mayor of Klemme, and J I. Overholt were our guest speakers They told us of the need of scrap iron for defense work in our country Mr Overholt and Lloyd Lau are in charge of collecting this from our community

We were told that it took fifty pounds of this metal to make one machine gun eighteen tons to make one medium sized tank, and much more for other machinery needed by the armed forces

If anyone has any metal such as zinc copper iron, steel, lead or any other metal besides tin, let Mr Overholt or Mr Lau know They will be glad to receive it Tin cans as yet have no use because it takes too much processing to make them valuable for defense materials Additional information about this may be received from either one of those two in charge

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin, as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and feel world's better. Get genuine Dr Caldwell's.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorders of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

America Can Be Licked:

That's not a slogan thought up by this hysterical alarmist. It's a quote from Adm. William M. Standley, new ambassador to Russia. It makes him an hysterical alarmist, too, which ought to make him a useful man to the gov't. New York had to have the war dumped on the doorstep before it realized the shooting had started. The burning of the Normandie woke the New Yorkers up. They let out the usual yell for scalps, but that was better than no yelling at all. They began to wonder what was going on. Well, what was? Lethargy's another of our crimes, Admiral Standley warns. Have a look at the country away from the coasts and you'll agree. The big idea there is, "The bombers can't reach us." To them, the only part of the U.S.A. at war is the part in danger of invasion. What makes those ostriches think the Nazis or Japs will hug the beaches? They love to travel.

The fault-finders who keep hollering that we don't know enough about Pearl Harbor don't even listen when you mention what the navy did later at the Gilbert and Marshall islands, Macassar strait and Java. That isn't the kind of news they like to monger.

Man About New York:

The United States did not create the pioneer spirit; the pioneer spirit created the United States. That spirit has never failed our people. It was in the gun-pits at Gettysburg, it was in the trenches in France, and it is in the foxholes of the Philippines.

The world picture is black today, but it was black in 1778, when Philadelphia and New York were in the hands of an enemy. It was blacker still when the capital was burned in 1814.

There were only 5,000,000 Americans then. But they taught Europe that though it could invade American territory it could never invade the American Spirit; that their artillery could crack an American fort, but never the unity of the Republic. The American people have won every war because they have continued to fight the enemy, not to question their own leadership. Five million Americans stood off the world because deep defeat could not divide them.

That tradition is worth more than all the gold in Fort Knox. Our schools can truthfully teach that there were no hoarders at Valley Forge—and the captain of the U. S. S. Constitution never had to ration Loyalty.

Today the tides of Manila Bay are ebbing and flowing, but not the patriotism of the surrounded Americans. Tokyo hopes they will soon run out of ammunition. Because even Tokyo admits that MacArthur's men will never run out of courage.

The stiletto mob didn't waste a second hopping on the R.A.F. when the Nazzy ships slid through Dover strait. All right, it was a blow that hurt. Hitler got his ships home. But who tied them up for months? The R.A.F. . . . Who fought off the invasion of England, and changed Germany's whole plan of the war? The Huns are on the Russian front today, taking a bloody beating, because the R.A.F. sent them there. But one setback is supposed to rub out all their glories. The toughest outfit of the war, with a record full of glory, is being crucified for losing one skirmish. The idea is not being promoted here, however, that everybody has to shut up. Blunders must not be excused, or inefficiency and plundering concealed. The chief thing is to notice who's doing the loudest yelling, and check back on his record. Lots of the mouthpieces aren't speaking in America's interest. You don't have to be slant-eyed to be a good Jap, or to have an accent to deliver a message from Berlin. Sure, America can be licked. But fevvensakes, don't let's lick ourselves.

This little anecdote about a prime minister and a reporter tells more about the stupid, short-sighted thinking that was almost fatal to democracies than all the intellectual essays ever written . . . Stanley Baldwin told a reporter: "I want it to be said of me that I never sent a single Englishman to die on a foreign battlefield" . "But, Prime Minister," he was reminded, "don't you see you are piling up trouble that will kill a million Englishmen in the next war?" . . . "That," said Baldwin calmly, "is a problem for my successor."

EDUCATORS HELP ON MACHINE CARE

Youths Shown Best Care of Farm Equipment.

By DR. A. K. GETMAN
(Chief of Agricultural Educational Bureau, New York State College of Agriculture.)

The training of rural youth in high schools and institutes throughout the states meshes with the states' programs of farm machinery repair and adjustment, in which repair clinics, tractor tune-ups, and field adjustment meetings for adults are planned during 1942

Since "victory in arms needs machines on farms," teachers of vocational agriculture in high schools, heads of departments of farm mechanics at technical institutes, and all school executives have been urged to co-operate with county agents and manufacturing agencies in the program under the general guidance of county agricultural defense committees.

A critical situation is ahead in maintaining and increasing American food production, and the current need is to put farm equipment in the best possible condition. It is imperative, he said, to use the present shop facilities and personnel to the utmost, and that all available public and private resources act together.

School garages, or similar buildings, it is pointed out, would make ideal places for farmers to bring their machinery for community repair clinics under engineers trained and employed by the state colleges of agriculture.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By Florence C. Weed

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Grape Refuse Salvage

Almost every state has commercial vineyards. California raises wine, raisin and table grapes or about 85 per cent of the total. Eastern grapes are grown for juice, wine and fresh market. Since imported French wines have been cut off by the war, this may increase the demand for domestic wines pressed in California, New York and Ohio.

At present, grape pomace left from winemaking is a waste material. Research is under way to find economical methods to recover crude tartrates from which come tartaric acid used in the manufacture of baking powder.

Raisin seeds were once a waste product. Now a California manufacturer is distilling raisin seed oil to use as a coating to prevent packaged raisins from sticking together. The oil offers a promising base for cosmetics since it contains better than average quantities of vitamin F. So far, it has not been economically practicable to utilize waste grape seeds from wineries in the East, because of the cost of transportation

The thrifty French have developed new outlets for their grape crop under the stress of war time. Since the start of hostilities they have been contributing to wartime fuel which is a mixture of gasoline and grape alcohol made by distilling grape skins after the juice is pressed out.

Soap, hard to obtain because of the dearth of fats, is being made from oil crushed from grape seeds, once discarded in the wine making process. Tons of natural sugar are being retrieved when fresh sweet grapejuice is boiled down Many of these products could not be economically produced if other products were available, but are worth doing in war time.

PROCLAMATION

The public response to numerous appeals for slower driving speeds to conserve rubber tires has been most gratifying, and the motor vehicle drivers of Iowa are to be congratulated for their prompt and patriotic cooperation.

I have received a letter from the President of the United States, in which he says:

"As you know, we are doing everything possible to conserve rubber The situation in the Far East makes this very necessary for the successful prosecution of the war effort

"It has been said that a large part of our rubber stock-pile is on the wheels of the more than 30 000,000 motor vehicles of the country. If this stock-pile is conserved by the individual motorists, as we are endeavoring to conserve the national stock-pile, tires will last much longer, cars will run much farther, and civilian life will be less disturbed because of lack of sufficient transportation facilities

"Rubber experts agree that fast driving wastes rubber and that tires run many more miles when driven at limited rates of speed. May I suggest that this waste could be curtailed to the advantage of the individual motorist, and likewise to the advantage of the country, if the speed of all motor vehicles were limited to a maximum of forty miles per hour and if regulations were promulgated requiring frequent checking of tires in order to insure their repair or, where possible, retreading at the proper time. I would greatly appreciate your cooperation in an effort to achieve these objectives throughout the country

"The tire rationing program, so recently established by the Office of Price Administration, has been a marked success and has met with ready acceptance throughout the United States, largely because of the enthusiastic cooperation and participation on the part of the Governors and their State defense councils Reduction of speed limits and regular inspection of tires constitute another important means of Federal-State cooperation in the war effort.

With all of the above, I am in full agreement, and I am confident there will be willing and patriotic cooperation from all drivers of motor vehicles in Iowa.

With each succeeding day's wear on the tires now on our cars, the danger of accident at higher speeds will increase. The matter of safety upon our highways is more important today than ever before. Statistics of recent accidents show a high percentage take men and women from the vital production lines.

Therefore, I, GEO. A WILSON, do hereby call upon all drivers of motor vehicles within the State of Iowa to observe careful and prudent speed, not to exceed forty miles per hour, for the duration of the war

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of the State of Iowa. Done at Des Moines this 17th day of March, in the Year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty-Two, of the State of Iowa the Ninety-Sixth, and of the Independence of the United States the One Hundreth and Sixty-Sixth

BY THE GOVERNOR:

Geo. A. Wilson

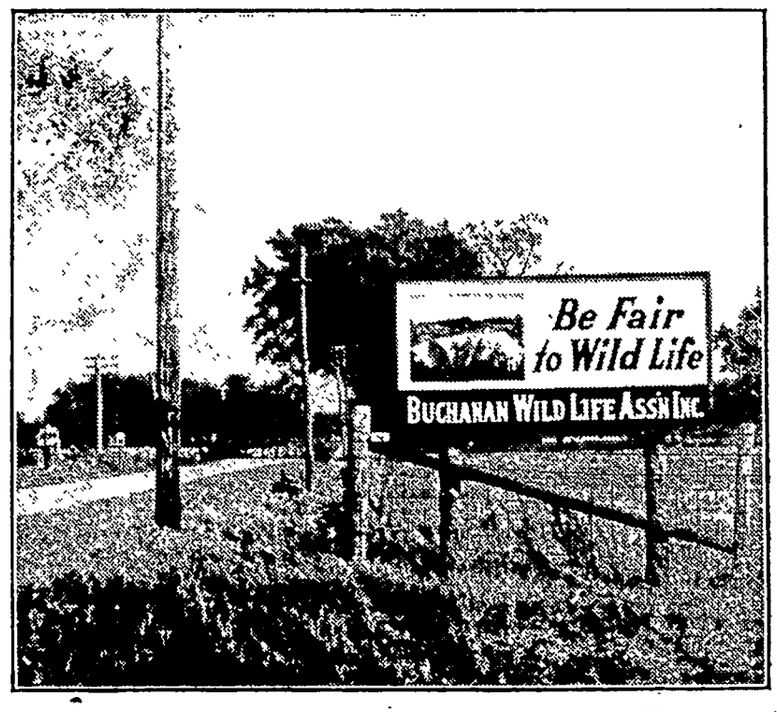
HEAVY SPRING HIGHWAY WILDLIFE LOSS



Four By Eight Foot Sign On Highway 20 Between Jefferson And Independence, Urging Motorists To Drive Carefully And Protect Wildlife.

The heaviest loss of wildlife on Iowa's highways occurs during the latter part of March and the first part of April. At this time of year cover is at its lowest effectiveness Last season's vegetation, flattened by wind, snow and rain, no longer provides satisfactory hiding places in much of the normal game area, and many species of wildlife are forced to the dangerous protection of the sheltered roadside ditches. Spring food supplies are low. Weed seeds and waste grain are at a minimum in the fields. Consequently the grains sifted onto the road in the farm to market movement form a tempting and often deadly invitation to game birds and other forms of wildlife. The mating season is in full swing and results in wide traveling by some species and a total loss of fear and caution in others. Spring on the highway is truly a dangerous season for the animals of field and forest. Drive slowly. Practice conservation—conservation of car, gas, oil, tires, human life, and wildlife.

U. S. Gardeners Aid in Nation's 'Victory' Drive

Increased Number of Gardens This Year Vital For Balanced Diets.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Uncle Sam's wartime food needs have put the all-but-forgotten family vegetable garden back on the map. Millions of Americans are now poring over seed catalogs, checking tools and eyeing likely planting sites.

Once the frost is gone, an army of gardeners recruited from farms, small towns and big cities will prepare the earth with spades and fertilizers. Then will come seeding, weeding and cultivating in a vast effort to produce plenty of fresh vegetables, F. O. B., the kitchen door.

This effort is part of a great national Victory Garden program. In the weeks since Pearl Harbor, officials of the U S department of agriculture have been consulting with gardening experts from every state. Organizations everywhere have pledged their aid—garden clubs, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, 4-H clubs. As the program develops, activities will follow two major lines:

1. Farmers and their families throughout the United States will co-operate by planting 5,760,000 vegetable gardens.
2. Small town and big city dwellers will sponsor community and school gardens, and wherever possible individual family Victory gardens.

This newest move in the war on the Axis is reminiscent in many ways of the stirring days of World War No 1, when back-yard gardeners did their bit to make good the slogan "Food Will Win the War." But there are wide differences, too, and it is hoped that many of the mistakes of the 1917-18 war garden program will be avoided this time.

Miss Peg reaps the results of having a garden of her own. The green beans she is collecting will be delicious at the family's evening meal.

The last war demonstrated that home gardening can contribute importantly to the food supply In 1917 alone, 1,150,000 acres of city and town land were under cultivation By 1918 there were 5,000,000 gardens which produced 528,000,000 pounds of food.

But there was waste and unnecessary sacrifice, too. Many a hopeful big city garden yielded nothing but blisters and backaches. In some places park lawns, golf courses and public recreation areas were plowed up and planted to potatoes. Ornamental plantings in private grounds were sacrificed, flowers were forgotten to make room for vegetables, and gardens were attempted in congested big city locations where success was obviously impossible.

Today an abundance of land is available for Victory Gardens without sacrificing landscape beauty or the growing of flowers which are just as important to morale, as vegetables are to physical well-being. This is particularly true in small towns and in the suburban areas of big cities.

Nutrition Is Watchword.

Nutrition is the watchword of the present program. First of all, our soldiers must be well nourished So must defense workers in fields and factories. Britain, Russia and our other allies must be kept supplied with food. But the program goes beyond that. A battle is being waged on the home front against malnutrition. Regardless of how long the World war lasts, the nutrition battle at home will go on until every American is receiving enough of the right kinds of food.

In considering the two main phases of the Victory Garden program, the farm effort will of course be the backbone Every farmer who can possibly do so will have a garden where he can produce fresh vegetables and fruits for home use and have some surplus to market

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard summed up the movement's philosophy when he told delegates attending a recent conference in Washington:

"This situation is different from 1917. Then the effort was to save food so there would be plenty for our troops in France. Now the need is for a balanced diet. When the farm family grows its own vegetables, it eats more and thus improves the family's health We hope for an increase of 1,300,000 farm vegetable gardens in 1942. The goal we have set is 5,760,000.

"Growing vegetables on the farm puts the food right where it is to be used; it doesn't take any freight cars or trucks to move food to those families. Home vegetable gardens release more commercial vegetables for other purposes. Commercially canned vegetables are packed in tin—and we are short of tin."

As a reinforcement to the farm garden movement, the work of small town and big city gardens will help swell Uncle Sam's food output.

In communities large and small every family that has access to a favorably situated plot for producing part of its food supply is being asked to join a Victory Garden club.

These town and city gardeners are being cautioned that their gardens must be economical; that every seed, every pound of fertilizer and every implement counts; that there must be no waste. The members of these garden clubs will meet and discuss their problems together and obtain guidance from experts. Provisions are being made in many cities by the Civilian Defense organization for the establishment of community gardens in which plots are assigned to families that do not have fertile garden soil of their own. Schools and organizations are promoting the program.

How big a job is it to put in a garden and make it produce successfully?

Simple to Garden.

It's relatively simple, according to gardening experts. They point out that with modern knowledge of soils, plant foods, new tools and the improved vegetable varieties developed by plant breeders, it is possible to grow fresh vegetables for the family in a favorable location with only a few hour's light exercise each week.

The secret of effective gardening lies in the size of the plot. Too big a garden is likely to be neglected. One just large enough, producing the vegetables a family needs and no more, in balanced proportions can be kept well without hard work.

Fresh radishes for salads are what this young lady is gathering. Her Victory Garden will give the necessary balance to the family's daily meals.

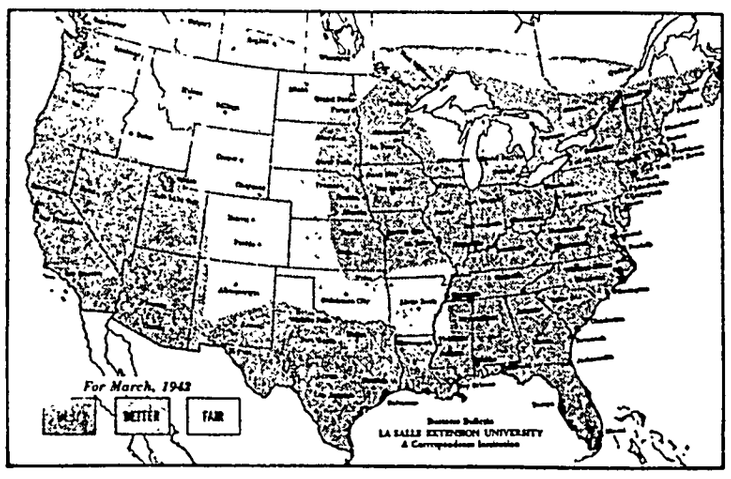
Another secret is in not trying to grow too large a variety. One authority suggests six different vegetables as a basis—tomatoes, snap beans, carrots, cabbage, lettuce and greens. All are high in food and vitamin value. Moreover, tomatoes, beans, carrots and greens can be easily canned.

These gardening experts will tell you one more thing—that you've got to feed the soil if you expect it to produce for you. This means providing it with plant food. And this is just as true if you garden on the farm or in town. The average farmer knows by experience with field crops that fertilizer will enhance the size of his crop, increase its resistance to disease, improve the quality and promote all-around hardiness. He will apply that knowledge in making his Victory garden contribute to the national defense. The city gardener can profit by the farmer's experience.

The three fertilizer elements most needed for plant growth are nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. These elements are mentioned in this order in the analysis of commercial fertilizer

"For effective gardening use," said one authority, "it has been found advisable to apply the fertilizer before planting time, mixing it in thoroughly with the soil when the first spading or plowing is done. The quantity to apply will vary with the soil type, but the Victory Gardener will be safe in using 5 pounds of a mixture such as 5-10-5 to each 100 square feet of garden.

Once having undertaken its gardening project, the average family will reap dividends far exceeding the crop of vegetables at harvest time. Of prime importance in wartime is the morale factor. Gardening is a morale builder without equal anywhere. There is no better antidote for war "blues" than a session with a hoe. Gardening provides a release from the worries and nervous tension of long hours spent at a desk or in the machine shop of a munitions factory. It gives the housewife a change of pace from the routine of domestic duties.



From industrial centers and other defense localities now working at top speed for the nation's Victory program, the excellent business conditions found there are overflowing into the more rural sections of the United States as the above map shows. As farm crops and rural production increases better business conditions will show in the "fair" areas of the U. S.

American Farmers Now Making Wartime Plans

Faced with the biggest demand for agricultural products in the history of the nation, American farmers today are planning—preparing—and working toward the single end of producing the crops, livestock, dairy products, fibers and other raw materials to meet wartime needs, writes L G. Elliott, president of the LaSalle Extension university.

More food will be required by our military forces. Demand from our allies is constantly growing.

While production has been increasing, the prices received by farmers for what they sell have also been rising Average prices are now the highest in 13 years. Prices which the farmers pay have also been going up, but not quite so rapidly, and the ratio between prices received and prices paid is steadily becoming more favorable. It has already reached the goal of parity, and the policy of the government is to maintain prices at around that level In that way, farm income will be kept at the average rate.

DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

WNU SERVICE

Washington, D. C.

The furious battle over the bill to suspend the 40-hour week in war plants caused a personal rift between two house leaders that may take a long time to heal.

When Rep. John McCormack, Massachusetts liberal, was elected Democratic floor leader, one of his strongest supporters was a colleague who had nothing in common with McCormack except friendship—anti-New Deal, anti-labor Rep. Gene Cox of Georgia.

It was with hushed astonishment, therefore, that the house listened to Cox's bitter attack against McCormack during the stormy debate over the anti-40 hour proposal. His voice strident in anger, Cox denounced McCormack on the ground that his opposition to abolishing the 40-hour week was "not good sportsmanship, and I wonder if it is good leadership."

"I have hoped," the Georgian thundered, "that at some time the gentleman from Massachusetts would come to a realization that he is supposed to speak for the majority of this house rather than for somebody else."

Friends rushed to McCormack's defense, but he made no reply Next day, however, under McCormack's leadership, the bill was defeated 226 to 62—a tally which left no doubts about who spoke for the "majority."

Note: Two undercover factors were responsible for this vote, which probably did not reflect the general sentiment of the country. One was a tremendous pressure drive by the A. F. of L. and C.I.O. in the district of each congressman. This was particularly effective with Republicans, who, with their eyes on next fall's congressional elections, are very political-minded. Second, was the failure of the farm bloc to support the bill because it feared labor reprisals against the parity and other boodle grabs which the farm bloc is after. The bloc has been counted on to kill the 40-hour week, but the laborites served blunt notice that if the bill was passed, labor would ax the farmers. Result, the farm bloc ran for cover and the bill went into the ashcan.

WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED

The other day Harry Hopkins had a visitor in the person of Aubrey Williams, head of the National Youth administration, who has been one of his closest friends for many years

"Harry," said Williams, looking around the room in the naval hospital, "how many bottles of medicine have you got there?"

"About 18," replied the lend-lease administrator.

"About 18 too many," commented the National Youth administrator. "And how many doctors have you got?"

Hopkins told him.

"Well, Harry, what's the use of your fooling around with all these doctors and all this medicine," said his friend "You know that the more doctors you have the more this whole thing gets on your nerves. Now there's only one doctor who really knew what ailed you, and that's Andy Rivers out at Mayo's in Rochester. Why don't you have Dr. Rivers come East and get you fixed up?"

Harry Hopkins acted on his old friend's advice, sent for Dr. Rivers, and now is out of the hospital.

He says he has forgotten about medicine and doctors, and feels better than he has in months. Furthermore, Dr. Rivers has told him that without any question he can recover entirely.

NEW G.O.P. CHAIRMAN?

It's very shush-shush, but in certain inner Republican circles there have been secret pow-wows on replacing Rep. Joe Martin as national chairman.

The hard-working little Bay Stater wanted to quit last year, but party chiefs decided that the wisest course would be to persuade Martin to stay for the sake of harmony.

Now some of the strongest advocates of his retention are after his scalp. The hostile fire is from two sources.

One is from Mid-West leaders, sour on Martin, (1) for his failure to give them recognition in national headquarters; (2) for his secret financial wooing of Pennsylvania oil millionaire Joseph Pew and Pennsylvania steel millionaire Ernest Weir.

In the farm belt the two big-money contributors are political dynamite and the Mid-West G.O.P. chiefs can't understand why Martin is palling around with them. So they feel the time has come for one of their group to be named either national chairman or executive director.

FRENCH PROBLEM

When you get them out of official earshot, exiled members of the old French cabinet now in Washington, are very suspicious of what the Vichy government is doing in Martinique and Guadeloupe.

Guadeloupe is a less publicized French island near Martinique, and certain coded messages have been intercepted indicating pro-German activities on both islands Suspicion is strong that Guadeloupe is being used as a submarine refuelling base for Nazi submarines operating in the Caribbean.

Farm Bloc in Congress Threatens Wickard's Policy

'Highly Insistent' Group Fights to Prevent Surplus Commodities Corporation From Selling Farm Products Below Parity.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

It is the equal of five long blocks from where Secretary Wickard's windows look out on the wide sweep of lawn in front of the Department of Agricuture building, along the winding roads to the White House. But Mr Wickard, except for cabinet meetings, doesn't take that trip very frequently. It is not because he isn't as welcome as any other member of the President's official family. It is because he feels pretty sure if he tends to his agricultural knitting he won't be fired.

That can be said (and is said) in spite of the fact that he is probably the only member of the cabinet whom the President ever told a large group of listeners that he could fire

That was at a White House press and radio conference when the President was being questioned concerning what seemed to be a conflict between the secretary of agriculture and Price Control Administrator Henderson as to who was going to regulate farm prices. He said if they didn't agree he could fire them both The controversy has been forgotten and Secretary Wickard, who can talk only half as fast as Price

Secretary of Agriculture, Wickard
He is being annoyed . . .

Administrator Henderson and isn't even a quarter as glib, didn't lose any of his price controlling power.

But the past weeks have seen those prerogatives attacked from another source—the ever-constant source of annoyance for the department of agriculture—the farm bloc in congress

Today it is the farm bloc which is again annoying Mr. Wickard.

This highly consistent and highly insistent group in congress decided it just wasn't going to let Mr. Wickard's Surplus Commodity corporation sell farm products below parity. First, they induced the senate to pass a law agin' it. Then when the President said he'd veto the measure they decided to tack it on to the war appropriation bill as a rider. Then the President said it was reprehensible to make an amendment to an important bill when it wasn't germane to the bill. Then the boc decided to tack it onto the appropriation bill without which the department of agriculture cannot pay its bills. The department, however, seemed willing to face that calamity. They were willing to let the President veto the bill so long as they were able to carry out their policy of selling commodities below parity if they wanted to. (They knew they could get another appropriation.)

"The farmers of the country understand better what we are trying to do than some members of congress," said one official to me.

This is his explanation:

"All we want to do is to sell grain low enough so that it will make it more advantageous for the farmer to raise livestock. We don't need the wheat and corn. We have plenty We do need the meat. So does England. If we decrease the price of feed the farmer will automatically raise more livestock and let nature turn the starches we don't need into protein. And also into fats. We need fats and oil more than ever since the vegetable oils of the Netherlands Indies have been cut off."

That is the way the department of agriculture talks. "And," they add, "the wheat and corn farmer isn't going to lose anything. If we sell our grain at 15 per cent below parity he knows that he can get that 15 per cent back, through benefit payments for soil conservation."

That is the explanation of the case which sounds simple even to the layman. But that isn't the way the President explained it. He said that if the department of agriculture did not have its way the cost of eating would be raised a billion dollars a year.

But the fact remains that the President is satisfied that Mr Wickard knows what he is doing and that he is doing what the President thinks is right.

Of course this doesn't make it right, or if it did, it wouldn't make it necessary that the people accept it, if they prefer some other program. If the farm bloc has enough of a following among the voters it can write its own ticket We are still a democracy. It is a lot shorter from the ballot box to the congress than it is from the department of agriculture to the oval office in the executive wing of the White House

The Basic Rule Behind War Censorship

In Washington we have a censorship for press and radio and also several propaganda organizations which are censorship in reverse.

A great many letters which I receive from listeners to my radio program say: "Of course we realize you are not allowed to say (this or that)," or "we realize you have to say (that or this)." But the surprising thing is how seldom the "this or that" which the listeners mention are the things the censorship forbids us to say, or the "that or this" is ever even suggested by the propaganda organizations.

As a matter of fact I have had only one direct contact with either the so-called propaganda bureaus or the censorship. A man whom I know personally who is connected with the Office of Facts and Figures once called me up and said that he would be able to give me some interesting information from time to time. He never has.

As to the censorship, the radio chains drew up their own code before the censorship organization was founded. It is based largely on common sense and except for certain specific details this code differs very little from the rules which the censor expects us to follow. Before I go on the air a member of the news staff of the Blue network reads over my script. So far nothing has been changed so far as I can recall.

Until we have official confirmation from the army or navy we are not allowed to reveal any troop movements, or any ship movements. Ship movements include vertical movements downwards (sinkings). When we repeat information contained in enemy statements we have to say they are enemy statements and if possible we balance them with some statement from a friendly source.

Behind all censorship, behind all government regulation of speech and action in wartime is one rule: do not give aid and comfort to the enemy. Specific information of a military nature gives aid and comfort to the enemy. We may feel positive that the enemy can get or has already obtained that information from some other source but that does not excuse us for repeating it publicly. Certain things are printed in the newspapers which the radio cannot broadcast because radio waves travel everywhere and the reception is instantaneous. A weather report can be picked up by a submarine a few miles off the coast. That submarine could not get a copy of a newspaper until it made physical contact with the shore or with someone who was there.

Beyond the field of factual information which might give aid and comfort to the enemy lies another field: the field of speculation, rumor, comment of a nature which might be interpreted as giving aid and comfort to the enemy. Here we simply have to use our own judgments. Criticism of our government or of the government of one of the United Nations may give comfort, if not aid, to the enemy. But I have never been called on the carpet for reporting such criticism when it occurs.

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

¶ Many believe that when President Roosevelt invented the term "United Nations" he was doing some long range planning. Now the historian Edwin Embree predicts that there will be a world union with international courts, coinage, police and other common institutions which will grow out of the alliance of the United Nations.

GRAIN SOYBEANS DEPLETE THE SOIL

But if Plowed Under They Increase Soil Nitrogen.

By PROF. GEORGE D. SCARSETH
(Soil Chemist, Agricultural Experiment Station, Purdue University.)

Many farmers do not realize that soybeans harvested for grain are a soil-exhausting rather than a soil-building crop. If soybeans are plowed under or cut for hay, and the manure therefrom is returned to the soil, they do increase the soil nitrogen and thus increase the corn or wheat yields that follow in the rotation. But harvested for commercial purposes such as oils, plastics, etc , they represent a drain on the soil.

A crop of 20 bushels of soybeans harvested for commercial purposes removes 15 pounds of phosphate (equivalent to 75 pounds of 20 per cent super-phosphate) and 20 pounds of potash per acre.

Soybeans are certain to play an increasingly important part in the present war effort At present very little information has been obtained on how to provide a profitable means of directly fertilizing soybeans at the time of seeding, but experiments now in progress at Purdue university involving plowing under phosphate and potash indicate that effective means are being found

With a favorable price outlook, a greater acreage will be planted to soybeans this year Farmers will find it advantageous to fertilize the crop, unless their soils have been adequately treated previously in the rotation. Based on experience at the university, the following suggestions may be of value·

If the soil is acid, lime it adequately this winter. This is important for otherwise the fertilizer will be lost. In many cases about three tons per acre will be effective. Then just before plowing the ground for soybeans, broadcast about 300 pounds of 0-20-20 or 500 pounds of 0-12-12 and plow under. Do not use any fertilizer when planting the beans. The benefits from the lime will last at least 10 years, although it has been found profitable to relime in about six years.

Indicative of the importance of plowing down fertilizer for soybeans, was a test at the Purdue experiment station last year. On an unfertilized plot, the soybean yield was 15.7 bushels of grain or 3,570 pounds of hay an acre. When an equivalent of 1,000 pounds of 4-10-25 had been broadcast and disked into the topsoil immediately before seeding, the yield increased only 1.9 bushels. But when this same amount was broadcast and plowed under, the yield per acre was 23.4 bushels of grain or 4,653 pounds of hay. When lime at the rate of three tons per acre was used with the fertilizer and plowed under, the yield was 28.2 bushels of grain or 5,377 pounds of hay per acre.

Feeding Laying Hens

Successful poultry farmers pay nearly as much attention to the way they feed their pullets and laying hens as they do to the kind of feeds they provide. For one thing, abrupt changing in the diet causes the birds to go "off feed" and results in lower egg production and slower growth as will the use of stale feed. If a change in diet must be made it should be made gradually and extend over a period of a week or ten days.

One practice followed by many of the better poultrymen is to provide only a little more feed each day than the birds can clean up The left-overs, if clean and dry, can be mixed thoroughly with the fresh feed in the hoppers.

In this way there will be no accumulation of stale feed at the bottom of the hoppers, reducing likelihood of mold.

Some Mighty Trees

The tree with the largest circumference is the sequoia, 101 feet, 6 inches, in California, and the tree given the widest spread (168 feet) is a liveoak at Hahnville, La. The wide-spreading liveoak on the Liendo plantation in Waller county seems to be unrecorded on the banks of the Potomac. A California redwood with an altitude of 364 feet is given the palm for the greatest height. The world's record for girth is given to a cypress in Mexico.

Probably the largest, oldest, slowest and fastest growing tree now in Texas, is the cypress. Its wood also has had more home and industrial use than any tree.

Less Spuds, More Eggs

People eat about the same total quantity of food now as they did 30 years ago, but the composition of the dietary has changed. Consumption of wheat and other cereals, potatoes and apples, beef, veal, and tea has declined. But consumption of vegetables (other than potatoes) citrus fruits, sugar, poultry, eggs, milk, manufactured dairy products (especially ice cream), edible fats and oils (other than lard and butter) and cocoa increased.

THE TRANSFIGURED CHRIST MEETS HUMAN NEED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:28-43a.
GOLDEN TEXT — And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God.—Luke 9·43.

Glory and grace go together. Spirituality finds meaning in service. Holiness is faith in action. Every fine emotion should be translated into conduct.

This is the message of our lesson as it presents the transfigured Christ and the disciples, moved beyond intelligent words by His transcendent glory, going forth into the valley to meet the need of demon-ridden humanity.

I. Amazing Glory (vv. 28-36).

To three of the disciples came the privilege of seeing in the mount the outshining of the deity of Christ through the humanity of His flesh in such amazing glory that Peter could think of nothing more wonderful than to prolong the experience by tarrying in the mount.

One could wish that it were possible in presenting this lesson to get over into the thinking of those who read or hear, a proper conception of the glory of our Christ, but words seem to be such weak and insufficient instruments. One would cry out—"Look at Him—the Son of God with the transfigured face—and the light of heavenly glory shining forth in a dazzling whiteness" (literally, like lightning).

If men would only look upon Him, they would see how untrue are those who take from Him His deity, who speak of Him as only a good man or a great teacher. He, our Saviour, who took upon Himself the limitation of our flesh, was and is eternally God.

Significant it is to note that with Him on the mount were Moses and Elijah. The former had died (Deut. 34:5, 6) and the latter had been translated without death (II Kings 2:11), but both were alive, recognizable, intelligent, interested in the redemptive work which Christ was to work out on the cross (v. 31). This definitely denies such false theories as soul-sleep or annihilation at death.

But the vision of glory becomes a means of blessing as we see

II. Amazing Grace (vv. 37-43a).

Like Peter, there are many folk who think that the thing to do is to remain on the mountaintop, just enjoying the vision of glory and the delightful fellowship of Christ and the redeemed. They do not learn such things from Christ or from the Word of God. The next day (v. 37) He and the disciples met the cry of an anguished father whose boy was possessed of a demon and who had found no help (v. 40). Look then upon the one whose unspeakable glory has just been revealed in the mount, who has just had the approval of God the Father (v. 35), who now in amazing grace meets the need of this humble child! There is the grace of God, manifest in the One whom we as Christians profess to follow. Let us like Him bring the glory of God and (in His name) the power of God to bear upon the need of men.

It seems to the writer of these notes that God is waiting to do a new thing in the midst of human suffering and sorrow — working through His disciples. We need first of all to know Him ourselves, as our own Saviour and Lord. Then we need a vision of His glory, flooding our souls and transforming our lives (Rom. 12:1, 2). Then, we must put that glory and that power to work through our lives. The one who follows Christ cannot be satisfied to rejoice in his own salvation and not reach out to win others. He cannot rest in the peace of soul which Christ gives and not put forth his hand to those who struggle in "life's wild restless sea." He must (as Matt. 5.16 puts it) let his light so shine in the darkness that men may find their way to the Father's house and thus glorify the name of God.

God does His work in the world through redeemed men and women. He is always seeking those who, having seen the glory of Christ and with His grace upon them, are ready to be used of the Holy Spirit for His glory. "What the church needs today is not more machinery or better, not new organizations or more novel methods, but men whom the Holy Ghost can use—men of prayer, men mighty in prayer. The Holy Ghost does not flow through methods but through men. He does not come on machinery, but on men. He does not anoint plans, but men" (E. M. Bounds).

Need Compassion

I do not know how any Christian service is to be fruitful if the servant is not primarily baptized in the spirit of a suffering compassion. We can never heal the needs we do not feel. Tearless hearts can never be the heralds of the Passion. We must pity if we would redeem. We must bleed if we would be the ministers of the saving blood.—J. H. Jowett.

If you wish to serve your guests individual cakes, bake your cake in a loaf. When baked, cut it in squares, frost them on four sides and decorate the tops with walnuts.

Silver should always be polished following the shape of the object —flatware lengthwise and hollowware with a large circular motion.

Shabby leather upholstery may be revived by washing with a cloth wrung out in warm water, to which a little vinegar has been added. Polish can be restored after washing by rubbing with a mixture of the whites of two eggs beaten up with a dash of turpentine.

* * *

Thickening for gravies or soups may be made quickly by beating equal amounts of flour and water into a small, deep bowl with an egg-beater until a smooth mixture is formed.

Avoid handling electrical apparatus with wet hands. Always turn off the main switch before trying to repair outlets or lights. Disconnect cords before working on them.

To save frequent dusting, a dust-cloth that does a thorough job is a household necessity. Put one tablespoon of furniture polish of good quality into a quart glass fruit jar, and shake the jar until the polish coats the sides. Put a yard of clean cheesecloth into the jar and cover it. Let the cloth remain in the jar several days before using. Refill the jar with another cloth and another measure of polish after each dusting.

Spiced beet slices or pickled carrots make piquant garnishes for the cold-meat platter. A few of each will do, along with a few sprigs of parsley.

Early American slipware was either undecorated, trimmed with slip, or the design scratched into the clay surface (sgraffito work) Now and again a piece turns up which indicates that its decoration was produced by means of a set pattern, writes Edna Deu Pree Nelson in American Collector That is, the design was first sketched on paper, then the latter laid on the clay and the pattern pinpricked through into the clay with a sharp-pointed instrument After the paper pattern was removed the artist sometimes completed the pricked lines with the point of an instrument, or left it as it was, according to his whim.

• EDITORIAL COMMENT

The first impressions of people always stick in their mind If the person you meet has dirty nails or hands or unpolished shoes, that particular phrase comes up whenever you see the person again Or if the person was giggling when you met him, you would think of him as being silly. So in order to make good impressions on people be neat in both body and manners The next thing that comes up is not the first impression, but the one that go on forever and ever Maybe you don t know it but you are probably showing something new in your personality every day in school and at home, in work or play If it is selfishness, try to overcome it In fact, try to overcome everything you know is wrong Of course don't start to think that you do everything right and are a perfect specimen of good will Remember, be your best at all times

BASE BALL FEVER

All of the baseball boys are itching to get a swing at that old "apple" this spring, if it ever clears up Predictions are that we will turn out a fairly good ball club

Kaduce, pitcher who has one no run, no hit game against Kensett last fall, will be on the mound again this year Brinkman, who was picked as all star on this tournament team of last fall, will hold down short stop. Coobs, our flashy first sacker, will be there again this spring Red, Wille and Grosshuesch complete the infield, although many new comers are expected to give them a scare Little Red did a fine job of holding down second last fall and Wille stood out well at third for his first season. Grosshuesch is the catcher Our outfielders include Chuck Bock, Verne Greiman, A Wille and Klotzbach Bock, when he gets hold of the ball it really sails Greiman, Wille and Klotzbach all have improved from former years

Coach Patterson is eager to get all the basketball players to go out for baseball.

Lynn Says:

A birthday party's a real party with birthday games to play. Let the children play their favorite ones, and if they run out of ideas, try some of these:

Take the words, Greeting and Birthday, and give each of the guests paper and pencil. Ask players to fill in as many words as possible between each of the two letters. First words begin with B and end with G. Second words begin with R and end with I. Third words begin with R and end with E, and so forth. Allow 10 to 15 minutes for the game, and give prizes to those with longest lists.

Have children sit in a circle to play this game called Birthday Gifts. First player starts with letter A, and makes a sentence giving the name of the place he is going and the gift he is bringing. For example, he might say, "I am going to Appleton to get him an Anchovy, or to Bermuda to get him a Bon Bon," and so forth down the alphabet. No words should be repeated.

Guests can also make a scrapbook together, cutting out magazines and papers to make an autobiography for the guest of honor. Include place of birth, pictures of mother and dad, school, vacation trips, etc.

½ hour. Drain. Cover again with water. Boil ½ hour longer or until tender. Drain. Cut peel in strips with scissors. Cover with honey (2 to 3 cups). Simmer gently until peel is clear, about 45 minutes. Spread on waxed paper to dry for several days. Roll in granulated sugar if desired.

Dress up the party with these gay, good-to-eat pop corn balls. The children will enjoy making them, too.

Pop Corn Balls.
(Makes 24 balls)

3 cups sugar
1 cup corn syrup
1 cup water
5 quarts pop corn
1⅔ tablespoons butter

Cook sugar, syrup, and water until the syrup reaches 242 degrees, or makes a soft ball when tried in cold water. Add butter and stir through the syrup. Pour cooked syrup over salted pop corn which has been placed in a buttered bowl and mix well. Shape balls with hands, using only enough pressure to make them stick together.

The fresh tempting and distinctive flavor of perch makes this a nice fish for dinner. Plus that, it fries in no time at all and spares you of any disagreeable odors in the making:

Perch Fillets.

Dip fish fillets in slightly beaten egg, then into bread crumbs to which have been added salt and pepper. Fry in shallow hot fat until just a golden brown, and serve immediately. The whole process takes less than 15 minutes.

As new, fresh and lovely as spring itself is this cabbage dish done to a turn with its food affinities, onions and tomatoes. Be clever with cabbage this way and your table will be gay and bright in glorious red and green, and your family surely will be pleased:

Cabbage Creole.
(Serves 6)

3 pounds shredded cabbage
3 teaspoons salt
1 cup thinly sliced onions
½ minced green pepper
2 cups canned tomatoes
3 tablespoons salad oil
2 bay leaves
1 teaspoon sugar
Dash of cloves

Cook cabbage in a small amount of boiling, salted water about 7 minutes. Drain well. While cabbage is cooking, saute onions in hot fat until light brown, then add tomatoes, pepper, bay leaf, sugar and cloves. Simmer 18 minutes. Remove bay leaves, toss sauce over cabbage.

STAGE—SCREEN—RADIO

IN "HAPPY Go Lucky" Mary Martin will have a new hairdress that's the result of a suggestion from Jack Beddington, of the English Ministry of Information He cabled David Rose, Paramount's managing director in Great Britain (then in this country). "Medical authorities here consider it highly desirable in the interests of hygiene and safety that factory girls and other war workers should wear hair as short as possible on the back of the neck. Urge you to persuade Hollywood star to adopt similar style to encourage them to do so."

Chris-Pin Martin made actors out of his six grandchildren the other day. Told to select half a dozen youngsters between the ages of four and ten to be his family in "Across the Border," the new Hopalong Cassidy film, he just went home and got them.

That well-known book, "The Moon and Sixpence," has been a headache to most of the movie companies; it's been owned or held under option by Paramount, Warner Bros.,

GEORGE SANDERS

RKO and Metro. The trouble was getting a script that would pass the censors. Now we hear that it's to be done for United Artists, with George Sanders as the hero who abandoned his wife and his business to be a painter in the South Seas.

"Woman of the Year" lives up to all the enthusiastic predictions that Metro made for it. Almost 300,000 persons paid to see it during the first two weeks of its run at New York's Radio City Music Hall—and a lot of them stood in line plenty long for the opportunity! It's one of the best of the year, certainly; also one of the best that Katharine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy have ever given us.

If you like gangster melodramas "Johnny Eager" should suit you right down to the ground. Robert Taylor is fine as the tough hero. Lana Turner lovely as the pretty daughter of the District Attorney. Nothing novel about the plot, but plenty of excitement.

Hours are spent checking the questions and answers on the Phil Baker "Take It Or Leave It" program (Sundays over CBS); the research bureau has to be sure of getting the only correct answer. Yet the public frequently thinks they're wrong. Recently hundreds of Persians objected to the statement that the Mazda lamp wasn't named for an individual—they said that Mazda was an ancient Persian god, and they felt that he was entitled to recognition. But the researchers classed him with Zeus and Apollo and ruled him out as a mere man.

"The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" will always be the most romantic song in the world to Mrs. Chester Lauck and Mrs. Norris Goff, whose husbands are Lum and Abner of the radio and the movies. Both men were members of the fraternity at the University of Arkansas, and wooed their home-town sweethearts with the song—Goff did it on the saxophone, Lauck put his proposal campaign on with the drums!

The Aldrich Family of the air waves has given many a young actress a boost toward bigger things. Between Henry's sister and his many sweethearts a lot of girls are needed for it. Betty Field's a graduate of the program; so are Mary Mason, of the air's "Maudie's Diary" and the stage, Patricia Ryan, of "Claudia," and Patricia Peardon, star of the Broadway hit, "Junior Miss," which Shirley Temple takes over for radio.

ODDS AND ENDS—Ransom Sherman, proprietor of radio's zaniest hotel, Crestfallen Manor, was appointed "Lobby Bobby" of the International Hotel Greeters association . . . Judy Garland's next film will be "The Big Time," a story of vaudeville . . . Mikhail Rasumny, the very funny Mexican garage mechanic in "Hold Back the Dawn," is cast as the gypsy in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" . . . Josephine, the most famous monkey in pictures, celebrated her 15th year as an actress on the set of Columbia's "Canal Zone"—also her 30th birthday . . . Cary Grant maintains that in "The Gentlemen Misbehave" he's the screen's worst-dressed man

The Once Over

VIEWPOINT

Our part we must do in a terrible war—
A victory final we seek;
So forward to rescue the world (maybe more)—
On forty-four hours a week!

No time's to be lost in this job that's ahead—
Our efforts must rapidly soar;
So let our endeavors be rapidly spread
On forty-four hours, no more!

The world is on fire; we feel the hot flames;
Around us we see the walls fall;
So into the blaze and the holocaust, James! . . .
For forty-four hours, that's all!

The enemy, ruthless, is at us full tilt,
Our lives and our homes are at stake;
So into the fight in which no one can wilt—
Unless the work limit we break!

We never have faced such a terrible fight—
Defeat is a possible fact;
So over the ramparts with all of our might—
Observing the Walsh-Healy act!

Like slaves we would live if the enemy won
And get a few pennies per day,
So into the battle! And no ordeal shun—
Excepting one affecting our PAY!

A barbarous foe's winning great victories—
He stops at no outrage or crime;
So forward to bring the beast down on his knees—
UNLESS IT INVOLVES OVERTIME!

Why Congressional Speech Readers Go Mad

Mr. Snyder: "Mr. Chairman, we are now engaged in a most stupendous and destructive war . . . The question confronting us today is what we, the democracies, must continue to do, or must initiate and do, to eventually win. The University of Pittsburgh's football team last fall started off by losing to small colleges like Westminster. They lost every game except the next to the last one. Fordham had won every game and was looked upon to be the outstanding contender for the Rose Bowl invitation. Fordham went to Pittsburgh to play their annual game. Only a few thousand people turned out because they thought it would be a pushover at 100 to 1 for Fordham. But what happened? Pittsburgh's football team pulled itself together and ran over Fordham.

"Mr. Chairman, I mention this because it is appropriate and applicable to our world situation. What enabled Pittsburgh to win that day? Only one thing, spirit and determination."—Congressional Record.

Now that that's all cleared up, let's go!

Absorptive Sand

Silica gel, a processed sand with a very high moisture absorptive quality, is now being used in cupboards to keep salt, sugar and crackers dry, in drawers to preserve important papers and in cabinets to prevent the rusting of tools and instruments, says Collier's By turning from blue to pink, the sand indicates that it has reached the moisture limit and must be dried in an oven.

Territorial Divisions

The New England states, in addition to their regular counties, cities, towns and villages, have other territorial divisions. Gores still exist in Vermont, tracts and surpluses in Maine and grants, purchases and locations in New Hampshire.

JUST BETWEEN US

An Explanation

John—And what did you say when your wife found a hair on your coat?

Jack—I told her the fellow who works next to me must have spilled some of his hair tonic on me.

The Danger Point

As the evening progressed, the two men got more and more confidential.

"How do you get on with your missus?" asked the man with the side-whiskers.

"Not too badly," replied the bald-headed man. "Only have a row about once a month."

"You're lucky. I get paid weekly."

Beyond That

"Have you a speaking acquaintance with the woman next door?"

"Speaking acquaintance! Why, I know her so well that we don't speak at all."

The peak of embarrassment is reached when two eyes meet through one keyhole.

Her Idea

He—I never knew love was like this.

She—Neither did I. I thought there were more chocolates and flowers to it.

Here Lafayette was housed when he visited New Orleans in 1825. It is now a museum

Some of the buildings are very old and certainly show their age The old French Market still stands along the levies People go there to drink coffee Vegetables and fruits are brought there to be sold Louisiana oranges are sold on the streets at 5 for 10 cents, head lettuce, 2 for 15 cents, string beans 15 cents per pound

Royal Street has changed since my last visit four years ago The cobblestone has been paved with asphalt. The old antique shops have turned into curio stores and prices are exceedingly high

For the tourist trade hotel prices are high at this time

Very fine perfumes can be purchased at Madame Aucoin's, 234 Royal Street, manufacturers of magnolia perfume at $1 50 to $3 00 per ounce

Tomorrow we will take a drive around the city. The drive today to the airport and Lake Pontchartrain was very interesting The airport is being enlarged as the runways are too small for the big planes now in use Much of the land along the lake front is being used for military purposes. No cameras are allowed here or on the harbor tour.

Leaving the hotel at 9 00 a m we drove down St. Charles Street and along this street are the homes of many of the wealthy people One of these houses was built at a cost of $500,000 Audubon Place is the exclusive residential section. The driveways are enclosed in tall green iron grilled posts. Carrolton avenue leads from Audubon Park to City Park, two of the largest parks in New Orleans The parks and lawns, boulevards, and streets are filled and lined with azaleas, which have been planted since my last visit, and are now in their height of bloom. There are different varieties and colors, ranging from a dwarf bush of 2 feet to 5 or 6 feet high in white, different shades of pink to deep reds. Camileas are in bloom This is a tree-like bush with deep green waxy leaves, with a dark red, rose-like flower

On our return trip we stopped at the oldest cemetery Here in Louisiana the dead are "buried" in vaults above the ground The old cemetery is surrounded by a brick wall about 6 or 8 feet thick In the wall are many vaults very close together Others are built of cement so close together they almost touch each other in line, with only a four or six foot path between the rows of vaults The cemetery covered several blocks, each surrounded by a wall Some of these date back from 1803 to 1830

This is Wednesday morning and I am leaving New Orleans for Natchez where I expect to spend two days visiting the Ante - Bellum homes. I will write and tell you about Natchez.

I left home Saturday evening by train for Chicago and expect to be back Sunday or Monday Two days in New Orleans, two in Natchez, and one day in Chicago

Sincerely,
Frieda Schuldt

WILD GEESE CAUSE IOWA BLACKOUTS

The annual spring goose flight up the Missouri River presented the heaviest concentration of geese in many years. Thousands of spectators visited the concentration areas and watched almost unbelievingly this unique wildlife spectacle. The comment of first-time visitors as they saw and heard hundreds of thousands of geese was, "'Taint so!" The night clamor of geese confused by the street lights in the various towns caused town officials to turn out street lights to allow the geese to get their bearings and return to the river.

ICE DISAPPEARS FROM CLEAR LAKE MARCH 25 THIS YEAR

Spring Level Of Clear Lake Is 2 Inches Lower Than In Fall

With the help of a strong wind last Wednesday the ice sheet covering Clear Lake since last Dec. 10, when the lake froze over, disappeared after having been in the process of breaking up into large chunks.

This date, March 25, is an average date for the annual event. Dates for recent years are· March 12, 1930, March 3, 1931; March 15, 1933, April 1, 1934; March 23, 1935; April 11, 1936; April 12, 1937; Mar 22, 1938, April 1, 1939, and April 4 1941. The freezeup last fall was unusually late.

One feature of the breakup this season is the fact that the lake level is about 2 inches lower now than when it was measured last Dec 10. This is because the screen above the weir at the outlet was removed last fall, allowing the water to fall to the level of the weir Other years the water has not been running from the outlet and the level has been higher in the spring that it was the previous autumn.

The controversy as to whether the ice goes "out" or "down" is still going on among Lake residents.

The board of directors will convene in the near future to name a successor to Mr. Hein. Mr. M. C. James of Goodell is president of the R. E. A. board.

CRAB APPLE BLOSSOMS AND BULLHEADS

Two Boys Going Bullhead Fishing Down A River Road

Almost before the ice was out of the lakes and streams, the "early birds were out with the worm," and many have already had good bullhead fishing. Except in artificial lakes, there is no closed season on the three species of bullheads native to Iowa, although Mother Nature herself closes it by making these fish inactive during most of the winter. The first warm days of spring, however, seem to give bullheads an appetite that lasts throughout the season, sometimes until long after the ice is frozen in early winter. It is often said that the bullhead "pays the freight in this state, meaning that a large part of the fishing licenses sold are sold to bullhead fishermen.

Bullheads are found in almost every pond and lake and in many of Iowa's streams. Usually the fish does not exceed one foot in length and one pound in weight. Examples have been taken however, several inches longer and weighing four pounds or more. The bullhead catch limit is 25, possession limit, 50 (except in artificial lakes where the catch and possession limit is 12), and there is no length limit on this fish.

'Yankee Doodle' Spirit Rekindled By Nation Pledged to Freedom

At the nation's Capitol to boost stamp and bond sales, Irving Berlin, songwriter, is shown (left) with Lucy Monroe, "The Star-Spangled Soprano," and Barry Wood, radio singer, as they looked over a copy of Berlin's latest song just before the community sing. Berlin's number was one of many that came out right after the war started. Unlike the tearful, sentimental ballads that characterized the last war, these were tough and snappy ones like, "To Be Specific, It's Our Pacific" and "You're a Sap, Mr. Jap."

The days of fervent patriotism have returned to give America a new "lift" after the apathetic 1920s and the distraught 1930s. For more than a year now, ever since the fall of France jerked us out of a national lethargy, America has been re-kindling the spirit of 1776—re-examining the glorious history that made her a great nation and putting her heart and soul to the task of defending freedom.

A few days ago the treasury department at Washington received a $100 check from a man who had won that amount at a movie bank night. He didn't want to buy any savings bonds or pay his taxes—just wanted to help Uncle Sam.

At public gatherings throughout the country bathroom baritones are twisting the vocal chords around "The Star Spangled Banner" like they haven't done for more than 20 years. School children are putting unaccustomed vigor into their oath of allegiance to "the flag and the republic for which it stands," and movie goers find themselves applauding spontaneously when the President's face flashes across the screen.

In some respects it's like the wave of patriotism that spread across the land during the last great war, but sociologists are convinced that this time there's more grim determination and less hysteria—a cold and calculating resolve springing from a recognition that for the past 50 years the United States has done too much talking about preserving our way of life and has taken too little action to really preserve it.

Evidence of Seriousness.

This atmosphere of seriousness is evident in the crop of new songs which popped up the first few weeks after Pearl Harbor

Song publishers, who can detect a straw in the wind even before the breeze comes up, began making allowance more than a year ago for the new national emotional situation they sensed this war would produce. "God Bless America" was the first tip-off, inaugurating what might almost be called a "patriotic school" of tunesmiths unlike anything Tin Pan Alley had experienced before. And less than a week after the first Japanese bomb had fallen on unsuspecting Hawaii, the words-and-music boys were turning out "fightin' mad" numbers like "They Started Somethin' (But We're Gonna End It)" and "Let's Put the Axe in the Axis."

"Maybe we'll get sentimental in a few months," a prominent publisher said recently, "but I doubt it. This time America is dead serious. Sales of patriotic music have gone up 40 per cent during the past few weeks and we expect them to keep asking for the standard numbers like "Star Spangled Banner" and "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

America's involvement in the war has actually heightened national interest in such normally peace-time activities as the far-flung Americanism program of the American Legion, designed to "foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent Americanism." One committee is working with local Legion posts to stimulate interest in physical education, health education and recreation, because a healthy America is a strong America. Projects like the $1,000 annual Lewis S Rosenstiel award for outstanding community service, and the annual safe driving contest sponsored in co-operation with the Automotive Safety foundation, are all doing their part Sponsorship of Boy Scout troops, junior baseball and essay contests are just a few of the commission's other activities.

'Glory of Being an American.'

"We anticipate an even livelier interest among Legion posts in this type of work during the war," according to Homer L Chaillaux of Indianapolis, national director. "Legionnaires seem to realize that the individual community is the basic denominator of American life, and they're determined to strengthen it. Our job is to dramatize the glory of just being an American, for this is the only way we'll be able to have young Americans understand and believe in the United States."

Look anywhere in the country and you'll find the same dead-pan sobriety about this business, a shoulder-to-the-wheel attitude that completely transcends even the darkest days of the last war Look at vocational schools and you'll find that in 17 months they have trained 1,775,000 men and women for war industries, 29 times the number trained during the last war.

Look at religion. Unlike 25 years ago, when the doctrine of a "holy war" against the "barbarians" was preached from most pulpits, churches throughout the country are now recognizing Christianity's responsibility to help make the coming peace a just peace. The Right Rev Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the Episcopal church in the United States, pointed out recently that "in comparison with the attitude of the clergy in April, 1917, I should say that today there is a deeper appreciation of danger to our country than existed at the beginning of the last war" Only a few days after war was declared, interdenominational leaders called a meeting, with the slogan: "In time of war prepare for peace"

Why has it happened? Why did defense savings bonds go up 117 per cent the week after Pearl Harbor? Why are Americans ready and willing, almost anxious, to pay the highest income taxes in history, and to spend $150,000,000,000 to win the war

Sense of Danger.

Broadly speaking, the answer lies in a more imminent sense of danger forced upon us by the knowledge that our own cities can now be bombed and we, ourselves—civilians though we may be—can be wounded or killed in our own homes. Thus the mobilization of manpower and womanpower this time has brought home the reality of war with an unprecedented impact. In addition to a fighting army of more than 7,000,000 men, the nation needs practically that many more people for air raid precautions work. Three million more men will be needed during the next year alone.

Another factor—mechanized warfare throws a harder punch at the civilian because it deprives him of commodities he's come to regard as necessities. There's plenty of food this time, fortunately, but no new tires for your automobile—indeed, new automobiles are no longer available. Aluminum frying pans have become instruments of war and plastics once made into phonograph records are now being used for tank gears and instrument panels. You can't even use your telephone as much as you used to, because total war requires mobilization of all available communication facilities.

The situation is pretty well summed up in our attitude toward propaganda. In the last war, public opinion was whipped up from the start by motion pictures bearing such titles as "The Kaiser, Beast of Berlin" and "To Hell With the Kaiser." This time Hollywood is concentrating on two entirely different objectives. First, they're providing entertainment for soldiers at camps, and giving the public relaxation from war duties. Second, they're turning out educational short subjects to improve morale, to instruct new soldiers in various phases of warfare and familiarize civilians with their defense responsibilities.

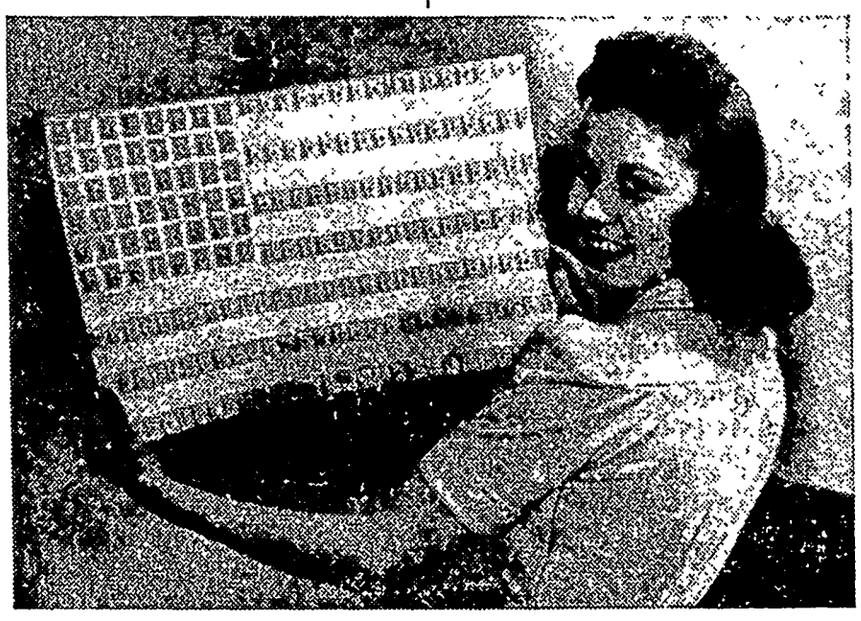
In short, the determination is already present. America knows she has a job to do, and needs no shot in the arm to do it!

Remember K-K-K-Katy? She Was Nation's Gal

Remember the songs we were singing back in 1917? The sentimental ballads of yesteryear have little in common with today's stirring patriotic tunes. Almost everyone more than 10 years of age knew the words to "My Buddy," "Keep the Home Fires Burning," "Till We Meet Again" and "Just a Baby's Prayer at Twilight." On the lighter side we learned "K-K-K-Katy" and "How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm." Barbershop quartets have kept the songs alive.

He's Convinced

Americanism is the job of Homer L. Chaillaux, national chairman of the Americanism commission of the American Legion. Watching growing interest among fellow Legionnaires in community betterment projects since the war began, Chaillaux is convinced the war has produced a deeper sense of responsibility in the average American.



This pretty Stephens college co-ed at Columbia, Mo., is also in step with the rest of the nation as far as purchasing defense stamps is concerned. Her patriotic zeal, though, assisted by some clever handiwork, surpasses that of most fellow Americans and classmates. She has made a flag out of her stamps. Sorry, this newspaper doesn't know her name.

Darwin, Australia, 'Way Down Under,' Is a Modern, Busy City

Darwin, bombed by the Japanese, heretofore has been considered Australia's backdoor But it is a front door now from the troubled world to the north Darwin has been described as a small town of less than 5,000 inhabitants with the appearance of an early mining town.

Australians explain Darwin as the victim of the tropics and transients. Its excellent harbor gave it birth, but, as the best port on Australia's north coast, the sailors give it color.

The majority of Darwin's better homes on the outskirts stand high above the ground on stilts of ironwood or concrete posts as a protection against termites. Life is lived for the most part on the shuttered verandas surrounding the houses, of which the open rooms are a part. Only a dressing-room and a bathroom are entirely enclosed. The almost unbearable heat at 12 degrees south of the Equator is relieved somewhat by cool breezes

Darwin is the capital of the Northern Territory which covers a half million square miles of sparsely settled, wild country. During the long dry season this region has a scorched appearance With the rains of the wet season, when the luggers come into port to lie up, the country blossoms almost overnight in scarlet poinciana, frangipani, Japanese honeysuckle, and many flowering trees, according to a National Geographic bulletin.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

(WNU Service)

Washington, D. C.

DONALD NELSON EXPLAINS

In his radio appeal for an immediate 25 per cent increase in war production, Donald Nelson announced that joint management-labor committees would be set up in every plant to devise methods of increasing output. There has been considerable conjecture since then over the scope of these committees; whether they should run the plants or merely be advisory.

The other day Nelson explained just what he had in mind in a private talk with Walter Reuther, forceful vice president of the powerful C.I.O. United Auto Workers, who more than a year ago proposed the so-called "Reuther Plan" for the quick conversion of the auto industry into a unified mass producer of hundreds of planes and tanks daily.

While in Washington on union business after Nelson's broadcast, a mutual friend suggested to Reuther that he have a talk with the War Production chief whom he had never met. Nelson greeted Reuther cordially, remarking that he had heard a lot about his plan but had not seen its details.

"I can tell you all about them in three minutes," said Reuther.

"Shoot," replied the war chief.

Nelson listened intently, asked a few questions, then remarked: "Essentially, your objective is the same as mine. The only thing on which we differ is the way to go about it."

"How's that?"

"Simply this," said Nelson. "We both want the auto industry to make all the airplanes, tanks and guns it can. Your plans called for joint committees to direct the conversion, with a government representative participating as a side-line adviser. I believe in doing it differently—one man for action and committees for advice. That's why I have one man, my representative, in Detroit directing conversion, with the committees you proposed advising him. It's your plan only in reverse."

Nelson also told Reuther that he hoped the joint committees would take their work seriously and submit every practical plan for increasing production. However, Nelson stressed that he and not the committees would decide on the merits of the proposals, that the function of the committees was strictly "advisory."

Note: After first approving the joint committee plan, Secretary Knox later told Nelson he was opposed because it would "Sovietize U. S. industry." Knox contended that management alone should do the job. Nelson brushed aside Knox's fears and declared that without the full co-operation of labor the war could not be won. "I expect full co-operation from the navy on my plan," Nelson said firmly, "or else. And if you doubt my word there is a man in the White House who will confirm it for you."

HULL AND THE ARABS

Shortly before Secretary Hull left on his present protracted holiday, Colonel Donovan had worked out a plan to send an American "Colonel Lawrence" to visit the Arabs around Dakar

The idea was that just as Colonel Lawrence had won the support of the Arabs for the British in the last war, so the United States could win over the Arabs in French West Africa, especially around the vital base of Dakar, the jumping off place to South America.

So Col. Charles Sweeney, who has had much experience with the Arabs, was delegated to undertake this difficult and important mission.

But when Secretary Hull heard of the Donovan plan, he hit the ceiling. Calling Donovan into his office, Hull lectured him at length, declaring: "You are trying to interfere with the conduct of my relations with a friendly country."

Hull flatly refused to give Colonel Sweeney a passport. So no attempt has been made to win over the Arabs of West Africa.

Note: British intelligence reports that three French warships sailed from Dakar last month bound for Madagascar. This will relieve the danger to Brazil, but it may increase possible danger to British-U. S. shipping routes through the Indian ocean to Suez and India; depending on whether the French warships will protect Madagascar from the British or from the Japanese.

At the Best, Boys Were But Two Out of Three

Two brothers, in appearance very much alike, were being registered at school.

"Are you two twins?" asked the teacher, smiling at the boys.

"No, ma'am, we're not," replied the lads in unison.

"You certainly look alike," returned the schoolmarm.

Then as the brothers filled in their forms, the teacher noted that they gave the same birthday

"But you said you weren't twins yet you have the same birthday?" she queried.

"That's right, we aren't twins," replied one, "we're what's here called triplets."

FOUR soldiers from the middle west got the thrill of a lifetime recently. Claire Trevor, who'd been working late at Paramount on "The Black Curtain," was driving to a Hollywood cafe for dinner when she saw them trying to thumb a ride. She stopped and asked them if they'd have dinner with her. There were no introductions. In the middle of the meal one of them suddenly exclaimed, "Gosh, I know you—you're Claire Trevor!" Resultant casualties, one glass of water, spilled; two cups of coffee, dropped. Cause, amazement of fellow guests.

Practical Attitude Will Not Spoil Fun of Easter Paraders

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE 1942 Easter style parade will be more than a mere display of chic and flattering apparel. Not that it will be lacking in feminine charm, for the new fashions are as intriguing and eye-appealing as bright, pretty accessories can make them. However, it is with a two-fold purpose that women are selecting their Easter outfits and assembling their spring wardrobes. Women are not choosing their new clothes from the viewpoint of attractiveness alone, but back of it all is a steadfast desire to buy wisely, purposefully and thoughtfully with an eye to the future.

The present sane, careful, wholesome buying movement demands expression, and from all reports and appearances, that expression is the suit of handsome material styled softly and becomingly with a versatility that reveals a fresh fashion inspiration that has been born of war needs.

Women are becoming alertly "fabric wise." They want quality materials that are given an undated styling which will carry them valiantly through more than the current season. They are regarding wool weaves in a new light, knowing full well they must buy wool with a view to serviceability, long wear, as wool supplies for civilian use are being reduced as rapidly as the requirements for army service are expanding. It behooves every woman to take jealous care of her wool suits, dresses and coats these days, for most of the newer fabrics will have but a percentage of wool.

Color is the big news for suits. With a fine philosophy our style creators have worked out the problem of making the suit that is designed to be utterly utilitarian radiate a message of cheer in such striking colors as geranium red, ivy green, spring-like yellow, hyacinth blue and related bright hues.

Accessories are creating such a splurge of color they give to suits a brightness that radiates throughout the entire spring fashion picture. Especially smart with navy suits and gray wools, and also with checks and stripes, are vivid gloves, bags, shoes and hats. And don't forget plaids when choosing the new suit or coat. They are more important than ever.

Covert is a leading fabric for spring. We see this sturdy fabric in the trim man-tailored suit shown at the top left in the above illustration. Instead of a coat it has a modish cape for dash and extra warmth. Capes will be seen more and more as the months go by. This serviceable ensemble is in tan. Coverts are also being widely shown in defense blue. Both colors take vivid accessories beautifully.

The novelty flannel plaid suit pictured to the right above is young and cheerful. In red and soft gray tones, it has a generously pleated skirt and a snug fitting double breasted jacket which buttons high and is accented by four vertical pockets.

Fine spun rayon gabardine brings its nice tailoring to fashion the costume to the left, below, in the above illustration. The fitted high-buttoned jacket sports three large pockets, while the skirt is styled with trim box pleats.

Novelty jeweled buttons mark the front closing of the jet black rich rayon faille suit to the right, below, in the above picture. The high, rounded lapels, flap pockets and kick-pleated skirt are excellent fashion points. A flaring milan straw bonnet with grosgrain edging adds distinction to this costume

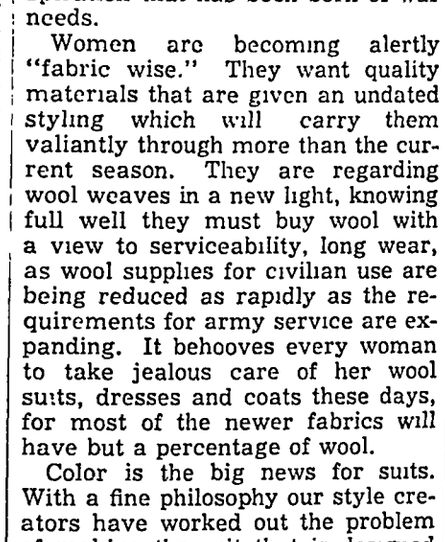
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Jersey Jacket



It's smart to be sleeveless. New on the spring fashion program is the sleeveless jacket worn with a simple shirtwaist dress. The New York creation illustrated in the above picture scores high in style credits. The dress is fashioned of a bow-knot print. The jacket of wool jersey highlights the lighter tones of the printed design, and is distinctive because in addition to being sleeveless it has huge patch pockets and a sewed-in belt.

Taffeta Is a Popular Fabric for Accessories

A new trend in fashion this season is the use of taffeta for trimming. It is being used for piping, pleating, bordering, wide tie-girdles, yoke treatments, pockets and in countless other intriguing ways.

One of the latest versions is the navy dress piped and trimmed with navy taffeta. There is also a liberal use of taffeta in contrast colors, and taffeta plaid hats and bags have a high style rating.

Playtime Aprons

Children will take great delight in the novel aprons of bright prints. They have huge pockets to hold a sewing outfit for little girls, or a set of garden tools for boys, or perhaps a drawing set for either.

White Hats

Milliners are creating most attractive little white hats this spring to be worn with suits or ensembles. They are styled with a view to flattery and many have sprightly little dotted white veils.

Chevrons

A patriotic gesture is the trimming of junior hats, blouses and sailor suits with gaily colorful chevrons and stars. You can buy these motifs all ready to applique.

Unbleached Muslin

Cottons will be worn extensively this spring and summer. There is promised a plentiful use of unbleached muslin dyed in rich colors.

QUESTION IN A CRISIS

Have we been fed on pap too many years?
Have we seen life as something on a screen?
Have platitudes and boastings stuffed our ears
To all the lessons our traditions mean?

Have we put all our faith in microphones
And only liked our music sweet and soft?
Have we insisted on the softest tones
And murmured "Don't disturb, please!" once too oft?

Have we put speeches and fine pledges first—
And in the amplifiers put our trust,
Refusing to face facts and see the worst,
And substituting "Some day" for the "Must"?

Have we thought of the world as but a play
And lightly viewed the acting and the plot?
Have we been blind and stupid all the way?
Here's hoping, deeply hoping we have not!

A PRAYER SELDOM HEARD

Here's one we "lifted" from Rev Harvey's Methodist Church bulletin of last Sunday We confess it fits us and a lot of other people in the community we could name Here is is.

"Almighty God, as I sit here by the fire this lovely Sunday morning, surrunded by the Sunday paper and half-listening to a big preacher over the radio, it has just come to me that I have lied to Thee and myself I said I did not feel well enough to go to church That was not true I was not ambitious enough I would have gone to my work if it had been Monday morning I would have played golf or gone fishing if it was Wednesday afternoon I would have been able to go to a picture show or bridge club if it had been Friday night

"BUT IT IS SUNDAY MORNING and Sunday illness covers a multitude of sins God have mercy upon me I have lied to Thee and to myself I was not ill - I am lazy and indifferent Amen"

A YOUNG LOVER OF NATURE

Donny, small son of Mr and Mrs Levi Ridder, is an observing young man and shows traits of becoming a naturalist, even tho he is only in about the first room at school

Monday noon as he was trudging along home from school we met in front of the printing office Donny hailed us, "Mr Jorgenson how many robins have you seen?"

We answered, "Oh, two or maybe three" Donny came right back with I have seen sixty-seven already!"

We can use a boy like that to help us out on some of our fishing yarns

Seriously, however, that small boy is taking a keen interest in nature at an early age and will probably make nature study his hobby, or even his profession when he grows up"

ADDING INJURY TO INSULT

August Lau the De Kalb seed corn man probably thought he was doing the Editor a good turn when he gave him a big packet of hybrid sweet corn seed Monday

We did not want to hurt Aug' feelings by refusing the gift, but it has gotten us into hot water

We intended to throw the seed away before the 'better half" saw it, because that would mean digging in the garden to plant the dog gone seed with the scribe doing the digging!

But we muffed the job and it walked the bath with a gleam in her eye as she saw the nice packet of sweet corn seed We made a hasty dive for the shop to ponder over the sudden turn of affairs for the worse Looks like we are stuck with a gardening job again and we are allurgic to gardens!

We have also heard rumors potatoes should be planted on Good Friday We hope it snows that day!

REDUCED HIGHWAY SPEED SHOWS RESULTS

Those who have contended that high speed driving had little or nothing to do with highway traffic fatalities, will have to admit they were wrong.

Figures just released by the National Safety Council indicates that the highway fatalities for the month of February were 8% less than for the same month a year over the nation

In Iowa the death rate was cut down 14% despite the fact that an unaccountable increase was shown in fatal accidents wherein automobiles and trains were involved.

Connecticut had the best record for the nation Their highway fatalities were cut down 24%.

Lower driving speed will not only save tires, gas, oil, wear on the car but should reduce traffic accidents and highway fatalities

However, there will soon be many old cars on the road, and many others with none too safe tires We believe that a compulsory check-up on cars and tires should be made at regular intervals to eliminate the dangers of faulty brakes, poor lights and tires that may blow out and cause an accident

WATER LEVELS AND FISHING PROSPECTS

Sports predictions are dangerous, but we will go "out on the limb" and predict: Good fishing for 1942.

We base our prediction on several things Fishing was exceptionally good last fall, and spring reports are that bullhead fishing is already good

Throughout the entire state of Iowa water levels are generally high Streams, sloughs and lakes are near or above normal The Iowa Geological Survey reveals shallow well levels in most sections normal or above Well levels in southwest Iowa are the highest in seven years

Melting ice reveals little or no fish loss from smothering and foul water conditions.

Conservation Commission stream surveys show heavy fish and fish food carry-over from 1941

All these factors add up to Good fishing in 1942

Healthy Rural Families Through Food Knowledge

Better balanced rural budgets and healthier farm families are the result of introducing vitamins to the farmer's wife, Miss Miriam Birdseye of Washington, D C, told delegates to the American Home Economics association in Cleveland.

Miss Birdseye, for 22 years a nutritionist in the department of agriculture's extension service, declared that through contact with county home demonstration agents, many rural families have learned to recognize the values of their own home grown products and are using them to save money.

"One family," she declared," increased its home garden yield from one worth $50 to $400 Another family reduced its food purchase bill $100 a month by both plant planning and careful cooking "

She pointed out that different sections of the country required variec planning. In Ohio, there are about four growing months, eight months in which a family depends on canned and stored goods In Mississippi and Alabama, gardens are planted all year around. In the West, gardens must be protected against wind In North Dakota, snow fences are necessary. Weevils and grasshoppers are menaces in other climates, Miss Birdseye said.

Morganatic Marriage

A morganatic marriage, which sometimes is called a left-handed marriage because the left, rather than the right, hand often is given in ceremony, is the form of marriages which male members of some of the royal families of Europe and certain nobility formerly belonging to reigning families may contract with a woman of inferior rank. The wife does not acquire and the children do not inherit the rank of the husband or father and the children do not succeed either to the father's public position or to the property annexed to that position and belonging to him in virtue of his title. In some states, a morganatic wife or her children have no rights of succession in the private property of the husband excepting under will or marriage settlement. The term also is applied when a woman of nobility marries a man who is her social inferior.

Such a marriage is valid and while existing, precludes any other, the children are legitimate.

• THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY

Self-trust is the first secret of success—Ralph Emerson

I judge people by what they might be, not are, nor will be—Browning

• EDITORIAL COMMENT

One of the most important extra-curricular activities of K H S are the different music groups On April 10 and 11 these groups will travel to Sheffield to compete in the music contest This however, is not the only reason for these groups

Music helps a person to work in a group, if everyone does not cooperate the group will be a failure The whole group must concentrate in watching the director, and on the music Each person must feel himself the leader of the group because if one waits for the other one will start now and others in a few seconds, causing the effect of the piece to be lost

The music teaches us to be on time and alert For it takes only a few minutes to go through a piece A person coming a minute too late has missed maybe the practice of one song

Our school was behind the athletic groups, now lets get behind the music groups

Wednesday Dr Zimmer, head of Cancer Control of the State Department of Health spoke to the high school and junior high He explained to us that many of the ideas about cancer now thought by many people are false Science thus far knows only three cures X-ray, radium and surgery. If cancer is found in its early stages before the cells divide and go to all parts of the body, it can be cured

Never take faith in anyone you know nothing about who says he can cure cancer. Instead, consult a physician.

The greatest percentage of cancer occurs after the age of forty

A person over this age should have a physical check-up every year because many times cancer begins without any pain until it has gone too far to be cured

• MUSIC NEWS

Our concert last Sunday was well attended by people of Klemme and visitors from other towns

The girl trio, sextette, and the mixed quartet to sing in the contest have been chosen The trio is Betty E, Patty, and Ellen

The sextet Lorraine, Betty E. Patty, Ellen, Arlene W, and Barbara In the mixed quartet are Ellen Barbara, Eugene H, and Calvin Grosshuesch, Jr.

The band has changed their contest piece to "Autumn' This piece won first prize at the national and our only hope is that it gets us to the state.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

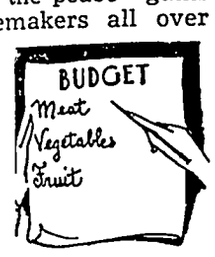
Make a Delicious Spinach Ring With Leftovers
(See Recipe Below)

Conserving Food

As the quotation "Food will win the war and write the peace" gains prominence, homemakers all over the country are beginning to realize that they must do their part in making the most of the food at hand.



Your first step in conserving food will come when you plan your menus and shopping. If you are not in this habit, then start now to practice the true economy that comes only with this kind of planning. You will rarely have bits of leftovers that are difficult to fit into the menu if you provide a place for them.

Your second step in conserving food will come in proper storage. No matter how careful a shopper you are, if you do not provide the facilities that keep food from becoming decayed, wilted, or soiled, you will not have done your part.

Refrigerator Storage.

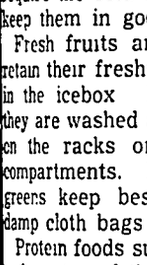
Milk, eggs, butter, cheese, meat, opened canned food, or leftover food, require the cold of a refrigerator to keep them in good condition.

Fresh fruits and vegetables also retain their freshness and moistness in the icebox. Place them, after they are washed and carefully dried on the racks or in their special compartments. Lettuce and other greens keep best when stored in damp cloth bags.

Protein foods such as eggs, cheese and meat need the controlled cold of the refrigerator to keep their protein from decomposing. Uncooked meat may be left uncovered or covered lightly with waxed paper. Cooked meat should be covered. Cheese may be wrapped in a waxed paper or cloth, and covered with a thin film of butter if you expect to keep it for a long time. Keep eggs away from strong foods to prevent their porous shells from absorbing odors.

Leftover food remains usable if kept in covered containers. Canned foods will be perfectly safe to use even if left in the cans in which they come. Canned fruits keep best in their own liquid or syrup, olives best in their own brine, and pimientoes will not become molded if left in the oil in which they come.

The problem of keeping an egg yolk or two after the white has been used is easily solved if you just leave the yolk in a half of a shell and cover it with the other half. Several egg yolks or several whites can be placed in a glass jar and kept well covered.



Take stock of your refrigerator frequently so no food remains there for too long a time. Even though you are careful about storage, do not expect food to retain its good condition indefinitely.

Storing Cookies, Cakes, Bread.

Crisp cookies will retain the crispness if you place them in a loosely covered tin or box to permit the free circulation of air. Soft cookies remain moist if kept in a well-covered tin or jar with an apple or slice of lemon, orange, or grapefruit to provide additional moisture. Change the fruit every several days.

Tight containers which close out the air are recommended for keeping cakes at their best freshness. Cover them with waxed paper, too.

A bread box scrupulously cleaned at least once or twice a week with soap and water, and dried thoroughly contributes in large measure to the freshness of bread.

Keep in a Cool, Dry Place:

Coffee, spices, flour and crackers need dry, cool storage in tightly covered containers since they are affected by air. Use metal or glass containers for them. When crackers get soggy, crisp them in the oven for a few minutes and they will be as good as when you bought them.

Fats which are so valuable at present should be treated with the best of care so they do not become rancid. Store them in a glass jar or crock and place in a cool, dark storeroom.

Storing in the Cellar.

You are extremely fortunate if you have a cellar for storing purposes. Now with home and defense gardening gaining in popularity, you may have vegetables to keep for later use. If the cellar tends to become warm, leave the windows open at night, closed during the day.

Cook to Save Food Values.

Poor cooking may cause the biggest kind of waste in food. Perhaps you roast your meats at too high a temperature and cause them to shrink more than necessary. Be careful to watch temperatures and time in roasting or cooking meats. Meat, cheese, eggs and milk are all protein foods which should never be cooked too long or at too high temperature since this causes the protein fibers to become tough.

Measure water carefully when cooking vegetables so you do not have to throw any out and lose valuable minerals and vitamins into the kitchen drain. As soon as food is cooked serve it immediately as standing or overcooking causes loss in food value.

Cook with covers as much as possible except in the case of green vegetables which lose their coloring if covered. Starting the cooking of vegetables with boiling water will cut down cooking time.

Our recipe of the day is a good example of how you can combine several kinds of leftovers into one delicious main dish. The spinach may have been left over from yesterday's dinner, the shrimp from a luncheon you gave, and the bread crumbs rolled from stale bread.

Spinach Ring With Shrimp Sauce
(Serves 6 to 8)

3 cups cooked spinach
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
⅓ teaspoon paprika
2 eggs
3 cups cream sauce
½ cup fine bread crumbs
1 to 2 cups whole canned shrimp

Chop spinach fine and add grated onion which has been browned in butter. Season with salt, black pepper, paprika and add the well beaten yolks. Mix the spinach with 1½ cups cream sauce and fold in well beaten whites. Place in a buttered ring mold and dust with bread crumbs. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven for 20 minutes. Loosen by pressing spinach from side of mold. Heat shrimp with remaining white sauce and serve in center of spinach ring.

Lynn Says:

You can be smart about the way you use leftovers. Here are a few ideas:

Save leftover vegetables from dinner, wash the butter off and use in salads combined with celery, lettuce and dressing. Use other vegetables for stews, meat pies, and casseroles.

Leftover roasts slice nicely so you can have them cold or serve hot with leftover gravy. Meats combine well in casseroles, croquettes, stews, soup and salads.

Meat juices and bones combined with a few vegetables make up nicely into soups.

Clarify fats (bacon drippings, lard, suet, or chicken fat) by heating and adding 1 peeled, sliced potato and cooking until fat stops bubbling. Strain through a double cheesecloth, and store. Substitute ⅓ cup clarified fat for 1 cup butter in recipes.

Pour cooked cereals leftover from breakfast into jars or pans. Slice, fry and serve with syrup.

Leftover egg yolks are good for custards, mayonnaise, sauces and frosting. Leftover egg whites are excellent for angel food cakes, frostings, meringues and sauces.

CHRIST AND LIFE AFTER DEATH (EASTER)

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:24-27; I Corinthians 15:50-58.

GOLDEN TEXT—But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.—I Corinthians 15:57.

V for Victory! By that sign have many peoples indicated their confidence in a victory to come. It is well to have a victorious outlook, but it is even better to be able to look back to victory already attained. That is just what we are able to do as we consider man's great and final enemy—death. That victory has been won on behalf of all who believe, by the risen Christ of whom we think in a special way on this Easter day.

He is the Lord of the living, not of the dead; those who, even though they may have left this world, have only laid aside the corruptible body for the incorruptible. They are victorious, even as we are, over death.

I. Living, Not Dead (Mark 12:24-27).

The Sadducees, a rationalistic sect of Christ's day, denied the resurrection, and so they were much distressed by His plain teaching of that truth. They therefore devised an intricate hypothetical case (see Mark 12:18-23) and sought to set a trap for Him. But they only caught themselves, for He pointed out to them and to the people that what was wrong with them was that they did not understand the Scriptures nor the power of God.

That is precisely what is wrong with the modernists of our day—they misinterpret God's Word, and they deny His power.

Then Jesus turned to them and in place of their fantastic "supposing" story He spoke of three real characters from the books of Moses which they taught. He said that God still calls Himself the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because though they had long been in their graves, they were still alive. God's fellowship with His people is not merely for the brief life span of this earth, but for eternity. That fact, of course, carries with it the truth of the resurrection.

II. Incorruptible, Not Corruptible (I Cor. 15:50-54).

Man knows that his earthly body is marked for decay and death. That fact is written in its very members. He also knows that such a body would be entirely inappropriate for heaven—for eternity. Is he then barred from God's eternal kingdom? No, indeed, for there is to be a glorious change — the corruptible shall put on incorruptibility.

Whether we shall tarry until Jesus comes and be transformed without dying, or whether we shall await His coming for a time among those who sleep, there will come that trumpet sound, and in the twinkling of an eye we shall be clothed upon with incorruptible bodies like unto His glorious resurrection body (Phil. 3:21). There we have an assurance of victory already won on our behalf, which can and does strengthen our souls against the trials and sorrows of life.

III. Victorious, Not Defeated (I Cor. 15:55-58).

When Satan after a long struggle finally had Christ's body laid away in the tomb, he thought he had the victory, but just then came his great hour of defeat.

"Up from the grave He arose,
With a mighty triumph o'er His foes."

"Death could not hold its prey," for it sought to hold one stronger than itself—the Lord of Life Himself. He had broken the bonds of sin by His sacrifice on Calvary; and since it was sin (the violation of the law) which brought death in the first place (Gen. 2:17; 3:17-19), there was now a complete victory over both sin and death.

The one who knows Christ need no longer fear death. For him it is not a leap into the dark, or going as a trembling wayfarer into an unknown land. President John Quincy Adams was right when, aged and frail, he replied to a question as to his welfare: "Quite well, thank you. The house in which I live is tottering and trembling, and I may soon have to move out, but I am quite well." He was ready for the departure into a better land and a better body.

Such a hope has a splendid practical application, which Paul stresses in verse 58. With victorious assurance the believer stands steadfast and unmovable at the center of life, while always abounding in the joys and duties which come at its circumference. Like the wheel which can be useful only as its center is established and steady, so man can serve the Lord and enjoy a satisfying life only as he has the steadfastness of which Paul here speaks.

We trust that it is your possession by faith in Christ. If not, make it so on this resurrection Sunday!

When Emerson Forgot

Longfellow and Emerson were friends for 50 years. When Longfellow died, Emerson went to his friend's funeral. Passing the casket, Emerson paused a moment—and in a pathetic manner exclaimed: "I have forgotten the man's name who lies there, but he was a great soul."

Lilies, azaleas, japonicas and many other flowers are in bloom All these homes are surrounded by century-old live oak trees, their limbs covered with Spanish moss that almost touches the ground

"Green Leaves" was built in 1803 and is the ancestral home of the Beltzhoovers, and has been in the family for five generations Many of the original drapes are still in use This home has a set of chinaware painted by John J Audubon The border is in deep-blue, the center of each piece is painted with a different bird An old solid mahogany sideboard was brought from New Orleans in the year 1790 Mrs Beltzhoover wears the family diamonds and old gold bracelets. Out in the garden are two fine old oak trees, 300 years old, with a spread of over 100 ft

BEGIN 1942 TROUT STOCKING

Trout Fishing In Kleinlein Creek In Clayton County. One Of Iowa's Better Known Trout Streams

Fisheries men began this week to stock rainbow, brook, and brown trout in northeast Iowa trout streams. Earlier stocking has been prevented by the soft roads. However, the program will be on full schedule by May 1, the opening day of the trout season in Iowa. The 1942 stocking program calls for 142,000 trout from 7 to 10 inches long, and several thousand 10 to 14 inch trout. The State Conservation Commission anticipates the best trout fishing since the inauguration of fish stocking programs more than sixty years ago. Stream surveys show a heavy carry-over of wild trout.

The trout season opens at 5:00 a. m. May 1 and closes at 9:00 p. m. on September 30. Trout may be fished each day during the open season from one hour before sunrise to 9:00 p. m. war time. Daily catch limit is 8; possession limit, 16. Legal length for trout in Iowa is seven inches.

MacArthur's Australian Campaign Heightens Spirit of All America

General Douglas MacArthur

A fighting General for fighting mad people is he . . .

NOW you are going to see some real fighting.

That is what thousands of persons said, some of whom might have said it to you, when word was flashed from Australia that General Douglas MacArthur was down there to assume the supreme United Nations command in that region.

Ever since the war in the Pacific region began, the story of the ground warfare has been continually, and dishearteningly the same but with one exception.

Newspaper and radio accounts have related of continual retreats and, finally, surrenders by the Allied armies. But the brilliant exception to all this defensive warfare is and was the activity of General MacArthur, his aides, and his native and American troops fighting on the Bataan peninsula

Not only did MacArthur stop the Japs—and thereby causing the commander, Gen Masaharu Homma, to commit hara kiri—but he also put through two brilliant, strategical offensives which prevented further enemy advances at the time.

Reason for Australians' Respect.

Such immediate background of this brilliant general, this Number One officer of the United Nations, was the cause for the increasing clamor of the Australians to have MacArthur come down there and help them, with American, British, Australian, and native soldiers, resist the Japs in the last Pacific region stand So, after receiving orders on Washington's birthday from the President to go to Australia, MacArthur made plans with his successor, Maj. Gen Jonathan Mayhew Wainwright, a brilliant tactician, for further defense at Bataan

'Mac's the Man.'

When a "roving reporter" for one of the outstanding Midwest newspapers went out to interview pedestrians as to how they felt about the new shakeup in military control in the Pacific region whereby General MacArthur was given complete military control, the consensus of opinion was, "Mac's the Man"

One fellow said that it was the best news he heard since the U. S. entered the war. A housewife said that, "MacArthur is the man for the job." A student on his way to his class at university said that if anyone can successfully "Slap the Japs," MacArthur is the one that can do it. A not too busy auto salesman said that the general's appointment was the most important move since the United States was stabbed in the back.

Such opinions as these of Mr. and Mrs. America reflect—it is almost certain to say—the opinion of this nation, and all Allied nations as a whole. Even in London, the newspapers there, commenting on the first time that a foreign general has taken command of defense in British dominions, had nothing but encouraging, hopeful, and optimistic words.

Fame After Career Ended.

Fame came to General MacArthur after his career had ended! For it was in 1935 that he retired from the army after making a "name" for himself as officer of World War I, and decorated for conspicuous courage. His decorations are reportedly more numerous than any other officer in the service.

Back in 1903 he was graduated from military academy, heading his class Ever since then he has been showing his fellow officers and his men under him that he is "one of the men" who knows how to fight.

Son of a Civil war hero, Lieut. Gen Arthur MacArthur, General Douglas went with his father as an aide when he went to Tokyo on a mission in 1905-'06. On three different occasions he saw extended army service in the Philippines. In 1935 he went to Manila as the commonwealth's president, Manuel Quezon's military adviser.

That his advisory capacity to President Quezon was of a successful nature is now seen in the successful manner in which American troops, Philippine scout professionals, and Filipino reservists, under his command, fought.

So, at the age of 50, after many years of active service, it looked as though General MacArthur's military life was at an end. It seemed that he was then destined for obscurity after being chief of staff for five years. But, it has often been stated, that it is the seemingly little incidents in a person's life which eventually develop into significant, extremely important matters. What would have happened had MacArthur, upon being "retired," not been sent to the Philippines to shape up a military force there is impossible to say.

Once again, MacArthur's life is showing that fact is oftentimes more interesting than fiction. Here, in MacArthur, you see a story book soldier, cool, even tempered, poised, admired by his staff and men, preparing to do a titanic job despite heavy odds against it.

Even the general's air-flight of 2,000 miles to Australia had a touch of the dramatic to it. For the zone over which he and his officers and aides flew in two planes, has been conceded as being the "hot spot" of the southwest Pacific. This is the zone where both enemy and Allied planes are continually on the alert. Fighters, bombers, and interceptors, always ready for battle. When you look at a map and see the territory you will fully realize that MacArthur has not lost any of his boldness It is such daring, skill, and calm that has put all the confidence of the Allied nations' people directly on his shoulders The Yanks, and Aussies, being what they are in temperament, and disposition as to being ready for a fight at all times, now have a man as their leader they know will not fail them.

Congressmen Behind Him, Too.

That this attitude even goes for officials and congressmen in the nation's capital is noted in the comment of various congressmen on the day that MacArthur's safe arrival was announced in a special official war department communique. Sen. Millard E. Tydings, (D., Md.) said that Australia now has real leadership . . that he was very happy to know that MacArthur was down there where a man such as He is needed.

Rep Joseph J. Mansfield, (D., Texas) put in a comment which all Americans fully understand He said that MacArthur is sure going to "raise hell" with the Japs providing we can keep him supplied with a continuous line of supplies and men.

House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.), said he was happy to hear of the famous soldier's appointment. He further added that such an appointment will add to the confidence of the American people.

The day that MacArthur's appointment, and successful flight to Australia was announced, the President in his press conference also had words of encouragement for the American people. He said that the purpose of the transfer was not to develop further defensive measures, but primarily, and definitely to "win the war." President Roosevelt said at that conference that he felt, too, that every American man and woman held the same admiration for the fighting, brilliant general that he held.

Since General MacArthur has taken his new command in Australia to stop, and then push back, the Japanese drive, Maj. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright (left), shown talking with Gen. MacArthur, has been appointed to the command of the forces that outfought, despite 20 to 1 odds, the Jap forces on the Bataan peninsula in the Philippine Islands.

Future General??

Little four-year-old Arthur MacArthur, son of General and Mrs. MacArthur, is starting early in a possible war career. Besides having a famous general as a father, Arthur's grandfather, a Civil war veteran after whom he is named, commanded a Manila brigade in 1898 when U. S. forces captured that city.

When war broke out in the Philippines little Arthur and his mother, the former Miss Jean Faircloth of Murfreesboro, Tenn., were reported safe on the island. The next word that came through as to their whereabouts was when their arrival in Australia with the general and his staff was announced.

Mrs. Douglas MacArthur

It is now up to her husband . . .

Like Father, Like Son

General Douglas MacArthur, and his deceased father, Lieut Gen Arthur MacArthur, experienced military lives exceedingly interesting because of their striking similarity as available information proves.

Lieut. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, like his son, Douglas, was advanced over the heads of many older officers to more important posts.

Both father and son, Arthur and Douglas MacArthur, showed great strategical talent. One of the father's Civil war tactics of battle eventually became a war department standard officer examination. The son's strategy in the Philippines is well known to all newspaper readers, who have been following his brilliant leadership.

DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

SENIORITY

War and Navy Secretaries Stimson and Knox let the senate foreign relations committee in on a number of military secrets, which cannot be disclosed, when they testified behind closed doors on the $500,000,000 loan to China. In return, the cabinet officers were vouchsafed a political secret by Senator Tom Connally, committee chairman, which can be told.

The courtly Texan was confronted with a problem in protocol in trying to decide whether Stimson or Knox should be the first witness. Finally, he turned to the 74-year-old war secretary and said:

"Mr. Stimson, we will hear you first. I believe you have seniority."

"I won't stand on my seniority if you prefer hearing Mr. Knox," smiled Stimson.

"Oh, we insist," said Connally. "We are great believers in seniority here in the senate. If that weren't so, some of us committee chairmen wouldn't have our jobs."

Note: Though not named by Connally, Senator Reynolds of North Carolina, chairman of military affairs, is definitely in this category. Able Senator Austin, though a Republican, does the real work of the senate military affairs committee.

ARMY GOES TO SEA

A hot, backstage fight between the army, navy and maritime commission has developed over Brig. Gen. Charles P. Gross and his ambitious plan for the army to take over all war shipping. The row has even gone up to Harry Hopkins and to Transportation Czar Joe Eastman, so far without settlement.

Crux of the battle is that General Gross, an infantry officer recently placed in charge of army transportation, is eager to take over docks, ships, rails and inland transportation, operate all of the supply ships which now sail under the maritime commission and the navy.

The maritime commission and the navy, however, claim that the job of the army is to remain on the land, and they will handle water transportation.

Before the sea-dogs realized what was happening, however, General Gross had quietly written out an order and taken it to Joe Eastman, who was on the verge of signing it. Gross is under General Somerville, the quartermaster general, who was New York WPA administrator under Harry Hopkins, and Somerville has pushed the plan with his old friend in the White House.

However, ex-Budget Director Lewis Douglas, newest addition to the maritime commission, so far has blocked the army grab. He claims the army has enough to do fighting, without sailing ships.

BRITISH RED TAPE

"There'll always be an England," but U. S. fliers now trying to save India are wondering why. British officials in India don't want them to enter India until 31 days after they have taken yellow fever shots. By that time the Japanese, who don't have to observe the 31-day rule, may obviate the need of U. S. fliers going to India at all.

Stopping Inflation

Inside fact about the current quarrel over inflation and the farm bill is that sage old Bernie Baruch long ago warned the President, Leon Henderson and the inner circle that they could not stop inflation if they put the brake only on prices.

"Price-fixing is like a four-legged chair," Baruch warned them. "It won't stand on two legs or even three."

There is no use regulating consumer prices, he said, unless you also regulate profits, also wages, also farm prices. If one of them gets out of hand, the others will too.

Baruch, who was head of the War Industries board in the last war, has been harping on this point for months. He urged congress more than a year ago to adopt a very high excess profits tax to take away all the war profits from industry, and at the same time he urged the President to clamp down on wages as well as prices.

The President actually got a little irritated at Baruch's pounding away on this theme. Today, however, chief resentment of the farm belt is not so much against Roosevelt's urging that farm prices be kept down, but over the fact that labor's income has skyrocketed while the farmer's hasn't. Furthermore, the farmer complains that he has to pay a lot more for his labor—when he can get it at all—but he can't increase his farm prices proportionately.

Tie Up Icebergs

Whaling ships in the Antarctic are frequently followed by small icebergs propelled by the forward movement set up by the vessels in the air around them, reports Collier's. When a ship cannot get away from one of these nuisances after several days, even by turning quickly to port or starboard, members of the crew have to take an old cable and tie it up to a large berg.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

THE WINNERS

The Kellys, the Lockards, the Caseys, the Andersons and the Lieutenant Coxes will win this war! . . .

They and the other American kids, bred in the daredevil full-swinging, sock-it-outa-the-park tradition . . .

The smash-that-line, block-that-kick, pickle-that-apple, drive-the-green, nail-him-on-the-beezer, clear-the-bases youngsters.

The boys too cocky, confident and courageous to doubt, quibble or hesitate . . .

The youngsters who have not lived long enough to lose an illusion, to figure the percentages or to question their own impulses.

The Tom Sawyers, the Peck's Bad Boys, the Slats McGonigles and the Kayo McGanns . .

The Yanks who are still young enough to believe Goliath was a pushover for David, that Jack the Giant Killer was under-written, and that Superman can be seen in any mirror . . .

The buckoes who have had no dreams shattered, no hopes battered and no words destroyed . .

The boys who, with two strikes on 'em, can say, "Here's where I pickle one, ya bum!"

The Butch O'Hares, the Joe Moores, the "Jake" Schwartzes and the Grant Mahoneys they will do the job.

The boys too full of high hopes and self-confidence to worry about costs . . .

The lads with pink cheeks and flashing eyes, ready for a fight or a frolic, able to sing before a rendezvous with death, able to look disaster in the face and give it the Bronx cheer.

The kids whose impulses are foreign to the conference room, the staff huddle, the parleys; and whose minds say "Lemme at 'em!" and never, "Suppose the plan goes wrong?"

* * *

They'll sew it up . . . the "Skinnies," the "Reds," the "Spikes," the "Mickeys" and the "Freckles" of the sandlots, farms and campuses, born and raised in the spirit of high competition, split-second reflexes, hair-raising exploits and hits-in-the-pinches.

The kids who have never learned to play safe . . .

The bimboes who swing from the floor, get up when they're groggy, put over the haymaker, pole out the homer with the bases full, race the length of the grid for a touchdown, hole out with a brassie shot . . .

The boys who are too young to ask "Suppose this doesn't work out according to plan?" "It's a good idea but will it stand analysis?" or "What's in it for me?"

The youngsters who have never known the meaning of expediency.

* * *

They will finish this war . . .

The boys who rate many things above influence, prestige, cash, power and transportation by beach-wagon . . .

The kids who are not protecting a past, trimming sails to meet the present or worrying about the future . . .

The fellows who have never learned to compromise, haggle or defer . . .

The ones with all the flaming imagination of children, the supreme confidence of the kid pitcher, the hell-for-leather gusto of the boy socker who comes to bat in the ninth with the bases full and two down . . .

* * *

The kids who have never had to have their blood pressure taken and who think a fallen arch has something to do with Pompeii.

The youngsters who can never be imagined saying "Let's talk this over." "Hadn't we better wait for the breaks?" "Let's check and doublecheck before we do anything."

The boys who rate "Zowie!" "Pow!" and "Wham!" as the three most expressive words in any language.

And dragged him in the boat.
No hero's bows I want to take—
I just had signed his note.

Ingenious New Prints Are as Refreshing as Spring Itself

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS GLORIOUSLY fresh as springtime itself are the lovely print styles in frocks and costumes now being shown for wear in the Easter parade and on through the season There is no shortage of beauty in their styling, colors or fabrics. A noticeable trend toward emphasis on good lines and restraint in trimming adds extra grace to these new offerings to winter-weary wardrobes.

According to those engaged in fashion industries we are definitely on our way toward an era of femininity in dress. Not extravagant, frivolous garb, mind you, but winsome, becoming clothes such as our men in war service want us to wear when they come home on leave, or seek diversion in recreation centers that offset the grimness of war.

It is just such charm that is expressed in the pretty dresses and hats pictured in the above illustration. As ideal an Easter costume as ever ventured forth on a sun-drenched spring morning is the very good-looking jacket costume of fine rayon print crepe shown to the right, below, in the above picture. To wear this slender one-piece frock and trimly fitted jacket effectively a proper foundation garment, smooth of line through hips and midriff is imperative. Then, too, snowy white accents to give the final endearing touch of femininity must be added, just as you see them pictured here. Try to find anything more ladylike, more expressive of good taste, to wear on a fair Easter morn.

If there is one thing that is contributing more than another to the glory of the new fashions, it is the ingenuity with which designers are combining prints with plain fabrics. The current handling of cutout print designs appliqued on a monotone fabric is developing into a technique of high artistry and amazing originality. Print and plain are artfully combined in the stunning frock shown to the left in the above picture. Here a pretentious apple design is ingeniously applied to sooty black smooth-draping rayon crepe at one side of the softly flared skirt and on the opposite shoulder. The attractive motif is repeated on the wide patent leather belt.

Special attention is called to the matching lacy woven pyroxilin hat and bag twosome. The entry of plastics into millinery design is one of the important fashion highlights this season. Here is a very convincing demonstration of the emphasis that is being placed on fetching accessories.

An exotic south sea island pattern printed on fine textured rayon crepe makes the attractive daytime frock centered in the above group. Soft draping through the bodice front and an all-around pleated skirt combine to create an effect of ease and grace. Note the wide brim of the hat. The wide brims are going to breath-taking dimensions, according to the new millinery for spring and summer.

Contrasting with the wide-brim vogue are the prettily feminine little hats that are as capricious as perky ribbon bows and color-bright flowers and whimsical veils can make them. Such a hat is the lovely pink rose-laden one shown in the inset above. Wee sailors, not much bigger than the palm of your hand, are chic this season, their style vying for supremacy with sailors of enormous brim.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Suit Hats

Fashion is placing great emphasis this spring on perky little headgear, which milliners call "suit" hats. As the name implies, these chic headpieces are designed to wear with suits and with casual tailored town jacket dresses. Typical are the two models pictured in the above illustration. The little sailor done in the "suit" hat manner is very popular. As the picture at the top shows, the rolled coiffure is particularly adaptable for the girl who favors the sailor type. The other hat is a clever new tricorne of black felt faced with mustard yellow bagheera. This spring, more than ever, you can change your suit by changing your accessories, especially your hat.

Colors Are Matched For Busy Shoppers

The calendar has us thinking about our spring wardrobes again, but this year we Americans are putting more serious thought into this subject than we ever have before. We are thinking earnestly in terms of efficiency in planning new clothes and right here is where the new color-related fashions fit in.

The plan is one whereby you can have a complete wardrobe, everything from your dress or suit to your lipstick in beautiful basic colors which match and mix perfectly. Any of us who want or need color-combination advice, or who must be strict with our budgets, or who have only a lunch hour to shop for a complete outfit, will find everything available in the same place in the new color-related fashions now being shown in leading stores.

Play Shoes Are Colorful With Mexican Embroidery

Play shoes are a riot of color and design, with bright red shoes among the favorites.

There are also many red and navy combinations, and there are interesting novelty shoes fashioned of natural colored or multicolored straw.

The fancy suedes are enlivened with colorful Mexican embroidery.

Navy-and-White

There will be an overwhelming number of navy blue suits, coats and ensembles making their debut this spring. Especially in the spotlight are sheer navy bolero costumes that are bewitchingly frilled with snowy white accents.

Necklaces

Coffee beans, shellacked cereal, watermelon seeds, painted and unpainted nuts, corks, leather peach-pits or what-have-you are strung into the most eye-catching necklaces imaginable. Smart with sports clothes!

THE MISSION OF THE SEVENTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:1-7, 17, 21-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest. —Luke 10:2.

Working with Christ for the salvation of men has been the privilege of believers since the time He chose the twelve. We learn today that there were at least seventy more whom He considered dependable and worthy to be sent forth. Knowing how brief was the time before His death, the Saviour called, commissioned, and cared for them as they went two by two, personally to evangelize "in every city and place."

I. Sent to Serve Christ (vv. 1-3).

Prayer is back of the calling of laborers for Christ. God waits for His people to lay before Him the need, and to enlist His grace in moving upon the ones who can best serve Him. There is mystery here which we cannot fully understand, but it is perfectly clear that prayer is the power which has been given to the church with which to "move" the hand of God. The reason the laborers are so few, even in our days is evidently, then, because there has been so little prayer.

Observe that the Lord sent His servants "two by two" so that they could encourage and assist each other. Christian work is best done in Christian fellowship The "star performer" or the "lone wolf" may be acceptable in business or social life, but he has no place in Christ's program, unless by His special call and guidance for some particular task, such as pioneer work.

He sent them to go "before His face"—what a glorious place to be! That means that He was watching over them, expecting them really to "labor" for Him. But notice also that in loving thoughtfulness they were—

II. Sustained by Christ (vv. 4-7).

It is well when workers go out that they have proper backing. We speak of the "board" which is behind our missionaries. That is right and proper, but above all there must be the assurance of the provision and protection of Christ.

They were not to be concerned about money. Christ had already moved upon the hearts of His people to see that the laborer had "his hire"—which was food and shelter (v. 7).

Time is what life is made of, and the servants of Christ were not to waste it in lengthy oriental salutations (v. 4), or going from house to house to be entertained, thus losing much time and strength.

Nor was he to strive or become angry if some one did not receive him and his greeting of "peace" (v. 6). In any case his word would return in blessing upon himself (v. 6), and he could go on to another house. The point of all this is that the expectation of the Christian servant is from his Master, Christ, whose business requires diligence and haste (I Sam. 21:8b).

The outcome of such service is revealed in our third point.

III. Successful Through Christ (vv. 17, 21-24).

The seventy returned rejoicing that even the demons were subject to them in Jesus' name. He still has power over the demons of our day. Would that the church wielded that power more effectively!

While it is a great thing thus to see the power of God at work, Jesus told them in verse 20 that an even greater thing is to have one's name written in heaven. That means that we ought to be much concerned not only about having our own names written there, but the names of all those whose lives we touch—at home, at work, anywhere.

The secret of the disciples' victory is found in the statements which Christ in all humility and honesty made about Himself (vv. 22-24). He is the one to whom "all things are delivered"—unlimited in authority and power. The mystery of His person and work is not something man can think out or fully comprehend (how foolish have been the attempts to do it!) for He is God. The fact that the Father had revealed these things to the seventy humble, ordinary men caused Christ to magnify His Father's name in praise and prayer. Spiritual insight (vv. 21, 24) is something only God can give, and often He can give it in full measure only to humble and lowly men. "Men like D. L. Moody, who became spiritual giants, were usually humble men from lowly walks who gave themselves wholly to God" (B. L. Olmstead).

Need to Slow Up

The world is going too fast! Even the Church needs to slow up for it is attempting too much in social programs and is losing spiritual poise in many places. Paul said to the Church, "Put on the whole armor of God." The whole armor takes time to put on, yet it is dangerous to leave off any part of it.—Rev. A. E. Gregory.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Disconnect electric iron as soon as you have finished with it, thus preventing fires and the burning out of iron.

* * *

When you have many children's clothes to make, you can save time and effort if you use a sort of factory method. Cut out three or four dresses at a time (using different materials if you like). You can finish them in a variety of ways.

* * *

Scratches on furniture may be concealed by rubbing with good furniture polish, with lemon oil, or with linseed oil. Scratches on mahogany may be retouched with a little stain of the same color.

Rusty or dusty furnace pipes lose heat more quickly than pipes which have been painted with aluminum or other paints.

CONDITIONS IDEAL FOR TREE PLANTING

Conditions are ideal for tree planting this spring since there is plenty of moisture in the ground

Nearly every home in Hancock County needs one or more new shade trees.

Many trees are poor varieties and have suffered a great deal of damage during recent drought years.

Forestry experts recommend a native variety for shade tree the American elm, the hard or black maple, hackberry, green ash, linden or basswood and oaks, white red or pin oak.

Chinese elm, poplar, soft maple box elder, catalpa and mulberry are not recommended because of their brittleness, break badly and are short-lived They are, however, fast growing

Many trees can be transplanted from the home grounds or from native timber. Care should be used in transplanting these trees so that the roots are not allowed to dry out before they are replanted

NOTICE TO SCHOOL DIRECTORS

Your attention is called to the statute 4229 regarding Teachers Contracts and in particular to the clause quoted as follows

"Such contract shall remain in force and effect for the term stated in the contract and shall be automatically continued from term to term thereafter except as modified by mutual consent of the school board and the teacher until terminated by a majority vote of the full membership of the school board or by written resignation of the teacher before April 15th of each year. Such termination hall take effect at the close of the school year in which the contract is terminated in the manner aforesaid Provided further that such contract may be terminated at any time by mutual consent of the school board and the teacher and provided further that this act shall not affect the powers of a school board to discharge a teacher for cause under and pursuant to section 4237. (S F. 481)"

Toasted Bunnies Parade for This Easter Dinner!
(See Recipes Below)

Easter Time

As gay as red tulips with food as fresh and appealing as spring itself is the Easter dinner menu I have planned for you today. It's simple and economical as is in keeping with the times, but with spring-like accents that lurk in the fragrant mint leaves, spring lamb, green peas, crisp, bright salad and in the distinctive ice cream.

With Easter on the wing, winter is definitely on the way out, and our thoughts naturally turn to lighter foods and delicate, pastel table settings. For Easter brings out your loveliest white cloths or pastel yellows. As flowers jonquils make an inexpensive but effective centerpiece. Or, for something more dramatic, try red tulips in the center of the bowl banked on all sides by white snapdragons.

Leg of Lamb Roast.

The paper thin covering or "fell" on your leg of lamb does not affect the flavoring of the cut and need not be removed until just before serving. In fact, when left on, it keeps the roast in better shape, cooks more quickly and keeps the juices well within the meat.

Mix ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon dry mustard, 3 tablespoons flour with ⅓ cup cold water. Spread this over the leg of lamb. Roast uncovered in a moderately slow (325-degree) oven 30 to 35 minutes to the pound. Spread with currant jelly the last 20 minutes. Baste meat every 15 minutes.

Apricot Garnish.

Use canned halves of apricots or stewed halves, well chilled. Place a nugget of mint jelly in the center and serve around the leg of lamb roast.

A touch of red is a hard color to resist especially if it's in a crispy, zestful salad as this one:

Cranberry Apple Salad.
(Serves 6)

- 1 package lemon gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- ½ of a pound can of cranberry sauce
- 1 apple
- ½ orange
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice

Dissolve the gelatin in boiling water and chill until thickened. Crush cranberry sauce.

Lynn Says:

The Easter dinner I planned for you is economical but doubly so because you can make good use of the leftovers.

Cut the remainder of the roast off the bone, grind it with a fine grinder, ½ onion, the potatoes and green peas. Place in a buttered dish, bake until heated. During the last seven minutes of baking break eggs whole on top of lamb mixture and serve as soon as eggs have cooked.

If you have just a little of the cranberry apple salad left, cut it into small cubes and serve as a relish. For salad, use leftover apricots from the roast garnish and fill the center with cream cheese and nuts and serve in lettuce cups with your favorite dressing.

If you have a few leftover green peas from dinner toss them together with a few carrots, shredded for a change. You can cream these, or mix them with a few bits of crumbled bacon. For variation you might try a few tiny boiled onions with the leftover peas to make enough for a vegetable dish.

Rolls though leftover go over well even the next day. You can slice, toast and butter them. If you like them whole, simply put in a covered casserole with a few drops of water and allow a few minutes to heat through.

Dessert? This is easy. Spoon the ice cream on vanilla wafers, top with another wafer, more ice cream until all is used. Chill for an hour or so and serve sliced with a dab of whipped cream if desired.

Easter Dinner

Fruit Cup with Mint Leaves
*Leg of Lamb Roast with Apricot Garnish
*Creamed Potatoes Green Peas
*Cranberry Apple Salad
*Honey Rolls
*Almond Ice Cream with Easter Bunnies
*Recipes Given

Grind apple and orange, leaving skins on. Combine cranberry sauce with fruits and lemon juice. Add to gelatin. Pour into molds and chill until firm, or pour into a refrigerator tray and cut in squares when ready to serve. Serve on crisp lettuce with creamy mayonnaise.

Crusty, fragrant honey rolls are a gracious addition to your Easter dinner. No need to worry about food shortages when excellent rolls such as this are minus sugar and only a small amount of fat and one egg. Rolled and cut to look like a swirl, these Honey rolls may be baked in buttered muffin tins, or may be shaped into cloverleafs. Have them hot or cold as you prefer, they're good both ways.

Honey Rolls.

- 1 cup milk
- ⅓ cup honey
- ¼ cup fat
- 1 cake compressed yeast softened in ¼ cup lukewarm water
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 egg
- 4 cups flour

Scald milk, add fat and honey. Add yeast, salt and 2 cups flour. Then add beaten egg and remainder of flour to form a soft dough. Knead lightly until smooth. Let rise twice, then form into rolls. Let rise until light. Bake in a hot (400-degree) oven about 20 minutes

Creamed Potatoes.

Method I. Peel new potatoes and wash thoroughly. Cook them in boiling water for 10 minutes. Add enough rich milk not quite enough to cover, and finish cooking potatoes. Be careful not to burn potatoes, stirring often, or cook in double boiler. Add salt, pepper and butter to taste

Method II Boil new potatoes in their jackets Cool and peel Melt 2 tablespoons butter, blend in 2 tablespoons flour, and add 1 cup of milk Cook slowly, stirring constantly, until thick. Add potatoes to this, season, and heat through

Easter dinner with the traditional leg o' lamb, peas and mint jelly touches demands a distinctive and at the same time a harmoniously flavored dessert. Almond flavoring is perfect foil, guaranteed to please, in this creamy, quickly prepared ice cream No sugar required!

Almond Ice Cream.
(Serves 6)

- ⅔ cup sweetened condensed milk
- ½ cup water
- 1½ teaspoons almond extract
- 1 cup whipping cream
- ½ cup finely shredded almonds

Mix sweetened condensed milk, water and almond flavoring. Chill. Whip cream to custard-like consistency and fold into chilled mixture. Freeze in a freezing unit until half frozen Scrape from tray and beat until smooth but not melted. Add almonds. Replace in freezing unit until frozen.

For the Easter bunnies you may use day-old sliced white bread. Cut the bread with a bunny-shaped cookie cutter Spread all sides of the cutouts with sweetened condensed milk, then roll in dry, shredded coconut, broken fine. Brown under broiler at low heat, watching very carefully, or toast over coals if you prefer by placing the bunnies on a fork These taste like coconut frosted angel food.

TUNE IN RED SKELTON AND OZZIE NELSON EVERY TUESDAY NIGHT, NBC RED NETWORK

MISS FRIEDA SCHULDT WRITES FROM SOUTH

"Longwood" was under construction at the beginning of the Civil War and has never been completed The work benches still stand on the second floor the way they were left when the War broke out It has been built on the plan of an old Moorish castle and is 8-sided, (octagonal) One octagonal room is in the center under a large round dome, on each side of the center room is a room facing the outside The house has 32 octagonal rooms Beams are put together with wooden pegs and the nails are hand made The house is only partly finished and only the caretaker lives there

"Hope Farm" is the home of Mr Balfour Miller, president and founder of the Garden Pilgrimage tour This house was built in 1774 and 1789 by the Spanish Governor and has rare antiques

Rosalie of 1820 was General Grants headquarters during the Civil War and is now the Mississippi State Shrine of the D A R.

"Auburn" was presented to the city by Stephen Duncan It has a perfect spiral stairway without a support

One of the old homes still has the original paint on the interior woodwork. One has a beautiful old floor of wide blue poplar boards, in shades of light yellow, brown, and blue We see four poster beds of mahogany with canopy tops; elaborately hand carved furniture of solid rosewood, mahogany and walnut, seats covered with horsehair or brocades; brocaded drapes and lace curtains a hundred years old and many other antiques.

These old houses were built at a cost of a fortune by the early planters who sold their cotton at high prices in Europe.

The cotton planter of the south today is a different type of person A farmer here told me that with good care, much fertilizer, one bale of cotton per acre can be produced and sold at $60 to $70 per bale About half of this goes for expense

The farms are small, about 30 acres, part planted to cotton, corn and vegetables The land sells at $5 to $15 per acre The soil is red or brown, light and sandy Plowing is done with mules

Thousands of people come from every state in the union and foreign countries to Natchez during the Garden Pilgrimages. The proceeds go for war relief, Red Cross and other organizations

The second night in Natchez I attended a Negro Spiritual held at a Negro church. This was very different from anything I had ever seen, a musical entertainment given by a large chorus of negroes

Arriving in Chicago Saturday morning I found the ground covered with snow which was quite a contrast to the flowers, green grass and song birds of the southland

In Chicago I visited with Mrs. Harlan We visited the Museum of Science and Industry at Jackson Park.

Sincerely,
Frieda Schuldt

COUNCIL PROMISES ACTION ON OILING THE STREETS

At the meeting of the city council Monday night, the matter of oiling the streets was taken up and discussed.

Last August 4th a petition signed by approximately seventy propery owners was presented to the council, asking that the streets be oiled or otherwise dust-treated

At that time the council thought it was too late in the year to go ahead with the project and promised to do the work in the spring

Mayor W C Keraus appointed Herman Priebe, Lloyd Lau, John Etchen and Art Wellemeyer on a committee to look after the work

The information gathered last summer by the council was that the oil was most effective when applied in warm weather and the early part of June seemed ideal for applying the treatment

The council promised to have a full report on the matter before the next meeting

SCOUTING DESERVES YOUR SUPPORT IN COMING CAMPAIGN

The United States needs the Scouting program now, asserted John Pritchard of Britt in calling upon residents of the community to support the "Friends of Scouting' campaign in the Hancock district from April 17 to May 1

"We must remember that next to active military service itself, there is no higher opportunity for serving our country than helping youth to carry on in their efforts to make themselves physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight, and prepared to help their country to the full in time of war as well as in time of peace

"As one who has been interested in Scouting over many years it has been most heartening to have so many evidences of the practical value of Scout training as we organize our armed forces for the task ahead of us.

"Although we are at war and the immediate emergency situation dominates the life of the nation, the American people should continue to be on the alert to meet their responsibilities to our youth

"We must make sure that those volunteer agencies which are supplementing the church, the home and the school by providing training programs that will help equip the present generation to cope with life problems in the difficult days ahead, are maintained to their maximum capacity and effectiveness."

Failure to give our boys proper training not only deprives them of a valuable background in the event they are called for military duty but it may also create social problems requiring valuable energy and manpower to correct.

Attention is called to the experience of England where the war and a resultant discontinuance of Scout training contributed to a 41 per cent increase in juvenile delinquency To combat it, authorities found it necessary to recall men from active military duty to restore Boy Scout programs

More than 2,500 boys are receiving Scout training in the Winnebago council today, according to Mr. Pritchard, not learning military tactics but engaging in the game of Scouting that, while preparing them for the pursuits of peace, gives them strength of body and character and love of freedom that will, if they are "called", help them to be the best soldiers the world has ever seen

More than 500 men are now serving as volunteer Scout Leaders in the Winnebago council area, most of them men of means and position who could not be 'hired' to do the job they are doing without pay.

J. A. CHAMBERS WILL OPPOSE GEO. KLIPPING AT THE JUNE PRIMARIES

J. A Chambers, farmer residing south of Klemme on highway 69, is this week announcing in newspapers of Hancock County that he is a candidate for the office of supervisor of Hancock County Mr Chambers will oppose Geo Klipping, present incumbent, at the republican primary election in June.

Mr Chambers is well known over most of the county He graduated from the Corwith high school in 1902 and then attended Iowa State College where he studied agriculture and animal husbandry, and graduated there in 1907 Mr Chambers has been farming ever since, near Corwith, and for the past six years he has farmed near Klemme

GAME FARM STARTS PRODUCTION

Week-old Pheasants In Brooder House At The State Game Farm At Boone

The first pheasant and quail eggs for the 1942 Cooperative Game Bird Program will be placed in the incubators at the State Game Farm at Boone on April 18. "Mother" Clyde Updegraff, hatchery superintendent, reports this, the earliest setting since the establishment of the Game Farm in 1938. Twenty-six sportsmen's clubs have to date requested game birds this year. Estimated hatchery production for 1942 is 40,000 pheasants and 15,000 quail. Two-weeks old pheasant chicks are sent to the cooperating groups and reared in specially designed pens until they are eight to ten weeks old. They are then released on areas where a seed stock of pheasants is needed or where game bird environment has been improved. Quail are sent from the hatchry to groups when the birds are two weeks old, and are released in the coverts when eight weeks old.

Because of the exceedingly high pheasant population in the wild, fewer pheasants are being produced than in 1941. However, it is hoped that more quail than ever before will be sent to cooperators from the Game Farm this season.

Australia, Country of Fighting Men, Faces Greatest Struggle in History

Land 'Down Under' Welcomes Yank Assistance.

By CLIFF LANGE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Australia, the last practical Allied base for attack against the Japs, is similar to the United States both in size and attitude of its people.

It wasn't but a few years ago—1938—that Australia celebrated its 150th anniversary. But now it is girding and ready for a battle to the death against the foe creeping down from the north, engulfing all territories and peoples before it, like the Biblical deluge.

Most of Australia's inhabitants are of British extraction. But in spirit the "Aussies" are just as American as they are British. The welcome given to American troops upon their arrival there, the demand for General MacArthur to lead the Allied forces in the fighting zone, all clearly show the attitude of the Australians.

Australia's 7,000,000 population is spread over almost 3,000,000 square miles of territory as compared with the United States' total of 133,000,000 population in approximately the same amount of space.

Australia, like our state of Georgia, was first settled by English convicts That both groups did a good job is evidenced by today's far-reaching developments.

Today most Australians live within a narrow 100-mile coastal belt along the south and east. About half of the population is in the nation's half-dozen largest cities. Sydney, having a million and a quarter inhabitants, is the largest; Melbourne, with a little more than a million, is next largest. Both of these cities are practically at the opposite end of the continent from Darwin, which has been bombed repeatedly.

Vital Defense Road.

From Darwin to the above mentioned metropolitan cities it is little more than 1,500 air-miles Canberra, the nation's 15-year-old made-to-order capital, is located about 100 miles southwest of Sydney, on the road to Melbourne

Australia's transportation system now playing a very important part in the nation's defense (and coming offense) is peculiar in that many of the railway lines extending inland come to an abrupt end

It wasn't until but a few years ago that the railway extending southward from Darwin was connected, by a defense highway, with the railroad extending northward from Adelaide to Alice Springs This road is the artery through which Australia supplies men and materials to the northern battle scene

With the exception of most of the coastal regions, the greater part of Australia's central territory is flat, arid and semi-arid land which is practically defenseless. More than a third of it is actual desert It is in the semi-arid zones that the nation's vast scattered ranches and large grain producing centers are located As the huge stretches of land located here are irrigated, this section of Australia will be one of the most fertile zones when the war is ended

As for natural resources, the nation has everything needed for war activity except oil The oil industry is a recent development and not very encouraging insofar as amounts produced. Last year's production totaled only a few hundred barrels.

The European war curtailed agricultural and grazing activities, but operated to speed up the nation's expanding factory life. Towards the middle of 1939 there were nearly 27,000 plants employing more than a half million people. Reports since then have not been made public.

As gold helped considerably to develop California, its discovery in Australia helped to open up vast territories there. It was first discovered in 1843 and the influx of prospectors raised the population in seven years from around 200,000 to more than 500,000 A story is told about an Australian who crossed the Pacific to take part in the California gold rush While prospecting in California he noticed that the gold bearing rock and soil of that state had a marked resemblance to territory he had seen in his native land. He found his hunch to be correct when he returned there to prospect

The Commonwealth of Australia is a self-governing nation, sharing British dominions, to the British king. The Commonwealth is comprised of six colonies called "Original States" They are New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Victoria, Western Australia, and the island of Tasmania—plus the Northern Territory and the Canberra Capital Territory.

It wasn't until 41 years ago that the six original states united to form a commonwealth. Up to that time there had been many inter-state quarrels—some of them going so far as to create trade barriers against each other.

Preparing Since '38.

The Australian federal government is similar to our own in many ways It has a senate and a house of representatives In case of a prolonged disagreement with the house, the senate can be dissolved and a new one elected The house, too, can be dissolved under certain exceptional circumstances. A governor general—representing the king of England—is the executive head of the government

Since the inception of the Labor party in 1938, the government has been vigorously building up the munitions and industries and expanding its land and air forces. In 1938, on down to the present day, the government, as part of its national defense policy, has been urging the manufacture of fuel oil and gasoline from its own coal, and the creation of large plants for the manufacture of industrial alcohol.

At no time during the Twentieth century has this spunky nation deluded itself as to what country was its coming enemy Trouble, which all Australians saw on the southwest Pacific horizon, had been brewing ever since 1935 In that year the tariff laws which gave a marked preference to Great Britain in the sale of cotton goods in Australia Japanese markets were practically smashed. As a result the Japs virtually boycotted Australian wool in retaliation.

Today the Australians are fully aware of how correct they were in their assumptions concerning the over-ambitious Japanese. Today, this scrappy little nation that covered itself with glory in World War I, is ready for a repeat performance. The Aussies are determined that their nation shall remain as they have always had it—a land of individualists, rugged and aggressive—a land free from the imprint of a tyrant's heel.

The above uncompleted railroad line, transversing the center of the Australian continent, (connected in its central part by the Defense highway), is the important artery of war which will be mentioned quite often in future war dispatches from there.

Prime Minister of Australia, John Curtin, who recently clashed with the London government over the selection of Australians who take part in imperial government affairs.

Still Has a Frontier Spirit.

The Yankees, "down under" in Australia, at least 7,000 miles from their native land, will be learning much about the Aussies, and the land they are helping to defend.

True, the Yank will have time to absorb but little of the past history of the nation. He will, however, learn all about present-day Australia for the Aussies, in addition to being excellent fighters, are definitely proud of their native land without being intensively nationalistic.

The Yank will understand the spirit of the country by remembering that Australia today—outside of its metropolitan cities—has the same "frontier" spirit which lived in the United States about 50 years ago.

The average American citizen and the average American soldier associates Australia with kangaroos, early experiments in social legislation, a national scourge of rabbits, and some remarkably courageous fighting men who covered themselves with glory battling the Germans during World War I.

Then the Yanks will see that the cities are just as modern as those in the United States. The East and West coasts of the United States, where the majority of large cities are located, is somewhat like the east and south coasts of Australia where the most important cities such as Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Brisbane, and Maryborough are situated.

They will show the Yanks that despite their arming to the hilt, they aren't by nature warriors, nor do they have disturbing aspirations to be such saber-rattling people.

When Australia raised the age limit for enlistment to 40 years, these men were among the many who answered the call to fight for the motherland. Shown here are veterans of World War I who took part in the fierce fighting with the Germans in France.

Animal Curiosities in Store for Yanks

There are many other unusual animals which the Yankee doughboy might see in Australia.

Like the early days of the West in the United States, in the north section of Australia, live nomadic tribes who make fires with sticks and kill their game with spears Like many tribes of Indians in early U. S. days, these nomadic people are quite harmless, some of them being friendly with the Australian "frontier" people.

The Yankee soldier, remembering his history, will be interested to learn that in the far north section of Australia, buffalo roam over an area as large as the British Isles, in a territory where few white men live.

There are many other strange creatures there that are peculiar to Australia There is the wombat which burrows deeply, the dingo and the spotted native cat, and the mole, blind, deaf and dumb.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

HOME-GROWN FASCISTS

After three months of temporizing with native Fascist champions, Attorney General Francis Biddle is finally going to get tough—on direct personal orders of the President.

Roosevelt directed Biddle to take vigorous legal action against certain factional leaders who have been publicly denouncing the war against the Axis and in some instances actually expressing pleasure over Jap victories.

Complaints have poured into Washington from parents of boys in the armed services demanding that these domestic foes be jailed. But Biddle demurred on the ground of "preserving civil liberties."

Shortly after Pearl Harbor, FBI agents arrested Robert Noble, rabid Los Angeles Fascist leader, on serious charges involving statements concerning the war. Despite the FBI's evidence, Biddle ordered Noble released.

This brought down a storm of protests on Biddle's head that steadily increased as the hostile operations of these elements became bolder and more outspoken. Still Biddle refused to allow either the FBI or federal district attorneys, who were champing at the bit, to crack down.

Finally White House advisers, alarmed over the situation, took the matter direct to the President. They laid before him a mass of evidence dealing with Noble, Father Coughlin, Francis P. Moran of Boston, Gerald L. K Smith of Michigan and Charles B. Hudson of Omaha.

One document shown Roosevelt was the March 16 issue of Coughlin's weekly publication which declared that a "world-wide sacred war" was declared against Germany nine years ago. The publication also attacked aid to Russia, denounced the British bombing of French plants making Nazi supplies, and contained such statements as:

"Unless the German forces can overcome Russia and successfully invade England by the end of September, there is every evidence that the entire world will have elected to experience a blood bath the like of which was never imagined by the most poetic minds"—"It has been the practiced policy of the Roosevelt administration to favor the Chinese in their war against Japan. This policy has rankled in the hearts of the Nipponese war lords who are devoted to the policy of Asia for the Asiatic, a policy which, after all, is nothing more than an expression of our own Monroe Doctrine."

After carefully examining the evidence, the President summoned Biddle, ordered him to get tough and do so immediately.

GOOD WAR NEWS

Here is some all-important GOOD war news for a change.

The United States and the British Empire have won a victory of supreme importance in the crucial war production race

For the first time in the 2½ years of the war the United States and Britain now are outproducing the Axis and its vassal states in vital arms and munitions

Although the two Allies still are on the defensive, henceforth Anglo-American war output should pile up an ever-increasing margin of armament superiority

U S producing capacity in particular is just beginning to swing into an all-out war scale The mighty auto industry, for example, is now being furiously converted. Other major industries are undergoing the same transformation. Also hundreds of new war plants are in various stages of completion, with hundreds of others being projected.

Sage old "Bernie" Baruch comments: "We can't yet crack our heels together in celebration, even if things are better."

What he means is that there are still plenty of sour spots.

Some of these are: labor supply, certain obstacles in the flow of materials, shortage of materials, inadequate use of equipment insufficient subcontracting, red tape and bureaucratic obstruction, the incompetence, greed and lack of initiative of many employers, the profit-mindedness of dollar-a-year men.

But despite all these, U. S. industry every week is pouring out a steadily soaring floodtide of war supplies. On the basis of a private survey made by the authors of this column, it can be stated definitely that with the British Empire's greatly accelerated production the two Allies now are ahead of the Axis

Note: The survey was limited on the Allied side to the U. S. and British Empire because it is impossible to get detailed information about Russian production

Congressional critics of President Roosevelt are caustically denounced by A F. Whitney, white-crested president of the Railroad Trainmen, in the latest issue of the union's magazine In a lead editorial Whitney declares, "No congressman or congressional committee, no senator or group in the senate, no Axis agent or anyone else seeking to use the war to discredit the President will throw any sand in our eyes in any way useful in their desire to advance a selfish, ignoble purpose."

TAXICAB business boomed recently at one of Hollywood's major studios, unaffected by the rubber shortage. Richard Carlson and Martha O'Driscoll drove off in one to be married, with Cecil Kellaway at the wheel. That was in New York. Then Burgess Meredith and Louise Platt rode to a railway station in Newark, N. J., in the same cab. Finally Allan Ladd and Bonita Granville took the same cab to Brian Donley's home in a Middle Western city. Same cab—mounted on a fixed platform, never turning a wheel; it had no wheels!

In Suits or Satin, Wartime Brides Are Lovely as Ever

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THERE'S big news in the realm of fashions for brides We used to speak of "the season for brides." Well, there is no special season now, for the entry of an increasing number of wartime brides into the picture has changed all that. Weddings are apt to happen any time, anywhere, these days.

If you are wondering about the fate of the bride in gleaming satin and masses of billowy tulle who has always been the pride and joy of the fashion world, you may rest assured she will grace the springtime picture as radiantly lovely and picturesque as ever. From style centers everywhere comes the news that, while there will be a continuous program of informal weddings because of rush orders to soldier grooms to return to their posts of duty, yet there is definitely a continued trend to big weddings.

For the formal bride who is fortunate enough to have a pretentious wedding in the time-honored way, the exquisite gown pictured in the foreground of the above illustration is a masterpiece of all that goes to make up a "picture." There is infinite charm in this stately wedding gown of gleaming ivory white satin, enhanced with a yoke of Alencon-type lace. The snug-fitting basque is prettily sleeved with short puffs of the satin which add to the youthful technique employed all through the costume design. The Victorian bouquet complements the quaint charm of the gown and the short bridal veil. This bridal bouquet is of white roses and pompom chrysanthemums, with a deep red rose as a touch of romantic modernism. The bride's flowers are traditionally the groom's responsibility, but it is the bride's privilege to specify her preferences, and it is readily to be seen that the bride pictured here made a most excellent choice.

The bride who is real news this spring is the bride who is going to be married in a simple little suit in a hurry-up wedding because of army regulations and the uncertainties of the soldier-groom's recall to headquarters. Thus a new expression, "suit wedding," has been coined, and to meet its requirements designers are giving of their best to create costumes that will make the simple wartime bride as lovely and charming as the stately bride who is privileged to enjoy all the pomp and glory of a more formal wedding.

Ingenious designing resulted in the suit dress pictured to the right in the above illustration. It is a triumph of soft tailoring and is beguilingly feminine and definitely fashion-right. It boasts two lives, for it serves both as a suit and as a charming dress when the jacket is removed. This New York creation is of navy wool with attached blouse top of red crepe, gaily printed in vivid blues and greens which matches the jacket lining. A jaunty hat of white fabric trimmed with red and white fringe completes the ensemble. The gloves and footwear are perfect selections.

For a young girl who is planning a quiet wedding the simple crepe frock with its cunning jacket effect, as shown centered in the above picture, is ideal. Of either navy or black (black with lots of white is very smart), it will look girlish and "sweet" relieved by deep white lace half sleeves. The lace is removable. However, the high note of charm is the matching lace hat which gives the "pretty bride" look as convincingly as any arrangement of orange-blossoms and tulle that might be devised.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Bright Squares

The new prints are superb in color and technique, and they have the look of uniqueness about them which every woman covets. Here, illustrated above, is a print that qualifies on every count as a winner. This New York creation of black crepe, simply fashioned, is scattered with large red and white squares. The skirt is marked by softly gathered front fullness. The bodice is graceful and easy fitting. The wide belt, with its huge buckle, is of black patent leather. Of especial interest is the hat, for it is characteristic of an important style trend. Its flattering fan-pleated brim is bordered on the upper side with navy grosgrain ribbon. The white linen-weave straw is very smart.

Short of Materials? Designers Say 'No'

To those engaged in apparel industries has come an unprecedented challenge to make the adjustments necessary to carry on a program of conservation of materials in accordance with wartime priority rulings. The reaction to this challenge is most heartening. There apparently will be no lack of fashion interest but really a gain in new ideas and new ways of making the most of materials at hand.

Silk or no silk, nylon or no nylon, we are going to have flattering and wearable hosiery of the sheerest of sheer lisle or fine gauge rayon. As to "pure silk" silks, what is being achieved with rayon and other synthetics is a revelation.

Achieve Maximum Style With Minimum Yardage

The restriction on materials has spurred designers to create fashions that require minimum yardage. So look for slim silhouettes and shorter jackets styled so intriguingly you will be converted to the idea at first glance.

The new side-saddle drapes are so amazingly slenderizing they are destined to enjoy definite style prestige.

Gray and White

Watch the fashion parade and note the preponderance of gray suits, dresses and coats. Gray has become such a hobby with fashion we will be seeing more of it than we have seen for many a season. Gray hats with white accents are outstanding, as is the all-white hat with a gray suit.

Frankly Feminine

Hat styles tend to be frankly feminine. Even the huge brims are supple and becomingly manipulated. Some of the newer little hats are mostly a labyrinth of bandeaux with which to anchor tiny forward-pitching flower pieces to the head.

The Once Over by H. I. Phillips

THE STUDY OF A MINUTE MAN

The Minute Man came into being at Concord and Lexington.

He was so called because the question of hours didn't bother him when trying to win a war.

With him a minute was 60 seconds and even if it ran into 62 he didn't demand overtime.

When his country wanted him, a minute's notice was plenty.

He was so loyal he would even take your version of what time it was.

* * *

The Minute Man was a Minute Man and never a Four-Minute Egg.

He realized that a minute is a long time when somebody's life is at stake.

He knew a minute was 60 seconds and not subject to change without notice.

He knew there were 60 minutes in an hour but he acted as diligently as if he were afraid there might be only 59.

He stood ready to fight at a minute's notice but didn't squawk if he got only 30 seconds.

He never put off till the morrow the bull's-eye he could make today.

He never heard of the word complacency, but if it had been explained to him he would have thought himself guilty if he had stopped to look around between shots.

His slogan was, "Don't shoot till you see the whites of their eyes!" but he gets 'em now when he senses the black of their hearts.

When life and liberty were involved he knew no form of compromise that didn't depend on marksmanship. The Minute Man hadn't even a half second for an appeaser.

He was no luxury hound even when the going was good, and when the going was tough he thought he was well fixed if he had a fair supply of dry powder and bullets.

He never left to any committee, agency or board anything he could do himself.

He never confused an attack with an appropriation.

To a Minute Man every minute counted in the job of licking the foe and he never argued over hours.

He didn't worry about the peace until he had won the fight.

It never entered his head that he could do his duty in a free-for-all fight by buying some stamps, appearing at a benefit or offering to spend two hours on a roof every other week, unless he was over 60. Nothing would have disturbed him less than a reduction in luxury transportation, less rubber in his suspenders and a room in which the temperature got below 70.

* * *

He knew all the Indians were in the woods and not in his legislative bodies. He was brave and rugged but he thought one war at a time was enough.

He never called his fight a "defense" effort and was always out to lick the fellow who started the trouble.

He didn't need long and frequent speeches to make him understand he was in a battle.

In his most desperate minutes the Minute Man never gave any part of a minute to worrying about his morale. It would have taken too many hours.

The Minute Man was an all-year-round man every second.

The True Role

The true role, in determining to embrace or reject anything, is not whether it have any evil in it, but whether it have more of evil than of good.

There are few things wholly evil or wholly good. Almost everything, especially of government policy, is an inseparable compound of the two, so that our best judgment of the preponderance between them is continually demanded.—A. Lincoln.

Because of the large amount of legal matter this week we are forced to leave out the school and other news of interest.

Ink Spots And Spatters

RAMBLING ALONG THE MAIN DRAG

We have often wondered why the kids in this town don't play marbles in the spring In many places that is the first sure sign of spring. We doubt if marbles can even be bought in Klemme. We have never seen any "commies" or "glassies" on display here.

The younger kiddies do, however play "jacks" A few skip the rope and fly kites, but we haven't seen any kids rolling the hoop.

Maybe the kids of this day and age are not getting the most out of life.

That vacant look around the park is due to the recent job of trimming the trees . . . they darn near ran out of trees!

* * * *

It's no longer "Defense" bonds and stamps. The government now calls them "War Savings" bonds and stamps. Buy them and help slap a Jap.

* * * *

Terry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Koerner is only three years old but he is quite a veteran in some respects:

As a traveler he has been in 13 states and Canada.

As a sight-seeing young man he has seen Coulee Dam and watched a big forest fire rage in Wyoming

He has ridden in an air plane and on a stream-lined train

He has visited an army camp and sat in a big bomber!

Give that boy a little time and he will get around!

We now greet our next door neighbor as Dr. "Dafoe" Dulmes!

The advance guard of martins arrived this morning and the annual battle between the sparrows and martins for the bird house in our back yard is again on. The martins will win.

The Farmer's Wife Deserves Much Credit

FOR bringing up our children, while we husbands mostly sat back and gave advise.

Husbands Appreciate

Now that the price of hogs has doubled and eggs and other farm products are at high levels, is good time for Husbands to show their appreciation in about the only way they can: with money.

The thing to do is to hand the check book to the good wife and send her to town to buy what she needs or would like to have in New Furniture and New Rugs.

This is a good time to replenish your home needs, while you have the money. Furniture prices have not advanced nearly as much as your prices, We still have a large and complete stock.

J. Fuller Pep
By JERRY LINK

Nothing much gets by Old Judge Wiggins! "Fuller," he says to me, "just about the only thing that can keep on growing without nourishment is some folks' conceit."

And speakin' o' nourishment reminds me that you got to get all your vitamins. That's why I keep tellin' folks about KELLOGG'S PEP. 'Course PEP hasn't all the vitamins. But it's extra-rich in the two most likely to be short in ordinary meals—vitamins B₁ and D. And PEP's a jim-dandy tastin' cereal, too. Why not try it tomorrow?

Kellogg's Pep

A delicious cereal that supplies per 1-ounce serving: 1/2 daily need of vitamin D; 4/5 to 1/5 minimum daily need of vitamin B₁.

Honey Flavors This Fruit Bran Bread
(See Recipes Below)

Substitute Foods

Most vital question every homemaker is now facing is how to substitute certain available foods for shortages. Sugar shortages and reduced supplies of fats, oils and certain imports make it necessary for every one of you to revise your meals in some respects and use substitutes.

Although sugar rationing is to be in effect, you will still be able to get some of it. There are also good substitutes for it such as honey, molasses and corn syrup all of which may be used very easily for cooking and sweetening purposes. Still another excellent source of sugar is in the dried fruits which you can use for dessert to get your daily quota of sugar.

Select recipes which have less eggs, sugar and butter, for although there may not be an actual shortage of all these items, they may be expensive

Fats are extremely valuable in the current emergency, and you are advised to save as much of fats and oils as you can. Be sure that your butcher puts in all the scraps of fat and trimmings off the meat you buy. You can take these pieces home and clarify them for use in frying, flavoring or actual cooking.

If you have blithely discarded the scraps of butter off the butter plates after dinner, lunch or breakfast, then remedy your habits immediately Even if you do not use the butter scraps as table butter, these can be used for flavoring vegetables, or in larger amounts for cooking and baking purposes. Be sure the butter is kept in the icebox or at least in a cool place so it will not become rancid

Butter and its substitutes will be available, but you should plan to use these foods sparingly You can substitute the corn and vegetable or even mineral oil for salad dressings if you are unable to obtain olive oil.

Cheeses which have been formerly imported are available only in limited quantities, but American made cheeses are coming to the fore, the Bleu and Camembert cheeses being of excellent quality.

Soybeans are becoming a popular, nutritious food during the current emergency. Here is an excellent recipe for

Soy Bean Yeast Bread.
(Makes 1 loaf)

- 1 cup milk
- 1 cake compressed yeast
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon fat, melted
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3¼ cups wheat flour
- ¼ cup soy bean flour

Lynn Says:

With new equipment at a premium, you will be a wise homemaker if you give the best care possible to the pieces you already have.

Disconnect electric appliances by grasping the plug itself, not by pulling on the cord. When washing electrical equipment such as coffee pots or toasters or waffle irons, wipe with a cloth rather than immersing in water.

Scouring pots and pans with steel wool pads impregnated with soap, after each meal during which you use pots and pans, will keep them bright and shiny longer.

Keep sulphur away from silverware to prevent tarnish. Eggs, matches, salt, fruit juice and even rubber tarnish silver quickly. When washing cutlery with wooden handles, be careful not to let the handles stand in water or they will become loosened.

Grease new pans before putting them in the oven and they will never rust. For rusty pie tins, rub a raw potato with cleansing powder on it to get rid of the rust quickly.

To sharpen scissors cut a fine grained piece of sandpaper into strips.

This Week's Menu:

*Old Fashioned Boiled Dinner
Pineapple-Nut Salad
*Fruit Bran Bread
*Baked Pears Cookies
Coffee Tea Milk
*Recipes Given

Scald milk and cool to lukewarm. Pour over yeast and sugar in mixing bowl and let stand for ½ hour. Add melted fat and salt and the flours, beating them in well. Knead the dough for about 10 minutes on a lightly floured board. Cover and let rise in a warm place for ½ hour, then knead again for 1 minute. Repeat the rising and kneading process twice more. Shape into a loaf and let rise again in a greased pan until double in bulk or about an hour. Bake in a hot (400-degree) oven about 50 minutes.

Honey or molasses along with fruits rich in carbohydrates contribute to the sugar content of this fruit bread:

Fruit Bran Bread.

- 1 egg
- ⅔ cup honey or molasses
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1½ cups bran cereal
- ½ teaspoon soda
- ½ cup chopped figs
- ½ cup chopped dates
- ½ cup raisins
- ½ cup chopped nuts

Beat egg well, add honey or molasses. Add bran and buttermilk. Sift the dry ingredients and add to first mixture with fruit and nuts. Stir only until flour disappears Bake in a greased loaf pan with waxed paper placed at the bottom before the mixture is poured in. Set the oven at moderate (350 degrees) and bake bread for about 1 hour.

Simplicity will be the keynote of meals so in keeping with that theme, I am including two desserts using fruit flavored with honey

Broiled Grapefruit.

Wash and dry grapefruit and cut in half crosswise allowing ½ grapefruit per person. With a sharp knife cut around and under the entire pulp being careful to leave all the membrane on the shell. Cut down each side of each section loosening each section completely. Lift out center section or core. This leaves only the separated sections in the shell. Spread the top of each half with honey and dot with butter. Place under a broiler flame in moderate oven until honey begins to carmelize and all ingredients are blended together. Serve hot.

Baked Pears.
(Serves 8)

- 8 pear halves
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- ½ cup honey
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons butter

Arrange pears in a shallow baking dish. Pour over lemon juice and honey. Sprinkle with cinnamon and dot with butter. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until tender, 20 minutes if uncooked pears are used.

Old Fashioned Boiled Dinner.
(Serves 8)

- 5 pounds corned beef brisket
- 1 white turnip
- 1 head of cabbage
- 8 onions
- 8 carrots
- 8 potatoes

Cover meat with cold water and heat rapidly to the boiling point, then remove scum and reduce heat. Simmer until tender 3½ to 4 hours. Prepare vegetables, cutting turnip into eighths. Peel potatoes, carrots and onions. About 45 minutes before meat is done add vegetables and cook them until tender.

Serving Well Cooked Food.

Warm plates for hot main dishes and well chilled plates for cool salads and desserts can put over the simplest meal and make it a success. A few bits of canned leftover fruit with a dab of leftover jelly will make meat platters an attractive garnish, or sprigs of parsley, watercress, or celery tops for meat and vegetable platters do big things to tempt weary appetites.

GROWING TENSION WITH FALSE LEADERS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 11 37-48, 52-54.
GOLDEN TEXT—He that is not with me is against me, and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.—Luke 11 23.

Opposition to Christ and to Christian teaching has come down through the centuries practically unchanged. Hence, we find in Christ's dealings with the enemies of His day helpful indication of what may be done in our time.

It is sad to note that the chief opposition came from those who professed to be religious leaders. It is expected that the world, the flesh, and the devil should fight God's truth, but one might expect better of those who profess His name. The difficulty is that there is only profession, with no real life.

I. Hypocrisy Unmasked (vv. 37-44)

The Pharisees professed great interest in the observance of religious laws, but their concern was for the outward appearance, while God judges the heart. First we note a false profession of cleanliness. Christ came to the Pharisees' table with clean hands, but He had not observed all their ceremonial washings When rebuked He struck home with terrific force at the heart of the whole matter (v. 39); namely, that inward filthiness of heart which often makes folk meticulous about outward cleansing This leads to a substitution of technical observance of the letter of the law that ignores love and judgment (v. 42), which are so precious to God. There can be a dead, dry, and technical orthodoxy which entirely misses the point.

But worst of all is the covering up of spiritual death (v. 44). Sometimes we speak of those who are "dead and don't know it," and that may actually be true spiritually. There may be death within and yet a brave and sometimes self-deluding outward show of life.

II. Theological Deadness Condemned (vv. 45-52)

The lawyers of that day were those learned in the Mosaic law, hence were really the teachers of theology and ethics. They came under the rebuke of Christ as He pronounced three "woes" upon them.

First, they were guilty of heaping upon others burdensome requirements which they did not themselves keep, and which they did not help the people to keep. There are such teachers today who set up standards they do not themselves observe, a sort of signpost pointing the right way, while they are not themselves going that way. Then there are those who present high ethical standards without the spiritual dynamic needed to live up to them. To tell a man to be good without telling him of the Saviour who can make him good is mockery.

Then, those of Christ's day were condemned for hating God's witnesses. They were willing to build sepulchers for the dead prophets (killed by their fathers), but were not willing to hear the living prophets. How true to life that is! The very ones who hate and hinder those who are preaching God's Word, speak and sing smoothly of the faith of our fathers, and claim as their own the witnesses of a past day.

Christ also pointed out that while professing to interpret the law they obscured its meaning. They threw away the key to knowledge so that neither they nor their people could learn—and yet they continued to teach. Have not the false teachers of our day done likewise? They deny the integrity and authority of the only infallible Word—the Bible, they reject the deity of our Saviour, Christ, and yet they talk about being Christians and preachers of the truth. Woe be unto them in the day of God's judgment and wrath!

What happens when such men are condemned or unmasked? We find—

III. Enmity Intensified (vv. 53, 54).

The scribes and Pharisees had two approaches: they sought vehemently to provoke Him to overspeak, and they craftily laid in wait for Him. The writer of these notes has seen both methods at work in our day. Liberals, or modernists as they are called, profess for the most part to a suave courtesy which makes them speak smoothly and gently about the conservative and orthodox believer or teacher; but if one only has eyes to see, there is often the strong and cruel hand of iron hidden under the velvet glove.

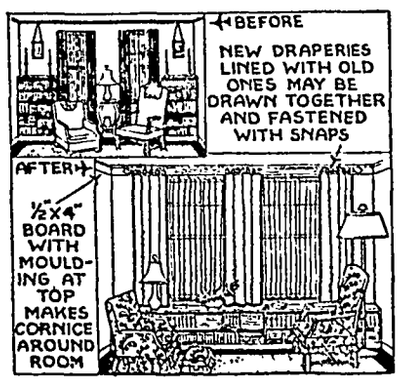
Whatever may be the approach, be assured of this—every effort to reveal false teaching in its true light, or to deal with hypocrisy in spiritual things will bring intensified opposition. Christ took it—we too can take it in His name and for His sake

Praise the Lord

I will greatly praise the Lord with my mouth; yea, I will praise him among the multitude. For he shall stand at the right hand of the poor, to save him from those who condemn his soul.—Psalm 109:30-31.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS



BEFORE
NEW DRAPERIES LINED WITH OLD ONES MAY BE DRAWN TOGETHER AND FASTENED WITH SNAPS
AFTER
½"x4" BOARD WITH MOULDING AT TOP MAKES CORNICE AROUND ROOM

LONG before we were threatened with the necessity of blackouts window draperies were hung well over walls to give rooms a sunny spacious effect. The same idea may now be used to keep light in at night. A cornice taking the place of a picture moulding is smart for both modern and traditional rooms and gives anchorage near the ceiling for rod, or pole.

This sketch shows how one homemaker made cheerful, soft green sateen blackout draperies, repeating a tone in the chintz of the new slip covers They are edged with cotton cord fringe in a darker tone.

Shocked Racers

After a man has driven an automobile in a race, such as the 500-mile Indianapolis Classic, his nervous system is shocked about as much as it would be if he had been severely stunned and hurled from 40 to 50 feet by an explosion, says Collier's.

Sometimes these racers also develop such a rigid grip on the steering wheel that they are unable to open their hands and their fingers have to be pried loose.

True Greatness

It is great, and there is no other greatness—to make one nook of God's creation more fruitful, better, more worthy of God; to make some human heart a little wiser, manlier, happier, more blessed, less accursed.—Carlyle.

CLEAR LAKE, IOWA

For Supervisor

I am farming a half section of land in Twin Lakes township and own a farm in Ell township, and having lived most of my life around Corwith, farming eleven years in Boone township, I feel that I am best located to supervise the various interest of Hancock County.

The center of the county from east to west, including the towns and vicinities of Britt, Garner, Duncan and Hutchins will not be affected by a change in Supervisor for the term beginning January 1, 1943.

The south-east corner of Hancock County has not had a resident Supervisor in over 30 years. At present all the Supervisors live in the north half of the county.

The present incumbent is asking for a fifth term I would appreciate your support for the FIRST TERM and your vote for the nomination at the June Primary on the Republican ticket

Friends Of Scouting Drive Now Under Way Here

$7,000 NEEDED FOR WORK IN THIS DISTRICT

Seek To Enroll 10,000 People As "Friends Of Scouting"

More than 1,500 workers in the nine counties which make up the Winnebago Council of the Boy Scouts of America are now being recruited in a campaign designed to make one-tenth of the population of those counties Friends of Scouting

Enrollment of more than 10,000 in the Friends of Scouting drive will erase the problem of raising approximately $7,000 in the council to carry out its program of expansion, making Scouting available to every boy in the nine counties, of which Hancock county is a part

That Scouting is an important part of citizenship training in any community is attested by the men who are making the active campaign, men who rank high in their respective communities, declared the campaign chairman, Rush Gabrielsen of Crystal Lake

"Only a project which was of vital importance to their community could demand from men of such caliber the time and effort which is being offered freely by the workers throughout the council," he asserted

The council's campaign vice chairmen are Dr. A L Miller of Charles City, and W P. Butler of Mason City

The district campaign staff for Hancock county is John Pritchard of Britt, chairman, prospect chairman, Fred C Missal, Garner; publicity, Ray Jorgenson, Klemme and audit, C G Waterman, Klemme

Local Scouters started the campaign to raise funds in Klemme Monday morning

BOY THOUGHT LOST WAS ONLY HIDING

There was a lot of excitement at the Carold Larson home just west of Klemme last Thursday afternoon when their little boy, Bobbie, could not be found and it was feared he might have wandered to the river close by, or had been picked up by a passing motorist.

Officers in Klemme were called and Sheriff Brower notified. Mayor Keraus notified Scoutmaster E. Gerardi and in five minutes the Boy Scouts had mobilized with emergency equipment and ready for action.

By the time the search had become organized by quite a large gathering, little Bobbie showed up smiling!

Bobbie somebody had wanted to play hide-and-seek and when he heard his named called, just hid all the better. He had crawled into some tires near a shed and was really enjoying the "big game".

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS HAD PARTY

FARMERS ASKED TO CONSERVE FEED BAGS

Hancock County farmers are asked to cooperate in the conservation of cotton and burlap bags for the packaging of agricultural commodities, according to County Agent Paul Henderson

Major objectives of the program being sponsored by the U S Dept. of Agriculture are to urge farmers to handle the bags carefully so that they can be used repeatedly and to promote the quicker return of usable bags into trade channels.

War has already greatly reduced imports of burlap and stocks now on hand must be shared with our military forces as well as with the increased requirements of agriculture under the program for expanded production.

Normally about 60 percent of all textile bags manufactured in the United States are used for agricultural purposes and approximately half of those used by agriculture are made of burlap imported from India Burlap imports, due to war, are now negligible. Raw cotton stocks are ample, but at best only slightly above normal supplies of cotton bags will be available for use during the first half of 1942 since the mills which manufacture heavy cotton bagging materials are at present working to capacity to fill war orders

ELMER PARKS CAR IN BARBER SHOP!

Crystal Lake, April 14 Paul J. Kirkpatrick, prominent barber and community man at Crystal Lake, thought that his customers were demanding curb service Saturday evening when a car suddenly crashed through the front plate glass of his shop and landed right smack in front of his barber chair

But when he regained his composure from the effects of the startling episode he learned that Elmer Ax, Klemme, was in the act of parking his car in front of the shop and instead of stepping on the brakes, his foot jammed down the accelerator, causing the car to lunge up over the curb and crash through the glass front of the barber shop.

Considerable damage was suffered by both the building and the car, but fortunately no one was seriously injured.—The Britt News Tribune.

"HAPPY LANDINGS," COMEDY IN THREE ACTS

One Act Play Will Also Be Presented By The Seniors

The Senior class of the Klemme high school have chosen a modern three-act comedy for their play to be presented Friday night of this week The title of the play "Happy Landings" has plenty of clean comedy, romance and a sprinkling of mystery

The story centers around the Stackpoole family and they have an exciting time with all of their guests, both invited and uninvited. It seems everyone has a different problem, but each works out his own tangles and everybody feels happy when the final curtain is rung down.

And to give the audience their money's worth, the Seniors are also putting on a one-act play "Never Trust a Man."

The high school music department will provide entertainment between acts.

The triplets have been named: Janice Faye, Joan Kaye and James Ray.

RATIONING CHAIRMAN CALLS MEETING OF SUGAR RATIONERS

Dr. G. A. Bemis, Hancock county rationing administrator, has issued a call for a meeting at 8.00 o'clock on Friday evening, April 24, in the court room at Garner

All school superintendents, rural school teachers or others who have been appointed to take charge of sugar rationing in their school district are urgently requested to attend this meeting as definite instructions will be given at that time.

MINNOW STOCKING UNDER WAY

Bushel Of Spawning Fathead Minnows Ready For Stocking

Several large bodies of state-owned water are being used this year for the first time for the exclusive production of minnows. Large numbers of spawning fathead minnows are being collected for stocking purposes and, after reproduction, will be liberated in the natural and artificial lakes to provide food for game fishes. The population of forage minnows is at a low ebb in many of the state lakes, and it is hoped that the minnow stocking program will correct this condition.

Game fishes require a large number of minnows in their diet, and when these minnows are lacking, the large, carnivorous species are forced to prey on their own young and on the offspring of other game species. The young of perch, blue-gill, and crappie suffer heavily if minnows are scarce or absent. The Commission is striving to increase pan fish populations as well as that of the larger game fish, and they are anxious to curtail cannibalism as much as possible among the game fishes.

U. S. Requests Citizens' Aid In Scrap Hunt

Nation Searches Junk Piles For Vital War Needs.

By ROBERT W. McSHANE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Help win the war by getting in the scrap!

With this plea, Uncle Sam is enlisting the aid of every man, woman and child in the nation's war effort.

This new battle cry isn't a call to arms. Rather, it's an urgent plea to salvage every available scrap of metal, paper, old rags and rubber. That old stove in your basement, the rusty, ancient binder near the machine shed, the bundle of papers in the attic—all can be used to defeat the Axis. In fact, almost every unused item or piece of equipment around the home or farm can be used with telling effect in the war against the totalitarian powers.

With the launching of the salvage program, officials of the War Production board and representatives of industry pointed out that a critical shortage of scrap metal now exists in the United States. Unless more scrap is forthcoming at once, war production will slow down immeasurably. Because of this shortage, the war likely will be prolonged by months, even years

Salvage for Victory.

"Under normal conditions," a WPB representative pointed out, "the steel industry, for instance, depends upon scrap for approximately one-third of its supply of raw material. With the vast expansion of our armament program, including the aid that we must continue to send to Britain, Russia and China, it is obvious that the salvaging of metals heretofore wasted or destroyed must be augmented to a tremendous degree In frequent instances recently, steel mills have been threatened with shut down for lack of scrap."

As this is being written, one of the nation's largest steel mills reported only enough scrap metal on hand for two days' production. This is less than one-tenth of the company's normal supply.

The importance of general salvage is emphasized by the bureau of industrial conservation, officials of which point out that the success of the "Salvage for Victory" program will have a profound bearing on the outcome of the war

According to bureau figures, waste materials have supplied 50 per cent of the raw materials for the steel industry, from 20 to 25 per cent for the manufacturers of aluminum and a large proportion for many other essential materials

Guns Versus Automobiles.

For every automobile that isn't manufactured in 1942, we will have saved enough zinc and copper to make brass for 2,400 cartridge cases for 30 caliber ammunition, enough nickel to make 100 pounds of nickel steel for armor plate, projectiles, and armor piercing bullets, enough tin to coat 1 000 cans in which we put food for our soldiers and sailors. This is only a small part of the critical material which has been made available to war industry through the stoppage of automobile production

Disposal of old papers, in a manner both patriotic and profitable, is made easy through use of this housewife's paper baler. The baler, which holds 25 pounds, is equipped with a spool for cord and a razor blade holder.

Scrappy Party Ends With Row

Patriotic duty was mixed with pleasure recently when Mr. and Mrs. William Coburn gave a party at their home in Boston, Mass. Party invitations requested each person to bring at least 25 pounds of scrap. Mr. Coburn views the potential guns contributed by the guests while Mrs. Coburn tries out a rowing machine donated by Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

Government figures disclose that there is an enormous pile of scrap iron and steel on the six million farms throughout the nation. The estimates run from 1½ million tons to 3½ million tons—more than enough, when combined with other materials, to build twice as many battleships as there are in all the navies of the world today.

The British ministry of supply estimates that one ton of waste paper will produce any one of the following: 1,500 shell containers, 47,000 boxes for 30 caliber ammunition, 71,000 dust covers for airplane engines or 36,000 practice targets. Only 28 per cent of the nation's paper is now recovered.

Leon Henderson, price administrator, has estimated that defense needs will require 50 per cent more waste paper in 1942 than was needed in 1941. A large share of this must come from family units

Sixteen per cent of the 882,000 tons of rubber which the U. S. will use in 1942 must come from rubber reclaimed from old tires and other used rubber goods. To get this 141,120 tons of reclaimed rubber, wholesalers will need all the old tires and tubes, boots, shoes and garden hose the public can contribute.

Immediate Action Needed.

Even the lowly rag plays an important role in wartime. Every housewife knows how necessary cleaning rags are to her domestic duties. Uncle Sam's problem is the same—only it is magnified a few million times Those are essential to war production plants, where they are used to keep machinery clean and in working order.

What can you do to help in the nation's salvage for victory program?

The answer lies in direct, immediate action. The scrap material lying idle around your home, around your farm and around your business place must be uncovered and turned over to war production. It must be done immediately. Shortages in critical material exist now. They must be met at once if America is to meet the war production schedule established by President Roosevelt. Industry can answer the present challenge to democracy—but only if every person co-operates to the fullest possible extent.

Every effort is being directed toward developing in the minds of the general public an understanding that the need for metals, paper, rubber and rags now cluttering up homes, shops and factories is a continuing need, and a demand that will increase rather than lessen.

Local salvage committees are functioning in every community throughout the nation. These committees will furnish complete lists of needed scrap materials to every interested person.

Farms Are Best Source.

Farms, the greatest single source of scrap material in the general salvage program, are expected to furnish thousands of tons of scrap metal in the form of obsolete machinery and tools, junked automobiles, old logging chains, wire fencing, old tires and tubes, obsolete motors and motor parts, wheelbarrows, rusted gears and the thousand and one things which find their way to the scrap heaps on almost every farm in the nation.

Farmers who are unable to haul their own scrap to the nearest salvage depot have merely to call the closest salvage committee (or the local county agent) and arrangements will be made to dispose of the material.

State salvage committees have recommended that any person who has an accumulation of scrap material, in whatever form it may be, call a nearby waste material or junk dealer, who will buy such material at current prices. Persons who have been in the habit of giving wastepaper, rags and scrap metals to charitable organizations, such as the Red Cross, are urged to continue that practice, since these organizations sell their collections promptly.

Small towns are becoming an increasingly important source of supply. Residents have been asked to collect such material as brass or iron beds, electrical equipment, kitchen utensils, picture frames, old metal ornaments, toys, coat hangers, old carpeting, blankets, fireplace equipment, old furnace parts, plumbing fixtures, radiators, automobile chains, license plates, garden tools, burlap bags, old rubber and all types of hardware, including door knobs, hinges, hooks, locks, springs, etc

The lists furnished by local salvage committees are ample proof that almost everything found in a cellar, attic or back yard has a definite salvage value.

The War Production board looks upon every scrap metal pile as an unworked mine. Probably no other metal is in demand in such vast quantities as steel. It is needed not only for tanks, guns and planes, but also goes into the hulls of new merchant ships, into freight cars and new housing units and industrial plants. Already the WPB has acted

Don't forget to take that empty toothpaste or shaving cream tube with you to the store when you want a new supply. Customers are required to turn in some kind of collapsible tube for each new one purchased. The retailer who sells one without the proper exchange is liable to a maximum fine of $10,000 fine or a year's imprisonment.

to conserve the nation's supply of steel by ordering curtailment in the use of this essential metal in such civilian goods as refrigerators, washing machines and automobiles.

However, the methods of saving steel at the source are not sufficient. Salvaging scrap iron and steel, known to be available in huge quantities everywhere, offers a rich vein of raw material, of which only the surface has been tapped.

Lead Is Vital Metal.

No metal is more directly associated with the production of weapons than is lead. It furnishes bullets for rifles and machine guns and is used in shrapnel and shells. Mechanical lead is indispensable for the construction of explosive plants while tetra-ethyl lead is essential for the high octane aviation gasoline which feeds our present-day 400-mile-an-hour fighting planes.

While emphasis has been placed on the salvage of steel, the disruption of supplies from abroad has made it imperative that the nation conserve every available pound of lead. The use of this vital metal has increased in direct proportion to the war effort. Lead, lying idle in shops, homes and automobile "graveyards," should be reclaimed and directed back into war production.

Zinc, too, is essential metal. Old wash pails and buckets, galvanized wire and tin roofings which are no longer in use can go directly into the production of propellers for battleships or into essential parts for tanks, trucks and a variety of other war machines

One of the scarcest and most critically needed metals is copper. With an estimated shortage of thousands of tons of copper predicted for the coming year, government orders have restricted the use of this essential material almost exclusively to defense production.

Approximately 600,000 tons of the estimated supply which will be available next year will be imported, most of it from South America, and any disruption of this outside source would be a deadly blow to rearmament.

In 1941, approximately 34 per cent of the copper supply came from scrap. In 1942, it is plain that even this must be substantially augmented by an increase in the return of potential copper now lying unused in cellars, attics, and back yards, on farms and in shops and factories.

Winning the War With Waste

¶ Enough steel and rubber go into a single 27-ton medium tank to make 24 automobiles.

¶ The steel in the hull of a heavy cruiser totals 6,635 tons. In a 35,000-ton battleship, 18,000 tons are needed.

¶ The shells turned out by army ordnance plants are packed in 30,000 tons of paper board each month.

¶ A passenger car yields about 1,500 pounds of scrap iron and steel.

¶ A half-ton truck (blitz buggy) takes 3,970 pounds of steel, a four-ton truck 18,000 pounds, a 27-ton tank uses 72,000 pounds and a light tank 32,000 pounds.

¶ A carload of blueprint paper is used in drawing the plans for one of our 35,000-ton battleships.

STANDARD OIL LOBBY

Lobbying will always be practiced in Washington. Recently, however, it has reached new heights.

In the pre-New Deal days, lobbyists lobbied to get land grants, lumber concessions, and Teapot Dome oil leases. Under the New Deal they lobbied for Public Works contracts, WPA grants, and steamship routes.

Today they lobby for war contracts. But perhaps the most avid, rapacious and lustful lobbying is for priorities on the purchase of materials.

In this connection, Standard Oil has just managed to get a remarkable priority rating for the shipment of $14,500,000 worth of steel to Venezuela. The story illustrates how a job can be done if you have the lobbyist to do it.

In this case Standard Oil is ably represented by Washington attorney John N. Bohannon, who knows his way around, even to the White House.

What Standard wanted was steel for its oil wells in Venezuela, and it had the plausible argument that it must keep up Venezuelan oil production for the American and British navies. However, other American oil companies also wanted steel for wells in Texas, Louisiana and California Also they had the advantage of producing oil which does not require a long and hazardous tanker haul. However, they did not have the advantage of an A-1 lobbyist.

For Mr. Bohannon went to Admiral Stark, then chief of naval operations, and practically scared him to death about the danger of losing Venezuelan oil. Stark called Donald Nelson, boss of War Production, and put the pressure on him. Meanwhile Bohannon and friends pressured the state department, lend-lase administration, board of economic warfare and finally the White House.

If there was anyone Standard Oil forgot to high-pressure they were sick in bed. So Standard Oil got what it wanted, a priority rating of A-1-C, higher than that of domestic oil companies, and the materials have now been shipped.

LEWIS PAYROLL

The Washington Merry-Go-Round wishes to correct an earlier statement that John L. Lewis had three relatives on union payrolls whose salaries, plus his own, gave the family an annual "take" of $48,500 from the collections of union dues.

We regret to say that on further investigation we find we erred grievously. We apologize to Mr. Lewis for underestimating his capacities and print below the full Lewis family payroll showing that the miner czar has not three but nine relatives in cushy jobs and that the family "take" is not $48,500 but $70,500·

John L. Lewis, president, United Mine Workers	$25,000*
Kathryn Lewis, daughter, secretary - treasurer, District 50, U M W	7,500*
Denny Lewis, brother, head of United Construction Workers organizing committee	10,000*
J. R. Bell, brother-in-law, C.I.O controller	6,000
Orin Miller, brother-in-law, superintendent of the U M W office building in Indianapolis	5,000
Dan Collins, brother - in - law, C.I.O organizer	3,600
William Thomas, cousin, superintendent U M W building in Washington	5,000
Margaret Lindig, sister-in-law of Denny, U.M W stenographer	2,400
Ann Miller, daughter of brother-in-law Orin Miller, U.M W. stenographer	2,400
Son-in-law of Floyd Bell, another Lewis brother-in-law, District 50 organizer	3,600
Total Lewis family payroll	$70,500

(*In addition to their big salaries, Lewis, his daughter and brother also have fat expense accounts. What they spend is their secret. No figures have ever been revealed, even to union members.)

And Still More.

Imposing as is this payroll list, it still does not tell the whole story.

There is one Lewis relative who is not on a union payroll but who garners a high-bracket income from unions controlled by John L. He is brother-in-law Floyd Bell, an insurance agent. Representative of a surety company, Bell has what amounts to a monopoly on the business of bonding all national, district and local U.M.W. officers and all C.I O. officials.

His commissions are estimated at $40,000 a year.

This sum, plus the payroll listed above, would bring the total "take" of the Lewis family up to $110,500 a year.

Wayne Coy, brainy young White House assistant, is slated for a promotion. The ex-Indiana newsman will be made assistant budget director. Coy will also continue as head of the Office of Emergency Management.

Good news for the cotton grower. Under war stimulation, cotton consumption now is around 1,000,000 bales a month, is expected to reach an estimated total of 13,500,000 bales for the year. This is nearly 3,000,000 bales more than last year.

Political Tolerance

Let us restore to social intercourse that harmony and affection without which liberty and even life itself are but dreary things. And let us reflect that, having banished from our land that religious intolerance under which mankind has so long bled and suffered, we have yet gained little if we countenance a political intolerance as despotic, as wicked, and capable of as bitter and bloody persecutions.—Thomas Jefferson.

JOAN BENNETT'S young daughter Diane is hoping that the tires on the family car will wear out fast. She's been waging a campaign to drive that car, or else to have a pony cart of her own. The first thing Miss Bennett did after completing work with Franchot Tone in Columbia's "Highly Irregular" was to buy the pony cart; Diane's offered to drive her mother to the studio each morning

William Holden's spending his time between scenes of "Meet the Stewarts" in studying Chinese. "Zing Go the Strings of My Heart." It's her lucky song; she sang it several years ago when she auditioned for her contract at Metro, and ever since then she's chosen it for her personal appearances.

The Hays office has requested designers of screen clothes to avoid planning costumes which would use a lot of material, when the women of America are being instructed to conserve material. Veronica Lake will be the first star to wear the new "conservation" garments; in "The Glass Key" she'll wear "just enough goods to go around." Of course, Dorothy Lamour really came first, with her sarong.

Twenty-five thousand beauty shop owners recently chose Rita Hayworth as America's No. 1 red-head, Jinx Falkenburg as the No. 1 brunette, and Evelyn Keyes as the blonde. Seems for a year they'd consulted their customers and found that the hair styles of these three were the ones most popular. You may judge for yourself by seeing Rita's new picture, "My Sister Eileen," Miss Falkenburg's "Sweetheart of the Fleet" and Evelyn Keyes' "The Adventures of Martin Eden"—of course it's pure coincidence that they're all Columbia pictures!

When Clarence Nash first quacked like a duck on a Burns and Allen program, way back last November, nobody had any idea that the duck might soon become a star member of the cast. But "Herman" has become so real to a host of listeners that he gets fan mail, and each week brings letters asking if he's a real duck or just a noise, which delights both George and Gracie.

"The Nightingale and the Rose," a new one-act opera commissioned by the National Broadcasting company, will have its first performance April 25 over a nation wide hookup. Dr. Frank Black, NBC general music director, will conduct the performance, and Vivian della Chiesa and Felix Knight, both well known radio listeners, will sing the leading roles. The opera is based on Oscar Wilde fairy tale.

Henry Segall, who won an Oscar for his original story, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," which was made by Columbia, tried vainly for three years to sell it. The studio executives who wouldn't buy it must feel sorry for the publishers who turned down "Gone With the Wind." By the way, we're told that 5,489,000 persons have seen the movie about "Scarlett O'Hara" twice or more.

New Fabrics and Designs Meet Increased Demand for Blouses

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE unprecedented rush for suits this spring is breathtaking. And with the acquiring of a new suit the one thing that never fails to happen is the sudden urge that comes upon one for a blouse wardrobe that will perform the trick of changing the mood of one's suit as magically as a chameleon changes its color.

The blouse program as set for the coming months is unusually versatile. Starting off with trim tailored effects individualized with smart styling details, it continues to carry on in a brilliant way with stunning costume blouses of handsome (often spectacular) fabrics climaxed by a procession of exquisite fantasies of beguiling femininity.

Blouse fabrics were never more interestingly varied as in this season, when modern textile ingenuity has reached a peak, especially in the matter of rayon weaves that leave nothing to be desired. Side by side, on the blouse hangers, you will find rayon materials including exotic bold-patterned print jerseys and acetate crepes, trim spun rayon shirtings in linen or challis finish, soft-bodied monotone crepes and an intriguing display of filmy sheers.

Prints are creating a sensation in the field of sports blouses, done often in gay South American patternings and colorings. A blouse that stands pre-eminently at the front in the style parade is shown centered in the above illustration. It is the full-blown rose print that everybody is calling for. Note, especially, the big floppy bow tie at the neck. These bow fastenings are of outstanding interest this season, so watch bows! The long bishop sleeves are also important.

Two chic tailored blouses (to the right above and below in the group) are noteworthy The model at the top is a real "find." It is a classic in tailored simplicity, with the charm of a material, corded marquisette, which is to be coveted not only for its prettiness, for joy of joy! it launders to perfection and as easily as a pocket handkerchief. This blouse is skillfully designed with a fitted waistband for either tuck-in or over-blouse wear.

Exquisite handwork finishing off all edges in contrast color is a nice trimming accent for the beautiful tailored blouse in snowy acetate rayon crepe shown just below this blouse in the above illustration. Note the stud-fastened cuffs and becoming turn-back neck.

Note the flowers in her hair. The wearing of flowers in this manner is an approved fashion, even in the daytime if occasion warrants.

An effect of fragile feminine charm is achieved by the use of filmy rayon chiffon and fine lace edging for the exquisite lingerie blouse shown above to the left in the illustration. It features the new and extremely smart long bishop sleeves together with a high-low ruffled neckline which may be fastened primly under the chin for suit wear or opened low for dress-up moments

A blouse that should be included in every wardrobe for formal wear is the long-torso type of handsome rayon flower print in gorgeous colors.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Doubly Smart

Yes, you are seeing double! Matching boutonnieres of fresh flowers, one on each lapel, make a novel decoration on smart new suits this spring. This is a style recommended to out-of-town beaux who will want to wire greetings that will outshine local competition. If it's a single corsage she wants for her new spring costume, camellias, gardenias and combinations of variegated colorings are all good guesses. Daisies and violets, as pictured above, make charming twin lapel pieces.

The Flowers That Bloom On Your Dress, Tra-La!

Among the highlighted fabrics for spring, smooth surfaces predominate. The worsteds are particularly smart, as this spring is starting off in a decidedly tailored manner. Faille, wool jersey and knits continue strong.

This season's prints glory in novelty and color. Important are the new butterfly prints, the lace-patterned types and gorgeous florals. Amusing, also, are the vegetable prints, cabbage roses in full bloom and the apple motifs. There are more plaids, stripes and checks than ever, and the "dotted" theme persists.

Bows Run Rampant Over Necklines and Pockets

Necklines are having a frilly time of it this spring. Jabots are as frothy and white as snow drifts, or fleecy clouds on a summer day. Collar and cuff sets in pastel blues or pinks are ever so good this season. There's also a rush for huge, softly tied bows or sprightly butterfly ties. Bows also trim pockets and cuffs and are posed at the shoulder. In fact, bows are apt to light anywhere on one's costume and be fashion-right.

Loose Curls

No tight curls, all extremely loose and very feminine looking, is the new fashion edict. Shorter bobs are assured, always with an easy-to-manage promise. Pompadour versions will continue to be worn and the "trick" is to wear your hat back to show the pompadour.

SAVING TIRE WEAR

"Anybody who drives more than 40 miles an hour is a slacker."—Mr. Henderson in his appeal for rubber saving.

* * *

True, but the average man has become so accustomed to moving fast that he unconsciously gets into the upper speedometer brackets. Only today we were riding to town with Elmer Twitchell, a fiery exponent of cutting down speed to save tires.

"Mr. Henderson is dead right," snapped Mr. Twitchell. "This is no joking matter. Tires must be saved and it can only be done by driving with more care."

(He was doing about 28 now.)

* * *

"I can't understand the mental processes of the American who reads all about the rubber situation, knows how speed shortens the life of tires and yet keeps on driving as he always did. It is shameful."

(We noticed the speedometer now showed 32.)

* * *

"We're in a great war. Our country needs every ounce of rubber it can get. There are no more new tires to be had. Everybody ought to know without being told, that it is impossible to conserve tires and not reduce driving speed at all times. Yet we find ignorant, stupid fellows driving as if nothing had happened."

(He has now got the old bus up to 38.)

* * *

"Why do people take these warnings from government agencies so lightly? Something should be done to make them obey the suggestions. There is no place in American life today for the speed nut who just won't change his habits."

(He was now doing about 42.)

* * *

"I favor backing up Henderson," went on Mr. Twitchell, with deep agitation. "Every community should back him up. The police should be more vigorous. No halfway measures should be shown. I am for the arrest and punishment of every short-sighted, pig-headed, self-satisfied son of a sea cook who is too blankety blank thick to see his responsibilities to do his full duty."

(He was now doing 50.)

* * *

"There oughta be a law! Why should anybody be unwilling to cooperate with the government? Why should—."

We nudged him and pointed to the speedometer which had begun climbing toward 55.

Elmer reddened and took his foot off the accelerator.

"Sfunny!" he said guiltily. "Just a habit, I guess. Now, as I was saying . . ."

THE COMMUNIQUE

A terrific crash was heard . . . it was followed by a sound of woodwork crashing . . . presently the whole window came out of the house, as the form of Elmer Twitchell was flung through it.

"What's the matter?" we asked, picking Elmer up.

"It's okay," explained Elmer. "I'm fighting a delaying action."

WAYSIDE CONVERSATIONS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 13.22-35.

GOLDEN TEXT—And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.—Luke 14 27.

Learning by talking with Christ as they walked from place to place—such was the training for service which the disciples received. That was the greatest school this world has ever known, for while it had no great buildings, no beautiful campus, no learned faculty, it had the Son of God Himself as preceptor and teacher. With all due regard for our fine colleges and seminaries, we say this is still the outstanding need of Christian workers—to walk and talk with Christ.

On the day of which our lesson speaks the subject considered was how to be saved, and who should be saved. Several trends of thought emerged, but all pointed in the one direction of a diligent following of God's plan In order to be saved, we learn, a man must

I. Make an Earnest Effort (vv. 22-24).

The question regarding how many were saved received no direct answer for our Lord wished to direct attention to the far more important question—Are you saved? Get that settled and the other matter will care for itself.

Here some who assume that it is an easy thing to be saved will receive a surprise, for our Lord says (v. 24) that it is something one must agonize" over, for so may the word "strive" be translated. The door into eternal life is so narrow that no man can pass through it with his sins—they must be taken away. Seeking is not enough (v. 24), one must "strive" to enter in.

II. Enter While the Door is Open (vv. 25-30).

The door stands open for all who will, to come in. (What a friendly thing is an open door!) But men idly ignore it, or definitely reject its opportunity. Or they seek it, but do not strive to enter in, and all at once it is closed. Then in a frenzy they seek to enter, but it is too late. What an appalling thing—to be eternally too late!

Note their claims of acquaintance with the Lord (v. 26). One is reminded of those who think they are Christians because father or mother belonged to the church, or because they attend an occasional church supper or listen to a sermon by radio. Unless we know Him personally as our Saviour, He will have to say to us, Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity" (v. 27). Let us make that matter very clear to those to whom we minister, lest they be eternally lost.

III. Follow the Fearless Christ (vv. 31-33).

To know the high and unwavering character of one's leader is to go forward with real confidence. What about the Captain of our salvation? Here we find Him facing the indirect threat of a powerful and wicked earthly ruler, in perfect calmness, with the very poise of eternity upon Him.

Christ, conscious of His divine mission and with determination to do the Father's will (Heb. 10:7), knew no fear of man. As we are in His holy will as Christian men and women, we too may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me" (Heb. 13 6).

Consider the rebuke to Herod (v. 32). There is probably no place in Scripture where our Lord spoke with such stinging contempt of any man. It is almost as though the black cloud of eternal judgment already had settled around the head of this man who was so sly and crafty that the tenderhearted Jesus called him a "fox." One wonders of how many He would have to say the same in this our day of supreme and malicious wickedness.

We find one more vitally important thought here. Our Lord offers Himself. He calls sinners to repentance, but they must

IV. Respond to His Invitation (vv. 34, 35).

To fail to accept His proffered love is to be left desolate. To reject Him as Saviour (either by neglect or by definite act) is inevitably to bring judgment. To the Jews this meant loss of their national home—their leading city, but to us it means the loss of our eternal souls.

"There is terrible suggestiveness in the two statements in verse 34, 'I would,' 'Ye would not.' The whole secret of Jerusalem's desolation and destruction is found in the words, 'Ye would not.' The whole secret of the loss of the individual soul is found in the words, 'Ye will not' (John 5·40)" (John W. Bradbury).

This lesson presses home to the individual reader the question, Are you saved? What is your answer? It also affords the Sunday school teacher an excellent opportunity to seek to lead the members of the class to a definite decision for Christ. The Sunday school is a good place to give an invitation

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good heath is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

This army is going to eat with silver knives, forks and spoons because the procurement division has decided that by switching from chromium flatware (army name for eating implements) to silver it can save some thirteen tons of chromium, which is very, very short since the Phillipine supply has been lost

It seems there is no shortage of silver and so at last there seems to have been found some practical use for all the silver Mr Morgenthau has been amassing for the treasury these past few years!

Perhaps some practical use can also be found for all that gold that is buried down at Fort Knox

Why not use gold and silver for plating and save tin?

A FISHERMAN'S PRAYER

Dear Lord, when Gabriel blows his blast
And I come home to rest at last,
Don't measure me for harp and wings,
But let me have instead these things
Some tackle, and a rod and reel;
A pair of waders and a creel,
A gurgling, frothy glacial stream,
A quiet lake by which to dream,
An angel pal with whom to angle,
Magic lines that will not tangle,
And grant me leave, with fingers crossed,
To lie about the fish I lost!

Which reminds us that it is again time to look over the old waders for a possible leak or two, to dust off the tackle bag and see what flies and bass bugs should be replaced as several were lost in the hoffie last year

If we do a bit of hoeing in the garden we may be able to convince the better half we need a new reel for one of our fly rods this year!

And speaking about fishing, one of our scouts saw "Ole" Ramsay and his son, Larry, coming in from the river the other evening "Ole" was carrying three bullheads. Our scout is still trying to figure out whether they were big bullheads or small ones "Ole" is so darn big that maybe the fish just looked small! Anyway we bet if they were big ones, Larry would have carried them home.

But why bring that up?

Street Commissioner Geo Bueeman is evidently quite pessimistic and probably figures the war will soon end, as he got a bucket of paint Tuesday and laid out parking spaces for automobiles

Some towns are setting up hitching posts so the farmers can tie up their teams when they come to town

George probably figures tires will last throughout the summer and parking spaces will be needed

If the war is not over he will have to bore holes in the paving and set hitching posts along the Main Drag next spring.

Peter, small son of Mr. and Mrs "Happy" Johnson has all the makings of a Daniel Boone.

Peter, who is only in the first grade at school, knows how to handle a gun and displays good marksmanship Peter went gopher shooting with his Dad and Paul Grange Sunday and bagged two striped gophers!

Guess we will pair up with Peter come time to go pheasant hunting next fall.

OUR BOUQUET THIS WEEK

Our bouquet this week goes to the boys down at the Northern Lumber Company.

Ever since the bombing of Pearl Harbor Old Glory has floated out in front of their office, weather permitting A small flag staff was put up and the Flag kept floating in the breeze

It is a mighty fine patriotic jesture and should be followed by others. The flag should be displayed at all school houses, and at public gatherings

If persistence counts little Joan Lemke will learn how to skate A few days ago the little girl was trying to master the art of roller skating . . and she was taking an awful beating, but came up smiling each time

* * * *

And just to again remind you that you can add life to your tires by having them changed from one wheel to another They should be examined for cuts and small stones and nails removed from between the tread Keep them properly inflated. Avoid driving over sharp stones and bumping against curbs Take care of your tires and you will be repaid with 25 to 50 per cent longer wear

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Do not scrape or pare raw carrots. All the food value is preserved if they are scoured with a clean kitchen brush.

* * *

Rug cushions should be thoroughly cleaned at least twice a year. Inspect them for signs of moths.

* * *

Tomato ketchup poured over baked beans while they are cooking improves their flavor.

Spread butter lightly over each side of bread before toasting to give the toast a crisp, shiny finish.

Gelatin salads will come out more easily if the mold has been well lubricated with salad dressing, or mayonnaise, before filling with the salad mixture. This also gives extra flavoring to the salad by seasoning the outside.

ARE YOUR Bowels Stubborn?

Then try kindness! First of all you can't expect them to act unless you give them a chance. Most people make sure to get 3 meals a day. But they never think of giving their bowels a regular time (daily) for evacuation.

If you've neglected YOUR bowels until they finally became stubborn and unwilling to act, ask your druggist for ADLERIKA. It is an effective blend of 5 carminatives and 3 laxatives giving DOUBLE action. Gas is expelled and bowel action follows surprisingly fast. After that, make up your mind to give your bowels 5 or 10 minutes' time at regular hour, daily. Your druggist has ADLERIKA.

Cool and Decorative—Salad-Muffin Luncheon
(See Recipes Below)

Spring Luncheons

As spring spreads its fragrance and gayety once more across the days, do your moods turn to thoughts of exquisite, gracious luncheons? Yes, to be sure, they do. You get lovely visions of picture-plate luncheons, crispy green salads, tiny, moist sandwiches, the tinkle of china on cool, crisply laundered cloths, centerpieces of delicate flowers

But this year's luncheons are different from last year's. The plates are pictures to behold, true, but the menus are kind to purse strings and food shortages.

A bowl of colorful greens, curly endive, crisp lettuce, tossed together with grapefruit and orange sections with red slivers of strawberries are perfect with these muffins and all you would want for luncheon

Molasses Nut Muffins.
(Makes 24 small or 18 large)

- 3 tablespoons butter
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1½ cups flour
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 cup chopped Brazil nuts
- ⅔ cup milk
- ½ cup pure, dark molasses

Cream butter, stir in sugar gradually and cream together. Stir in well-beaten egg and blend. Mix and sift flour with spices, salt, soda and baking powder, then mix in Brazil nuts. Add alternately with milk and molasses to the first mixture. Bake in well-greased muffin pans in moderate (350-degree) oven 25 minutes.

You can have a veritable smorgasbord on your main luncheon plate if you carry out the general idea by serving several different kinds of salads in frilly lettuce cups. Pick out some combinations you like best from these ideas here:

Chicken Salad.
(Serves 8)

- 2 cups diced, cooked chicken
- 1 cup finely chopped celery
- 1 cup halved, seeded grapes
- ½ cup toasted pecans
- ½ cup mayonnaise

Combine all ingredients lightly. Chill, add mayonnaise and toss lightly together.

Fruit Salad.
(Serves 8)

- 4 thick slices grapefruit
- 4 thick slices oranges
- 4 slices pineapple
- 8 whole apricots
- 1 small package cream cheese

Pare oranges and grapefruit. Cut into slices Cut pineapple, oranges and grapefruit slices into halves. Arrange in a fan shape on curly endive or lettuce. Stuff apricots with cream cheese and place at lower edge of the fan.

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Latest reports reaching me assure us that: we have enough black pepper and most spices for at least two years. Coffee and cocoa supplies are adequate from South America, and tea stocks are still good

Domestic fats and oils will have to replace imported palm and coconut oils used for frying fats, soaps and oleomargarines, and homemakers must conserve all soaps and frying fats carefully.

Tin will be available for canning foods that cannot be preserved in other ways, but you will be wise homemakers if you learn to use dried fruits properly, and can from your own defense gardens this summer. Be kind to your kitchen equipment and gadgets made out of tin, for there will be no more after that is used.

Pineapple is still being planted and shipped to the mainland, and no serious shortage is yet noticeable.

This Week's Menu

Guest Luncheon
Assorted Salad Plate:
*Chicken Salad
*Fruit Salad
*Egg Salad in Tomato Cups
*Molasses-Nut Muffins or *Cheese Rings
Coffee or Tea
*Recipes Given.

Egg Salad in Tomato Cups.
(Serves 4)

- 4 medium sized tomatoes
- 1 package cream cheese
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
- ½ medium sized cucumber, chopped
- 3 hard cooked eggs, chopped
- ¼ cup mayonnaise

Wash tomatoes, peel. Slice off top, and scoop out the center. Toss the other ingredients lightly together and fill the tomato cups. Chill well and serve on lettuce.

All three of the salads given can be served on one individual platter. Arrange them attractively, a scoop of the chicken salad, a fan of fruit salad, and then the tomato cups. Your platter is complete for a luncheon and a very pretty sight to behold! A hot muffin to accompany and a fragrant cup of tea or coffee completes the luncheon.

On the other hand, if you prefer salad bowls which the guests will serve themselves, here are ideas:

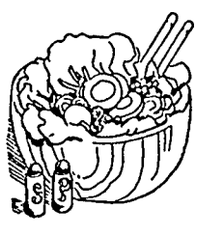
Greens: chunks of lettuce, watercress, slivered green onions, radishes.

Oranges: Use sections on a bed of curly endive or curly garden lettuce, with raspberries or strawberries for color.

Vegetables: Cooked green beans in lengthwise slices, carrots, raw or cooked, in slivers, cooked limas, chopped ham.

Fruits: Beds of lettuce, lengthwise slices of bananas, berries in season, cheese balls dipped in chopped nuts.

Dressing makes an important addition to salad, and many times this is left to your own preference. or, if you like, have the choice of two permitted for your guests Save sugar in the little ways, is our motto, so here is one way to do it. This dressing uses molasses for sweetness.



Piquant French Dressing.

- ½ cup salad
- ⅓ cup vinegar
- ¼ cup chili sauce
- ¼ cup pure, dark molasses
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon onion, grated

Mix all ingredients together and beat thoroughly.

When you invite your friends over for salad and rolls for these luncheons, this may seem like so little, but it's guaranteed to make a hit if you do the little details up right. Have the salads crisp and cool and well blended If having rolls, these should be piping hot for contrast. If you don't feel inspired to make rolls, then do other things like getting ready-made rolls and pretty them up:

Toasted Long Rolls: Split, butter and sprinkle with grated cheese Pop into the oven until cheese melts. Serve hot.

Cheese Rings. Use day-old bread and cut rings with a doughnut cutter. Brush with butter or salad oil, dip in cheese, and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until golden brown.

Orange Biscuits: Add grated rind of orange to a baking powder biscuit recipe. Roll and cut. Dip a cube of sugar in orange juice and press into top of each biscuit. Bake in a hot oven 12 to 15 minutes.

Lynn Chambers will be happy to give you advice on your luncheon or salad problems. Write to her at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois. Please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Man About Town:

The Charlie Chaplin-Paulette Goddard bustup is in the offing. They've finally agreed to the division of the spoils . . . It's another image over at the War Correspondent H. R. Knickerbockers. He's in Australia . . When Louise Atwill divorced General MacArthur (to wed actor Lionel Atwill) someone asked her why she divorced the hero. "Oh," was the champion eating-your-words crack of all time, "I was just exchanging a few small stars for one big one!"

The boys in the camps are sizzling over Rita Hayworth's husband (Eddie Judson) for demanding a 30G settlement. They rate her the "nicest dish of all" . . Isn't Japambassador Nomura's brother in Mexico as a Jap navy specialist in hydrographic surveys? Mexico might find it advantageous to dig him up.

Mrs. O. O. McIntyre has been offered a colyum job after the manner of the late New York chronicler . . . Here's something different in items: A B'wayite is suing a colyumist for saying he was a gyp. The case is due shortly—and he's in the hoosegow on a burglary charge! . . . An Upstater sought by G-Men in the lottery expose was right in Mr. Hoover's outer office at the time. He was wild to be a G-Man!

Richard Whitney, who paid his debt to Zoociety, has offered himself to the armed forces in any form. So far no takers . . From forty entries Shemp Howard was voted the homeliest man in Hollywood. The judges were Virginia Bruce, Priscilla Lane and Anne Gwynne . . . Variety rejects some of the slang in "The American Thesaurus of Slang," claiming they have a phony ring. All the phrases listed sound "manufactured," which slanguage can't be. Slang is slang for the same reason that a man is tough: It can't help it.

Lord Beaverbrook says Hess is still in a London (not Ontario) prison, as suspected Mr and Mrs. Goe Shing Wong of 398 Mass Ave., South End, Boston, have named their new-born—Douglas We Win Wong . Midtowners are laughing over the big shot who threw a party at the Copa for Hollywood people and paid off with a check that bounced The FBI took away three Fifth Avenue department store employees—suspected of Nazi activities

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Wireless: There's the makings of a nice feud in the Elmer Davis-H. V. Kaltenborn disagreement. Davis took Kaltenborn's labor blast apart piece by piece and said "Nh-nh" to the charges. It claims it's the old demand for lower wages wearing a new frock . . All those quips on the radio about tires are wearing thin A must of the week is the "This Is War" program Big-time playwriting . Midget Joe Goebbels' spring styles in lies are being exhibited by some of the commentators. Goebbels is building a Bolshy scare, in case the Nazi offensive fizzles. The American dopes couldn't be more obliging to him.

The Front Pages: A statesman laughed off the hysteria of that Chicago ayemer. "A rag that styles itself the world's greatest newspaper," he said, "has to pitch the rest of its reading matter in the same farce key" . . . Lieut.-Gen'l Jonathan M. Wainwright authored a dispatch that belongs to America's catalogue of inspired words. The Japs sent an ultimatum to surrender to Gen. MacArthur's successor. He reported it to Washington, adding the glorious postscript: "No reply was necessary and none was made" . . . Raymond Clapper cabled a line from the Far East which should be a good tip to US industry. He wrote: "China has more pilots than planes."

The Story Tellers: Could Milton Mayer's piece in the SEP be the cause of the big walkout? Race discrimination is nothing new. The Irish were abused over here for half a century As recent as the Blaine-Cleveland campaign the antis raised "the Irish question." It is all reported in "The Story of Scapegoats in History," a pamphlet by Kenneth M. Gould . . Another pamphlet, "Greece Fights," relates a wheeze about Benito. A painting of Old Baldy, hung in a Greek town, was mutilated. A fine of 10 drachmas was assessed against every inhabitant. All paid twenty, explaining that covered tomorrow's mutilation.

Jay C. Flippen of "Hellzapoppin," was looking at Ilka Chase's autobiography and observed: "A person must be very careful these days—the stage doorman may be writing his memoirs!" . . . Another gal who scorched her set in print retorted to cries of "Shame!" with this: "But I made sacrifices to write my book. The royalties I got didn't come near the hush money I passed up!" . . . What this country needs are more Gen'l MacArthurs and less Gen'l Nuisances

Victory Garden--

CANNED Vegetables will be plenty high in price as this War Emergency contiues.

IF You want to eat vegetables this summer and next winter . . . you had better make a garden.

MAKING A garden is not easy. In planting time it is either too hot, too cold, too wet, too dry . . . in fact, it is never just right.

AND Then we have cut worms, black birds, potato bugs and cabbage millers to contend with. Gosh! What a fight!

The Truth About Building Restrictions

The recent Government Restrictions on building is a Conservation Program and NOT a STOP-ORDER on ESSENTIAL BUILDING.

YOU Cannot build a NEW HOUSE—but you CAN BUILD as follows:

IN TOWN:
1. You can REMODEL your home (or other building) up to $500 worth this year.
2. You can REPAIR up to any amount you wish as repairs are not restricted at all.
3. You can BUILD new buildings (garages, etc.) up to $500.00 for each building.

ON FARMS
1. You can REMODEL EACH farm building up to $1,000.00. (If you remodel 2 buildings, you can spend up to $1,00.00 on each.)
2. You can REPAIR EACH farm building up to any amount you wish as repairs are not restricted at all.
3. You can BUILD any NEW farm building (hog house, crib, machine shed, barn, etc.) costing up to $1,000 each without permission.

And if you wish to build a new farm building costing over $1,000, we believe we can get permission for you, without "red tape", if it is essential.

4. You can REMODEL your FARM HOUSE up to $500 this year.
5. You can FENCE, put in DRAIN TILE, ETC., up to $1,000 on each project.

(We do not think your government considers it unpatriotic to proceed with essential work, but rather your duty to "conserve by preserving" the property you have or need. We are not in favor of the extensive use of ANY material vital to our National Defense.)

WEEK END RAINS WERE BENEFICIAL TO CROPS

Rains which fell over this section of Iowa on Saturday, Sunday and Monday were very beneficial.

The rain was followed by cool weather which gave the moisture a chance to soak in.

Pastures and haylands are looking fine and the oats fields are green.

A few of the "early bird" farmers started planting corn this week but this is the exception rather than the rule.

More Funds Needed For Navy Relief Quota In Klemme

FOUR TOWNS REACHED THEIR QUOTA THE PAST WEEK

Corwith, Woden, Crystal Lake And Hayfield Are "Over The Top"

That the appeal sent out by the Navy Relief society for help struck a responsive chord in the hearts of the people of Hancock County is evidenced by the Saturday night report prepared by the county chairman, N. E. Brear of Garner, which gave every indication that with a normal continuation of the contributions until May 1, contest closing time, this country will have subscribed its full quota and possibly a little extra.

As the Navy fund drive draws to a close many contributions are coming in by mail, which is very gratifying to the county committe, and credit is being given to the communities nearest the donor for the amount.
